Did you wake this morning sensing that this is an important day? You're right.

Today is the birthday of Effie Fog, who has earned the undying gratitude of all women for discovering sink smog. Also Dinmore Snoofenlog, who will be long remembered for his famous last words, "So long." And, of course, Burtram Lef-fingwell-Hick, inventor of the sign, "This parking place un-reserved."

Who's birthday is coming up?

And so it goes. Every day is important because it is someone's birthday. Which reminds me (as tho I hadn't been plotting this all along) the place to buy birthday gifts is at Ethel's.

Stop in and you'll find wondrous things to please everyone. For example, if Aunt Aramintha likes tea, Ethel has a gift pack of nine brews, individually wrapped for $2.00. Some teas come in boxes that may be reused for jewelry, buttons, or used razor blades. Ground ginger comes in a gay, hand painted pottery container ideal as a sugar bowl. Also $2.00

Put out the fire

If it's a man your shopping for, consider the Thirst Extinguisher. It's a cocktail shaker that looks like a fire extinguisher. The low priced model (did I say low?) will burn a $12.95 hole in your pocket. In red glass with a copper top and spout, it's a gift that's really different. Come in and read the instructions on the bottle. Any drug store will give you a gallon bottle free. It looks like a gallon bottle.

Blood out of a turnip

And while we're tossing money around let's take a look at a trustee's offering—the Waring Blender. Mixes ice cream, gelatin sauces, cookies, cakes, griddle cakes, salads, and concrete. If a vegetable has a drop of juice, the Waring Blender extracts every drop. Extraction from your wallet: $29.75.
