

Cwens

about it belies the old adage that women can't keep secrets.

The largest job undertaken by Cwens every year is the orientation of new freshmen in connection with the dean of women's office. Our sophomore "female hatmen" dutifully report back to campus a week early every fall to assist in guiding the confused and bewildered prospective coeds.

Dungaree Drag

The society also sponsors the annual "Dungaree Drag," held in October, which is the big "girl-ask-boy" affair every year. The dance is apparently a device for letting off steam for the girls, because they plan the dates, give comical corsages, and supposedly pay for the whole shebang.

The affair serves more practical purposes, however. Money raised from the dance is used toward a scholarship given each year to a sophomore girl, again a "deserving" one, and is allotted according to need and general scholarship.

In addition, Cwens sponsors the student women's dayroom in Women's building. The purpose of the room is for girls living in town to have a place to go on campus during a sandwich hour.

26 Members

The present active membership of the group, all tapped in December of 1950, is 26 women. The advisor for the society is Mary E. Brewer.

We hope that this small cataloging of the various activities and comings and goings of Cwens will help in a small way to dispell the notion that hats, as such, on girls, are just another form of fashion.

Senate

In order to discourage graduating seniors from enlisting before graduation, the new system grants these privileges only to draftees.

Grade Adjustments

The new grading system eliminates 20 of the present 31 grades and adds one new one. No changes in the three to minus two schedule for completed courses are included; most of the adjustments are for dropped courses.

Women including those on campus, who would have been required to substitute credits for ROTC courses no longer need do so. The change eliminates six credits for women in those curricula where ROTC is mandatory for men.

DeHaas Named Head

Thomas DeHaas was elected president of Phi Epsilon Kappa, men's physical education honorary, at its meeting Wednesday night.

Other officers elected were: George Hamilton, vice-president; Walter Gruda, treasurer; William Mihalich, secretary; Eldon Nelson, historian-editor; and Stewart Scheetz, guide.

committee and the staff of the dean of men's office.

William Raymond, chairman of the board's projects committee reported that a survey of all units would be made before definite plans for the proposed blood donor program would be made. He said that the way the plans are laid out now, approximately 600 students and townspeople would be needed to make the project work.

Committee Members

Besides Raymond, others on the committee are Charles Stoddard, representing the Red Cross; Allan Reece and William Hittinger, junior chamber of commerce; Dr. Herbert Glenn, College health service; Thomas Shriver, Interfraternity council; Herbert Axford, Alpha Phi Omega; Daniel DeMarino, assistant dean of men; and two representatives from Panhellenic council and Leonides yet to be named.

Raymond Evert, director of the AIM orchestra, was given a letter to be read to the members of the band assuring them that they would be contracted to play for all future AIM social affairs. The arrangement came about when the question was put on the floor concerning the status of the orchestra.

Richard Mills, acting chairman, appointed Robb Keener to represent AIM on the Displaced Persons committee which met last night to discuss means of housing and educating the 25 DP's that the College plans to take in as students in the fall.

William Clymer was appointed to the Pan-American day committee.
