

Festival Costumes

PREPARING FOR the International festival to be held in the School of Home Economics at the College this afternoon and tonight. Joan G. Todaro, left, assists Irene A. Buck in winding her obi. Both women are students in home economics. Miss Todaro is dressed as an Albanian gypsy, and Miss Buck wears Japanese costumes.

Festival Will Feature Various World Activities

The United Nations may be in New York, but visitors to the International festival at the College today will be able to witness various activities of many countries all over the world.

Tickets for the festival, which will be held at the Home Economics building from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m., may be purchased at the door for 50 cents.

Illustrated talks will be given on Mexico and Guatemala by Ina Padgett and Lora Pinder, while Sweden will be discussed by Elsa Haglund, a student from Stockholm. Students from India will also speak on their native land. A Korean student, Kyung Ho Lee, will sing native songs and speak on Korea, while H. K. Wilson, dean of men at the College, will speak on Japan.

Czechoslovakian Demonstration

Mrs. Vaclav Mares and Mrs. Helen Stach will show visitors all about "Making Food the Czechoslovakian Way," while Jane Shepard will lead audience participation groups in folk dancing in the afternoon.

A group from the PSCA will demonstrate folk dancing in the evening. Programs will close with "Tea Time in Latin America" and refreshments at which costumes of various lands will be displayed.

Festival Exhibits

Exhibits at the festival will include "Riches from Latin America," "Swedish Arts and Crafts," "Guatemalan and Mexican Crafts," "India Today," "Home Crafts from Japan," "Dolls from Many Lands," "Korean Arts," "Table Settings from Germany, Italy, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia," and "Crafts from Other Lands."

The program is being sponsored by the International Relations committee of the School of Home Economics in order to raise money for a foreign student scholarship at the College.

'Tea-Kettle' Is Chapel Topic

"The Song of the Tea-Kettle" will be the sermon topic of Dr. Bernard C. Clausen at the College chapel service in Schwab auditorium at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The chapel choir, directed by Willa Taylor and with George Ceiga at the organ, will sing "Open Our Eyes," by MacFarlane.

Dr. Clausen, a former pastor of Euclid avenue Baptist church in Cleveland, began his ministry as a Naval chaplain on the cruiser North Carolina during World War I.

Clausen Active

Since that time, in addition to his ministerial duties, Dr. Clausen has been active in public affairs. He is a member of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and a promoter of world peace. He is an active member of the Cleveland Rotary club, the founder of a Labor Union college, and a promoter of television for the discussion of disrupted international issues, through the United Nations.

Has Written Books

Dr. Clausen has written a score of books and has served churches in Hamilton, N.Y., Syracuse, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland. He has spoken at religious programs in many eastern colleges and helped the Quakers in their high school contact program.

Dr. Clausen, whose congregation was the first in the world to join the United Nations by official action, writes book reviews for the Cleveland News and broadcasts regularly on coast to coast radio hook-ups. He began recently to experiment in religious evangelism by use of color television.

Committee Discusses Aid For DP's

Representatives from 14 campus organizations attended the first general meeting of the Campus Committee for Displaced Persons Thursday night, Dorothy Radack, secretary pro-tem, said yesterday.

Drew Mahla, president pro-tem, explained the duties of the campus committee. The duties include securing housing and providing orientation activities for 25 displaced persons of student classification who will come to State College next fall.

Plans call for the students to work for a year and then matriculate at the College. The State College Commerce club's committee, headed by J. Alvin Hawbaker, has obtained 17 or 18 job assurances for the displaced students, Marjorie Allen, associate secretary of the Penn State Christian association, reported.

A sub-committee on housing was named to secure the names of places available as living quarters for the displaced students next fall. The committee includes Allen Marshall, PSCA; Howard Kerstetter, Inter-church student fellowship; Robb Keener, Association of Independent Men; Sorley Snyder, Leonides; and Carl Sova, a Czechoslovakian DP currently enrolled at the College.

The nominating committee named to nominate permanent officers for the general committee includes Sue Neuhauser, PSCA; Miss Radack, Hillel foundation; Mahla, Newman club; William Klisanin, National Student association; and Frank Flannelly, International Relations club.

Friends Representative Meets With CA Group

Ray Hartsough, of the American Friends Service committee, discussed the philosophical backgrounds of the Friends at the PSCA round table discussion Wednesday night.

Hartsough also told about the Friends' work camps in the United States, Mexico, and Europe. He spoke about the inter-industry program and the institutional service units sponsored by the Friends. He also explained the function of the international service seminar.

Hartsough will return to the College on March 11, again sponsored by the PSCA. He will be available for interviews on the morning of March 12, in the PSCA office in 304 Old Main.

Learn To Act In Emergencies; Red Cross Courses Available

If a person is interested in learning how to protect himself from all the hazards of summer vacation, he should take one of the Red Cross first aid courses being offered on-campus this semester.

First, there's the standard course, which is a basic study of first aid. It concerns fractures, bandages, burns and general first aid requirements. The advanced course is a more concentrated study of the standard. It is now being taught by Sherman Fogg, assistant professor of physical education. Both standard and advanced courses require twelve hours of classes.

After the advanced course comes the instructors' course. This requires 18 hours of classes and will be taught in the spring by a Red Cross instructor. Persons completing this course will be in demand in case of any emergency.

Interested Persons

Anyone, either student or faculty member, interested in the first aid courses should contact Dr. David Russell, 306 Burrows. If eight or more persons want to take a course, the Red Cross will provide an instructor, according to C. W. Stoddart Jr., head of the local chapter of the Red Cross. Or perhaps a person wants to take a home nursing course. The Red Cross is offering several both in town and on campus. Persons interested in those courses should contact Mrs. Amy Kerstetter, 18 Frear laboratory.

For persons who want to work as lifeguards this summer there are three courses in water safety. The general water safety course teaches how to handle oneself in the water. There is also a life-saving course, which gives the necessary qualifications for lifeguards, and an instructors' course, for those who have completed the other two.

Outstanding Horses In Livestock Show

Of the animals to be shown in the College's 1951 Little International, the horses will perhaps be the most outstanding, according to Philip Houston, co-manager of the show. Drawings for animals will be held Tuesday in 206 Agriculture at 7:30 p.m.

New Belgian and Percheron mares, purchased by the College within the past 18 months, have won awards at the Ohio and New York State fairs, the Eastern States exposition, and the International.

The first Morgan horses ever owned by the College will be shown this year. Morgan horses are combination saddle and light harness animals.

Morgan horses have been increasing in popularity in the East, Houston said. The College has purchased three mares and a two year old stallion of this type, and has the use of two others. These six animals are to be the basis of the first Morgan breeding program ever undertaken here, he added.

The Block and Bridle club, sponsors of the show, have voted to limit the first drawing of horses to club members only, because of the large number of seniors desiring to show them, Ralph Yergey, manager of the horse division, said. The remainder will be distributed to anyone desiring to show one.

Yergey was champion fitter of horses in last year's show. Elmer Taft, superintendent of horses, will aid contestants in fitting and training of the animals. Taft has shown horses in several large shows, including the International Livestock exposition in Chicago.

Student Groups Will Discuss Religion, Faith

Discussions on the meaning of religion and faith in everyday life are the general theme of most of the local religious student foundations meeting tomorrow night.

The Westminster foundation, which will meet at 6:30 p.m., will evaluate what students got from Religion-In-Life week.

The Evangelical United Brethren student fellowship will meet at 6:45 p.m. in the EUB church to discuss "Study of Prayer and Quiet Time."

The Wesley foundation, after their supper meeting at 5:30 p.m. will be led by a student panel in a discussion of "Ways to Find God Through Small Group Fellowship."

The Canterbury club will meet at the Episcopal church at 6:30 p.m. for a coffee hour and a discussion, "What Think Ye of Christ?"

The Young Friends will meet at 7 p.m. to discuss "Quaker Queries; Guides to Quaker Faith and Practice."

United Student fellowship will meet at 5:30 p.m. in the basement of the Reformed church for supper. Afterward, Dr. Mason Long, of the English Literature department at the College, will speak on "Immortality."

Roger Williams fellowship will meet at the State College hotel, the guests of Kenneth Hall, its manager, for dinner at 5:30. Attendance will be by reservation only. Kyung Ho Lee, Chinese student at the College, will speak.

The Lutheran Student association will hear reports of members of LSA who have gone to the North Atlantic regional conference of LSA at Buck Hill Falls this weekend.

Devotions Continue Daily In Old Main Basement

Ten meditation devotions will continue daily, Monday through Friday, until Easter vacation, Joanna Bucknell, secretary of the Inter-church fellowship, said yesterday.

Inter-Church fellowship sponsors the devotion services.

Miss Bucknell said attendance at the devotions, held from 12:40 to 1 p.m. in the Little theater in the basement of Old Main, has been discouragingly low.

The program for the remaining period: Penn State Bible fellowship, March 5-7; Lutheran student association, March 8, 9, and 12; Wesley foundation, March 13-15; and Westminster foundation, March 16, 19, and 20.

FFA To Initiate

The Future Farmers of America will initiate new members Monday at 7:30 p.m. in 109 Agriculture. Prospective members are invited to the meeting.

Candy Weds Dinger

The correct names for a wedding listed in Wednesday's Collegian are Jane Dinger and Guyer Candy, not Jane Deiger and George Cardy as were printed.
