Penn State Christian association, who is working with the campus and Commerce club committees.

The present job of the Campus committee is to find living quarters for the displaced students. Members of the housing subcommittee have contacted State College ministers to get names of persons living in State College who might have living quarters available for the displaced students next fall, Mahla said.

The campus committee will hear the subcommittee's report, Mahla said, and will then contact the persons whose names have been submitted.

The displaced persons program being undertaken this year is the first program attempted on such a large scale. In previous years, individual campus groups, churches, and fraternities sponsored or obtained sponsors for a small number of displaced students, Miss Allen said.

Businessmen of State College have so far guaranteed about 17 jobs for the displaced students. They include general restaurant work, clerking and stock work, construction work, and domestic service, Miss Allen said.

The displaced students are scheduled to arrive next fall, probably in September. The processing set-up requires about six months to be completed, Miss Allen said. At present the students are located in DP camps, mainly in Germany. Most of them formerly came from communist-was separated from the unit and made a separate detachment for entertainment purposes.

The group gave more than 2000 concerts for the armed forces. After returning from Europe in 1946, the chorus, including 14 of the original group from Fort Dix, began tours in this country.

Last year, the de Paur chorus set a new record with 180 engagements. The current tour, including both Bellefonte and State College and ending next month, numbers more than 175 appearances.

dominated countries such as Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Poland, and the Baltic countries.

Transportation Expenses
The International Refugee organization, one of the specialized agencies of the United Nations, pays for transportation expenses of the DP's to New York. The employer pays for the transportation from New York to State College, Miss Allen said.

The displaced students are being obtained through the World Student Service fund. Because the IRO is scheduled to go out of business June 30, and since the IRO pays transportation expenses, action must be taken soon to get processing underway, Miss Allen said.

No official action can be taken, however, until job assurances for the 25 displaced persons are completed, Miss Allen said.

community are elected by ballot. Edelman said approximately 90 per cent of agriculture and industry is capitalistic and is operating under a system of free enterprise.

Every citizen in Israel votes whether Arab, Jew, or Christian. The three faiths of the population stand equally, Edelman said. Some tension, however, is felt in regard to the marriage laws since no provision is made for inter-religious marriages.

Today, an effort is being made to integrate the school systems. At present education instruction is divided into orthodox teachings, laborite-sponsored schools, and public schools.

Mapai, socialist party similar to the British Laborites, has about 30 per cent of the electorate. Twenty-five percent is left-wing labor, or Mapam. The orthodox religious party, the Mizrahi, has 18 per cent.
