

Four Defending Champs Face EIBA Action Today

By ART BENNING

Only four Eastern champs will be seeking to repeat their performances this weekend when the 28th annual Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association tournament gets underway tonight at the University of Virginia, in Charlottesville.

Oddly enough, the four Champs will compete in the first four weights, and from there on up the battles for the crowns will be even wilder.

Last year's tournament at Syracuse featured a full lineup of eight 1949 champs and one 1948 champ, bringing the total to nine.

Expect Furious Action
But the lack of champions will not slow the pace of the boxers out to win individual and team titles. All but one of the runners-up will be back gunning for the title again, as well as a host of surprisingly good sophomores and veterans who didn't hit the top last year.

The Lions have two aspirants for titles who were runners-up last year. John Albarano, 145-lbs., gets another shot at the crown which he so narrowly missed out on last year. Albarano was decided by Syracuse's Tim Curley at 135-lbs. last year.

The other aspirant is Frank Gross, 135-lb. scrapper, who lost a decision to Syracuse's Ben Dolphin in last year's finals. Gross and Albarano switched weights this year, with Gross piling up a 6-1 record while Albarano accumulated a 5-2 log.

Gross Vs. Masterson
Gross faces the task of out-punching Virginia's Grover Masterson if he hopes to win the crown. Gross lost a close decision to the Cavalier two-time Eastern champ last weekend.

Albarano's toughest opposition will probably be defending champ Ben Dolphin, of Syracuse.

BULLETIN

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 8—Penn State's Frank Gross, Lou Kozzarek, and Jim Barr automatically entered the semifinal round of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association tournament here by drawing byes in this afternoon's pairings.

At the same time it was revealed that the Lions' rugged little Sam Marino will meet Len Coiner, Va., 125-lb.; John Albarano tests Jim McGee, Army, 145; Pat Heims meets Bill Miller, Syracuse, 155; Bob Potter will face George Karalian, Syracuse, 175; and Mario Santangelo will tangle with Virginia's Ed Bessell in the heavyweight division.

Dolphin decided Albarano in a dual meet bout this year.

Probably the Lions' best bet for an individual title is Lou Kozzarek at 165 lbs. With a 5-0-2 record this year, Kozzarek has beaten most of the big names in this weight in the East.

Captain Pat Heims, national runner-up at 155-lbs., is capable of taking all comers at this weight, especially if he catches fire as he did in last year's NCAA meet in Rec hall.

The Lions are also counting on 125-pounder Sam Marino to put up a good battle for the crown despite some exceptionally good veterans who will fight at this weight.

Snow Ridge Scene Of Lion Ski Finale

The Penn State ski team will trek to Snow Ridge, N.Y. this weekend for its final meet of the season.

More than 17 crack ski teams representing colleges from four states and Canada will compete at Snow Ridge. The colleges and universities scheduled to compete to date are Clarkson, RPI, Cornell, West Point, Union, Cortland, Champlain, Royal Military College of Canada, Stephens, Colgate, Lehigh, Williams, Hobart, Hamilton, Syracuse, and Rochester.

This is the fifth annual ski event to be held at Snow Ridge. Charlie Speidel, veteran Penn State mat coach, switched from boxing to wrestling in the early years of his athletic career.

Mat Tournament Opens

ending champions still in competition, all have been defeated once this year. The only other former titlist, Lehigh's Mike Filipos, won his title two seasons ago and is unbeaten this season.

Three mats will take up most of the space on the floor of the hall, and all three will be in constant use today by the 128 entries. Tomorrow, there will be only one mat in use. Two of the mat covers had to be borrowed by the College. State College high school provided one mat cover and several auxiliary mats, and Cornell will bring its bright red and white mat cover up from Ithaca.

Five officials will work all the matches. Timers and scorers will be assigned to each mat.

Scoring for the tourney will vary slightly from the regular dual meet system. Each team will get a point toward the total whenever a man scores a fall. Other team points are scored only when a man advances to the semi-finals. Each team is awarded six points for an individual championship, four points for second place, two points for third place and one point for fourth place.

Any school entering less than a full eight-man team is penalized five points for each man missing. Matches tied in point totals at the end of the third period can be decided by a referee's decision.

The seeding committee meets this morning at 11 o'clock in the Nittany Lion Inn. Any byes, made by teams not being represented in any weight classes, will also be announced then.

The teams, all arrived last night, except for Penn's coach and three men, and are quartered in the Nittany-Pollock dorm area. The College will provide shuttle bus service to and from Rec hall from the area every 15 minutes.

Weighing in started about 8:15 o'clock this morning, and was completed by the time the seeding committee met.

Gerry Leeman will coach Lehigh at the tournament until regular Coach Billy Sheridan arrives from the Pan-American games in South America. Penn's coach and three of his wrestlers will not arrive until today. Their car broke down en route. Gene Manfrini, Columbia's 157-lb. entrant is blind, but has compiled a commendable 7-1-1 record.

Wrestling Ain't Like It Used To Be In 1919

By DAVE COLTON

Wrestling has come a long way since 1919, the first time Penn State was host to the intercollegiate wrestling tournament.

Frey Lions' Lone Unbeaten Entrant In Intercollegiate

The only undefeated wrestler of the only undefeated team in the EIWA tournament is the distinction which belongs to Don Frey, Penn State's 147-lb. sophomore entrant.

The 20-year-old grappler from Newton, N. J., completed his undefeated season with a 2-1 decision over Cornell's Frank Bettucci, Saturday. This defeat snapped Bettucci's nine-match winning streak. Frey called it his toughest match of the year.

Championships Not New

Championship meets are nothing new to this physical education major. In 1948 Frey won the District III Olympic try-outs, and advanced to the sixth round of the final Olympic eliminations at Iowa. Last year, as a freshman at DuBois center, he won the Pennsylvania Mountain association 165-lb. championship.

At Newton high school Frey won the New Jersey State high school 145-lb. title in 1946, '47, and '48. In his freshman high school year he finished second in the State championships. He also played guard on the high school football team.

Penn State opponents who thought they saw double this season will be correct next year for Frey has a twin brother, Douglas, whose record is almost as impressive as Don's.

Because of sickness Doug was unable to compete this year and had to leave school during the first semester.

The March 5, 1919 issue of the Penn State Collegian stated—"Cornell rates as a darkhorse for the approaching IWA wrestling championships in the Armory, even though the Big Red has not participated in any intercollegiate meets."

All-College Team
The Collegian also pointed out that Cornell's team was composed of the winners of an All-university wrestling meet.

Collegian then stated that the Ithacans would be somewhat handicapped "since some of the youngest grapplers would undoubtedly lack confidence which comes only from a long period of wrestling."

Another Collegian sports story said "six of the strongest wrestling teams in the intercollegiate world will compete, and some of the cleverest wrestling ever seen in the Armory should be witnessed."

6 Teams Entered

The six teams entered in the tournament were: Cornell, Lehigh, Penn State, Penn, Columbia, and Princeton. Penn State repeated their feat of the previous year and won the tournament. Coach Charles Yerger's men had 23 points, and two individual champions. Lehigh was second with 20 points, and "darkhorse" Cornell finished third.

During the regular season the Lions lost two matches, the most a Penn State wrestling team had ever lost in a single year since the sport was inaugurated on the campus in 1910.

Quakers Drop Hoopmen, 61-58

The University of Pennsylvania snapped the lid down hard on Penn State's basketball season Wednesday night, as it nipped the Lions 61-58 at Philadelphia's Palestra.

In losing, the Lions finished the season with 14 wins and nine losses, while the victorious Quakers have won 18 out of 26 games.

Lion Captain Lou Lamie dropped 11 points through the hoop, bringing his one-year total to 319 points and his three-year total to 666. Against West Virginia, Monday, Lamie became the first cager in Penn State history to score over 300 points in a single season.

Sparking the Quaker's winning attack was their hard-working rebound artist Ernie Beck. The 6-foot 3-inch pivotman hit on 50 per cent of his shots for 25 points to lead the scoring parade. Hardy Williams, playing before hometown fans, was the Lions most serious threat, scoring 12 points. Williams made good on six out of ten tries.
