

Finalists For Forestry Ball Are Announced

Final contestants for sweetheart of the Forestry ball, who will be chosen at the dance Saturday night, are Cassandra Caraway, Hope Jeffries, and Claudia King.

The finalists were chosen by the faculty of the Penn State forestry school at Mont Alto, where all contest photographs were submitted.

Lyman Jackson, dean of the School of Agriculture, is chairman of the committee which will choose the sweetheart at the dance.

Dean Jackson will present all the finalists with prizes and flowers donated by Woodring's floral gardens.

The semi-formal dance will be held from 9 p.m. until midnight, and Darrell Rishel's orchestra will provide music. The American legendary character, Paul Bunyan, will be at the dance.

Tickets for the ball will be sold for $2 at Student Union desk in Old Main, at the Forestry building, and at the door.

Floriculture Frat Plans Admittance For College Girls

Co-eds will be admitted to Pi Alpha Xi, honorary floriculture fraternity, for the first time in its 25 year history.

The local Gamma chapter will take this ruling into consideration in tapping the 1951 initiates when it holds its annual ceremonies and banquet on April 3.

Paul F. Waitkus, president and official delegate last year reported this information at a convention held in Baltimore last week.

Dr. John G. Seeley, professor of floriculture, was elected national president of Pi Alpha Xi at the convention.

Professor Peter B. Pfahl, judge of the flower judging team; Don R. Egolf, Jr., president of the Gamma chapter; Richard S. Wieland and Charles H. Green also attended the convention.

Dean To Participate In Panel Discussion

Dr. Grace M. Henderson, dean of the School of Home Economics, will take part in a panel discussion on "Education for Life, Citizenship, and Work" at a statewide meeting in Harrisburg today and tomorrow.

The purpose of the meeting, which has been called by Gov. John S. Fine on the recommendation of the Pennsylvania Report to the Mid-Century White House Conference on Children and Youth, is to discuss how the report's recommendations can be put into effect.

AEPHI Conclave To Begin Friday

Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority will be hostess this week-end to chapters from the University of Pittsburgh, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and the University of Maryland at a three-day conclave. Forty-five visiting members of the sorority will attend the conclave.

Events for the week-end will include business meetings, informal parties, and banquets to be held at the Nittany Lion inn. A dance will be held Saturday night at Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity.

Philotes Announce Spring Dance Date

Philotes, social organization for independent women, announced April 28 as the date for its annual semi-formal dance at a meeting Monday night.

The dance is a private dance held every spring by Philotes. Margaret Muth, Helen Rosenbloom, and Dorothy Green will select a place for the dance.

Ruth Aaron, Betty McGee, and Audrey Lutz were appointed to the orchestra committee.

At a special meeting to be held April 2, more detailed plans will be discussed and committees will be named.

Bonn Mot—

Still, he was worried. The worst part was yet to come: he hadn't told his girl. But he had a soldier's courage if not a soldier's eyesight, and he went straight to her—after a little while. When she came downstairs to the dorm lobby, she looked pretty glum, and he figured she already knew. She is a remarkably pretty girl, and he realized that his physical handicap just about queered him with her—a pretty girl can have her pick of muscled 1-A's around this campus.

So he said to her, "Well, I guess you've heard—I'm 4-F, and I..." He was about to go into the noble phrases of renunciation, but he couldn't quite get them out, because his girl had launched herself at him, squealing, in a display of affection they still talk about in Simmons lounge.

So the Blind Bulgarian, as he is coming to be known, is currently sitting on top of the world. Like Porgy he's got his girl, he's got his song, and he's got his classification. He's still a little bit dazed by it all, but he's recovering rapidly.

The moral of this story, of course, is this: Ya wanna be the envy of every man, the darling of every woman? Ya think ya need physical culture? Nah. Stay a 97 pound weakling and get 4-F. It should happen to us.

Five Readers In Festivals

Five students were chosen by faculty members of the Speech department to represent the College at the Eastern Poetry Reading festival and the Pennsylvania Inter-collegiate Reading festival.

The students selected on the basis of performance were James Beaver, Phyllis Brenckman, Regina Friedman, Donald Colbert, and Ruth Johnson. Four of these students will participate in the Pennsylvania reading festival to be held at the College May 3 and 4, and one student will be the College's representative at the poetry festival to be held April 13 at Queens college in New York city.

Eighty Pennsylvania colleges will send students to Penn State for the reading festival prepared to read a group of short poems, a long poem, a short story, or a cutting from a play. At the poetry festival each student will read both a group of short poems and a long poem.

Dr. Bela Gold Is Seminar Speaker

Dr. Bela Gold, associate professor of economics and economic research and author of War-Time Economic Planning in Agriculture, will speak before a rural social science seminar in 202 Horticulture from 3 to 5 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

His topic will be "The Type of Planning Needed in Agriculture in This Period of War Mobilization."

Gold formerly was assistant division head, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. He has also served as economic consultant to the United States Senate subcommittee on war mobilization.

During World War II, Gold served as a staff member of the Agriculture department, where he made extensive study in agriculture planning.

"The Show-Off"

by GEORGE KELLY

Kelly's work retains heart, flavor, and humor. The tale of a Philadelphia braggart who raises pandemonium in a staid middle-class family is at once rueful and uproarious.
