

Reds Battle To Halt UN Push On Parallel

TOKYO, Saturday, March 17—(AP)—Red guns roared defiance on the central Korean warfront Friday near parallel 38. The Chinese threw reinforcements into the line against the Allied advance.

United Nations forces were less than 20 miles from the parallel — the old arbitrary boundary between North and South Korea.

A censorship blackout was thrown abruptly over Allied operations. Units smaller than the Eighth Army itself could not be identified.

The U.N. line stretched tightly from points north of liberated Seoul in western Korea to Kangnung on the east coast. Of this 120-mile front, the main Chinese defense appeared to be in a 30-mile-wide sector south of Chunchon in Central Korea.

Eight Miles From Parallel
Chunchon, eight air miles south of parallel 38, is 15 miles northwest of captured Hongchon. That area is 45 to 50 miles northeast of Seoul. U.S. Marines seized Hongchon Thursday after American First Cavalry troops had outflanked the former Red bastion on the west.

The Reds threw their heaviest artillery fire of the war at Allied forces advancing north of Hongchon toward Chunchon. Allied artillery thundered back with 50 shells for one. Fighter planes raked the Red-held ridges with fire bombs.

Censorship
The American ground troops then continued their advance, but distances, locations and identity of the troops were withheld by censorship.

AP correspondent William C. Barnard, on the central front, reported the Chinese were throwing reserves into the line. He said the 39th and 40th armies were identified on the front Friday for the first time in weeks.

Dispute Flares In Big 4 Talks

PARIS, March 16 —(AP)— A sharp exchange between Andrei Gromyko and Britain's Ernest Davies marked the stalemated junior Big Four conference today.

Davies said the Soviet deputy foreign minister's "negative attitude" toward revised Western proposals for an agenda caused him to wonder whether Russia really wants a foreign ministers' meeting.

Gromyko came right back and told Davies it was difficult for him to believe the British delegate could possibly doubt Russia's desire to hold such a meeting.

"Davies' suggestion is completely preposterous and I deny it categorically," Gromyko said.

Davies interjected that the Western powers have gone about as far as they can in meeting the Russians.

Deputy foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and Russia have been meeting here since March 5 to prepare for a conference of their chiefs on the world's political sore spots. Today's session was the 11th. They will meet again tomorrow.

Western spokesmen agreed the day passed without progress.

Connally Opens Talk On Defense

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)— Senator Connally (D-Tex) said today the United States and its allies can survive an atomic war with Russia if they join now in building their defenses.

Opening a momentous Senate debate on the nation's security policy, the veteran Democratic leader declared there is still time to arm while American atomic superiority protects Western Europe from attack.

If the Allies seize this opportunity to consolidate their military strength, he said, "We need not fear the day when the Soviet Union has a stockpile of atomic weapons large enough to threaten the peace."

Not Enough
"Because by that time," he predicted, "atomic weapons will not be enough to crumble the defenses that we and our allies will have erected."

Senator Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, spoke of sending four more divisions of American ground troops to Europe to reinforce Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's international army.

Debate Resolution
The Senate is debating a resolution which approves President Truman's plan to dispatch these troops, but which declares it to be the sense of the Senate that Congress authorize all future troop assignments abroad.

Connally said he did not approve of the limiting section of the resolution.

"In a day when atomic attack is possible, I don't want to see the Congress begin to whittle away at the powers of the President as commander-in-chief," he stated.

On trial are Julius Rosenberg, 34, an electrical engineer; his wife, Ethel, 35, and radar expert Morton Sobell, 33. They are charged with conspiring to spy for Russia in wartime. The maximum penalty is death.

Dorm Residents Discuss Vacant Dorm Question

The possibility of allowing students to live in vacant dorms in the Nittany-Pollock area without eating in the area dining hall, was presented by John Laubach, president of Nittany dorm council, at the first luncheon-discussion meeting between members of the administration and students yesterday.

The students represented Nittany, Pollock, and West dorm councils.

Shower Heads Discussed
The change of shower heads in West dorms was also discussed. Russell E. Clark, director of housing, told the group that the shower heads in the men's dorms had been interchanged with those in the women's dorms. He gave no indication that they would be returned.

Another item brought up in the informal discussion, which was held in the West dorm council room following lunch, was whether freshmen should be segregated or mixed with upperclassmen. G. M. Guthrie, director of resident counseling, said that he had heard opposition to intermixing freshmen. He said that some upperclassmen had complained of being assigned to dorm sections containing a large number of freshmen.

Thomas Durek, West dorm council president said yesterday afternoon that most students favored segregation.

Acheson Invites Russians To New Jap Peace Talk

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson extended a new invitation to Soviet Russia today to rejoin the discussions on a peace treaty with Japan.

Two weeks ago Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik unexpectedly broke off the talks on treaty terms he had been carrying on for months with Ambassador John Foster Dulles.

Moscow at the same time heatedly attacked the United States for seeking a "separate" peace. That appeared to end any idea that Russia would have any part of the treaty, especially when Dulles responded with a denunciation of communist aims in Asia.

John Foster Dulles

Working On Text

Acheson told his news conference that while Malik's action was very disappointing, he hoped it would not continue to be the attitude of the Soviet government.

He reported that Dulles, as President Truman's special representative in the treaty preparations, is now trying to put together an actual text. And the secretary added there is no reason why this text should be found objectionable by the Soviet or any other government.

With this renewed bid for Soviet cooperation Acheson coupled an endorsement of the attack on Moscow's motives which Dulles made in an address at Philadelphia this week. The secretary termed entirely sound an observation by Dulles that "the despots would murder peace."

Acheson told reporters also he hoped very much that Britain and Iran can work out a solution of their difficulties over Iranian oil which would benefit both and keep the flow of oil to those markets to which it has gone in the past. This would avoid any diversion to Russia, a threatened result of the Iranian Parliament this week to nationalize the rich holdings of the Anglo-Iranian Oil company.
