

Hillel Foundation To Sponsor Annual Carnival Tomorrow

Hillel foundation will sponsor its annual Purim carnival at the foundation from 8 to 12 o'clock tomorrow night.

This carnival commemorates the Purim festival, which is the anniversary of the deliverance of the people of Israel from Persia, as recorded in the Biblical book of Esther.

The carnival is headed by Natalie Alder, chairman of the social committee, and Jacqueline Cohen and Julius Marcus, co-chairmen of the United Jewish Appeal campaign for overseas relief and reconstruction. The carnival is the official opening of this campaign and all its proceeds will go towards UJA causes.

Ten booths will be erected by fraternities, sororities, and independent groups and cups will be awarded for booths which are the most ingenious, best decorated and most profitable. A Purim king and queen will be elected and crowned.

The carnival is open to all students on campus.

(Continued from page one) follow. Richard Wrentmore will be the soloist. John Staub will be the accompanist. The Varsity quartet is next on the program with "Rigoletto Quartet," a travesty number. Members of the group are John Cox, first tenor, William Detweiler, second tenor, Robert Neff, baritone, and Bruce Tharp, bass. Eugene Stohn will be the accompanist.

The concert will proceed with another group of numbers by the Glee club; "The Rangers' Song," by McCarthy-Tierney, "Requiem," by Stevenson-Bantock, "Away To Rio," arranged by Bartholomew, "Open Our Eyes," by Will Macfarlane, "The Donkey Serenade," by Rudolph Friml, and "The Musical Trust," by Joseph Clokey.

The next number, "Lo! Hear The Gentle Lark," by Bishop-Howorth, will be directed by Frank Allison. John Cox will be soloist. He will be assisted by George Jeffries. "Jonny Schmoker," an old German number, will follow. It will be presented by the Hy-Los, a group of 16 men.

Following the intermission, John Staub will play a piano solo, "Rhapsody In G Minor," by Johannes Brahms. The program will then conclude with a series of numbers by the Glee club; "Students March Song," by Sigmund Romberg, "Your Eyes Have Told Me So," by Blaufuss-Warnick, "The Parade of The Teddy Bears," by John Bratton, "De Animals A-Comin'," a spiritual, "There Is Nothin' Like A Dame," by Richard Rodgers, and "The Sleigh," by Richard Kountz. ### Loyalty Oath—

Dean of Men H. K. Wilson said he then could see no reason for the oath, as did cabinet members Richard Bard, Marlin Brenner, and Huber Stevens.

"It is a sad state of affairs when we must persecute the idealist in order to be practical politicians," said Leader.

Challenges Effectiveness
The effectiveness of the bill was challenged by Allegheny Democrat Bernard B. McGinnis. "Such a law would never catch a single communist," he said. "It will serve only to offend some school teachers and other persons conscientiously opposed to taking oaths."

Other dissenting Democrats were Philadelphia's Anthony J. DiSilvestro and Martin Silvert, Allegheny's Elmer J. Holland, and Lawrence's Samuel G. Neff. Sen. Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong) sponsored the measure.

On campus, the Penn State chapter of the American Association of University Professors so far has planned no action on the loyalty oath issue. Dr. M. Nelson McGeary, head of the group, said last night. The next regular AAUP meeting here is scheduled for April 18, he said.

The national AAUP has taken no stand against loyalty oaths as such, although it has opposed such oaths in individual cases.
