Senate Defeats GOP Move On Troop Issue

WASHINGTON, April 3—(P)—The Senate defeated tonight, 56 to 31, a Republican move to command the President to consult Congress before sending more than four divisions of U.S. troops to Europe.

Administration forces rallied to beat down a motion by Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) which had that aim. He proposed to send a pending troops resolution back to committee with instructions to return it in the form of a bill which would become law.

The resolution, as it stands, is only an advisory expression of the Senate's views.

The administration victory apparently cleared away the last major barrier to Senate approval of the resolution. Its adoption would put Senators on record as favoring the dispatch of four U.S. divisions to join the two in Europe already assigned to the North Atlantic defense force.

The resolution—not binding on the President—also would have the Senate say that no more than the four divisions should be sent in peacetime "without further Congressional approval."

President Truman has said he has full power to deploy troops as he sees fit and will consult Congress only out of politeness.

In mid-evening, the Senate, by a 52 to 29 vote, rejected an amendment by Senator Mundt (R-S.D.) which would have advised the President to obtain Congressional approval before sending over the four divisions to Western Europe.

Across the mountainous peninsula where two Republic of Korea divisions already were north of 38 in force, General MacArthur made a surprise inspection within 500 yards of the front. It was his 15th flying visit to the war zone.

There MacArthur gave what amounted to a reply to the Communist high command which had flatly rejected his March 23 offer to negotiate a truce in the field.

"Our strategy remains unchanged in Korea," he told top air, sea and ground commanders who accompanied him. "It is based on maneuver and not positional warfare."

He made clear that the vastly outnumbered United Nations army has no intention of yielding the initiative it maintains.

By nightfall MacArthur was back at his Tokyo headquarters where he appraised fighting conditions as still favorable.

Pitt Paper Attacks State Loyalty Oath

An attack on the proposed state loyalty oath was launched editorially last week by the Pitt News, the university's student paper.

Calling the measure a clear example of thought control, the paper urged students and faculty to go on record as unalterably opposed to the loyalty oath.

Oath Passed State Senate

The oath bill passed the state senate a week ago. It would require all state employees, including teachers at state-supported schools, to swear that they belong to subversive organizations.

"If (this measure) becomes law," the News said, "we will have taken a long step toward that brand of totalitarianism that we fought in the last war and are currently fighting in Korea."

Cites California Example

The News cited the loyalty oath imposed upon the University of California faculty by that school's board of regents for having driven away some of the leading teachers there.

"If we are going to fight the communist brand of authoritarian government, then we expect to fight the same kind of government at home. And fight it we will," the News said.

The editorial concluded, "THIS BILL MUST NOT BECOME LAW!"
