Seniors Must Take Finals

Draft Exam Not A 'Must' For All Men

Students ranking in designated percentiles of their classes will not, under present plans, have to pass aptitude tests to rate draft deferments, General Lewis Hershey announced Wednesday.

Col. George Irvin, chief of the Selective Service field division, advised men within these deferred groups to take the tests anyway in case the deferment system is later changed.

The groups which will be automatically deferred for one additional year will be the first half of the present freshman class, two-thirds of the present sophomore class, and three-quarters of the present junior class. The rankings will be on the basis of male students only.

Must Score 70

Men not falling into these percentiles must score 70 in the aptitude tests to be given May 26, June 16, and June 30 in order to be deferred. The top half of the senior class, and any other seniors who score 75 in the tests, may be deferred for graduate work.

Colleges will determine individually whether the percentages are to be determined within each curriculum or throughout the school as a whole.

Applications for the aptitude tests will be at draft boards on or shortly after April 12, and should be filled out and mailed at once. Penn State will be one of 1000 testing centers throughout the country.

Council Downs Two Proposals

AIM Town council Wednesday evening voted down two of five proposed amendments to the AIM constitution.

The two proposals were (1) That AIM representatives-at-large must be chosen by popular election. They are now elected by the councils. (2) Limit grants and loans to $100 during a school year and require a two-thirds vote for the approval of all such grants and loans. A budget report would be required before the vote.

In other business, the council went on record as supporting Student Affairs Director Wilmer E. Kenworthy's plan for holding faculty teas for the town students.

The council passed a motion to jointly sponsor a dance with the West Dorm council April 14. Members also decided to donate flowers for chapel services on a Sunday in the near future.

James Worth, chairman of the student activity card file committee, spoke to the group before the regular business meeting.

Industry Renews 2 Chemistry Grants

Continuation of a fellowship and a graduate scholarship in chemistry were made possible by two grants from industry to the College. They were approved at a meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees last week-end.

The Allied Chemical and Dye corporation contributed $1200, plus tuition, for continuation of the fellowship during 1951-52.

An American Cyanamid company grant of $1500 provides for a graduate scholarship during the coming year.

Dr. W. C. Fernelius, head of the Department of Chemistry, said that students receiving the grants are not required to work on specific projects.

Gross Only Winner In Boxing NCAA's

By ART BENNING

Penn State saw its title hopes go by the boards in the early stages of the NCAA Boxing tournament in East Lansing, Mich., as only one of its four entries survived the preliminary round.

Frank Gross won a unanimous decision over Gonzaga University's Jim Reilly in the 135-lb. class, pressing the fight all the way.

The Lions' only undefeated boxer of the season, Lou Koszarek, went down to defeat in his 165-lb. preliminary bout yesterday afternoon against San Jose State's Nick Diez. Scoring of the decision was not available.

According to a telegram received from East Lansing Wednesday night giving the pairings of Penn State men, Koszarek was to make his first appearance in the ring last night against Michigan State's Leon Hamilton.

Koszarek Unbeaten

Koszarek's previous record was 7-0-2.

In the crowd pleaser of the evening, John Albarano, the Lions' Eastern champ, lost a split decision to Denny Orsak of Louisiana State university. The bout was one of the most evenly matched of the tournament thus

Soccer Squad Arrives Home From Iran

The College soccer team, arrived in State College last night after a 16-day trip to the Middle East, visiting Iran on a good-will mission for the U.S. State department.

Coach Bill Jeffrey and his party of 16 arrived in New York yesterday with high regards for both the players and people of Iran. The group was impressed by the friendly greetings they received and the apparent lack of anti-American feeling in the country.

The Middle East oil center has been troubled in past months by political uprisings, at times speaking harshly against U.S. personalities.

The actual homecoming party was composed of six or seven boys since some stopped at their homes and will return to campus

Senate's Unanimous Vote Backs Committee Report

Graduating seniors will continue to take final examinations. The College senate yesterday refused to eliminate them.

The senate unanimously approved the academic standards committee's recommendation that the finals be retained. Both the senior class and All-College cabinet had unanimously voted to ask their elimination.

Prof. Victor Beede's committee considered the proposal during the past month. John Erickson, senior class president, and Marlin Brenner, parliamentarian for All-College cabinet, met several times with the senate group. The senate sent the proposal to committee at the March meeting, after President Milton S. Eisenhower read it.

Collegian Not Present

Neither Brenner nor Erickson was present at the senate yesterday. The Collegian was not permitted to have a reporter at the meeting.

The committee report listed three reasons for retaining the finals. They said the examinations integrate the work of a course, train the student to think under pressure, and supply an achievement yardstick at the end of a course. Provision for certain courses not requiring finals are covered under senate regulations 32 and 33, the committee said.

(These regulations provide that course finals may be eliminated by the department and the executive officer of the school concerned, and that students may be excused from finals in the same way.)

Finals Proposal 'Bust' — Erickson

By BUD FENTON

Senior class president John Erickson told All-College cabinet last night that the attempt to eliminate final examinations for seniors was a "bust" but that he hoped "we've planted the seed for further efforts in the future."

In making his report on the project, Erickson said that the senate committee that discussed the finals with Marlin Brenner and himself seemed to feel that "we were attacking the system of education."

The committee felt that, without the examination, everything is lost, according to Erickson. He added that "we didn't feel that they were reasonable."

James Worth, chairman of the drinking colloquy committee, appeared before cabinet to ask for a postponement of the colloquy scheduled for April 20 and 21.

Worth said that only one of three nationally-known speakers contacted could accept the invitation to speak during the program because of short notice. The committee chairman asked cabinet to postpone the colloquy until next fall.

President Robert Davis said that it would be recommended to the new cabinet which will be in office next year, after cabinet granted the postponement.

Bids For Fellowship To Close Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the last day to file applications for the John W. White fellowship, Dr. Robert Weber, chairman of the senate committee on scholarships and awards, said yesterday.

The fellowship provides $600 for graduate study.

Application forms should be filed with Dr. Weber in 211 Osmond laboratory. Students applying will be notified to report for an interview with the committee next Friday night.

IFC-Panhel Ball Rolls Tonight At 9

Ray Anthony's orchestra, straight from record-breaking engagements at New York's Paramount theater, Chicago's Cafe Rouge, and Philadelphia's Click, will play at the IFC-Panhel ball from 9 to 1 o'clock tonight in Recreation hall.

Tickets, priced at $4, are on sale all day today at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Tickets will also be on sale at the door tonight.

Spring Carnival Profits To Go For Loan Fund

By MARV KRASNANSKY

All-College cabinet last night approved a proposal to set up a cabinet loan fund from the profits of the Spring week carnival.

The fund would make available short term loans for needy students. The proposal for the loan fund was submitted by William Zakor, Spring week committee chairman.

Zakor noted that last year's carnival netted $800, and said he anticipated an even greater profit this year.

Carnival Schedule

The carnival will start Tuesday, May 15, and will last through May 19, Zakor said. The schedule calls for:

Tuesday evening — A parade followed by the crowing of Miss Penn State of 1951.

Wednesday — A special event climaxed by the Star-Lite dance on the lawn of Old Main.

Thursday — The third annual Spring carnival.

Friday — Senior Ball.

Saturday — Athletic events in the afternoon and fraternity house parties at night.

The carnival site will be the parking lot behind Osmond lab-

Thespian Show 'Anything Goes' Hits New High In Music, Laughs

By LEE STERN

To paraphrase Mr. Cole Porter, it's pretty nearly the top. Anyway, "Anything Goes" is certainly the best Thespian production this reviewer has ever seen.

And the audience in Schwab auditorium last night apparently loved every minute of it, judging from the prolonged applause and loud laughter.

The show will continue in Schwab tonight and tomorrow night and tomorrow afternoon. Tickets, priced at $1.20, are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Some Minor Flaws

This doesn't mean that there are no flaws in the production. There are some, but they are minor ones. Certainly the overall presentation made for a completely enjoyable evening.

All the major roles were capably handled. Ed Rolf, as Billy Crocker, dynamic young broker, displayed a fine stage voice in both singing and acting. There were a few times when his actions seemed rehearsed and lacking in spontaneity, but his commanding singing and good comedy sense more than made up for it.

Pat Hale was properly blowy as the tempestuous Reno Sweeney, but once, just once, I'd like to see her let herself go completely. That would be something to see.

Bird Excellent

Joe Bird, as the "Rev. Dr. Moon," in reality America's public enemy number 13, turned in an excellent performance. His portrayal of the timid, bumbling gangster was one of the high spots of the evening.

Nancy Thomas was competent as Hope Harcourt, the typical sweet young thing without whom no musical comedy would be complete.

Tom Lewis created a believable caricature of a prim Englishman, Sir Evelyn Oakleigh.

Harry Woolever has outdone himself with his spirited, colorful choreography. The dance routines, almost perfectly captured the spirit of the wonderful Cole Porter music.

Precision Poor

The precision and timing of the dance groups was, on the whole, rather sloppy. In the hornpipe dance to the breezy "Lady Fair" this was particularly noticeable. Probably one of the best-planned routines in the show, it was marred because of faulty coordination.

The Thespians picked an almost sure-fire hit this time. The show has everything — Cole Porter songs, good comedy lines, reasonably beautiful girls not overdressed, and, of course, sex. Both in Mr. Porter's lyrics and in the book itself, this is probably the sexiest show ever seen on this campus.
