

Lion Coats --

 custom was adopted by the fairer sex. The co-eds adapted the outfit by changing from an entire suit to just a jacket.

Through the years the custom grew to be a part of the College itself. Yearly contests were held and prizes awarded to the senior who had most ingeniously decorated his coat. Autographs, Lions, other school symbols, and of course the pin-up girls from Petty to the hour glass figure variety adorned the winning coats.

During the war years the custom lagged, but last year an attempt was made to re-inaugurate the coats. It met with only moderate success, but this year's committee hopes to re-establish the tradition firmly.

Lion coat committee chairman Alfred Von Artx says, "It is the hope of the committee that each of the members of the class of 1951 will get his coat and help keep the old tradition rolling."

In the past the coats were worn as a reminder to professors that the student was a graduating senior and that a helpful push in that direction by the professor would be appreciated.

Other seniors serving on the committee this year beside Von Artx are Carlon O'Malley and Jo Ann Esterly.

5 O'Clock Theatre To Present "Lissa"

Today's Five O'Clock theatre presentation will be "Lissa," a one-act play by Ted Jones.

Betty Lou Morgan is director, Wes Pfirman is technician, and Jeff Gray is assistant technician.

In the cast are Sonia Goldstein, Don Colbert, Ed Girod, and Bob Lucksavage.

Five O'Clock theatre productions are presented each week at 5 p.m., in the Little theatre, 11 Old Main. Audiences are admitted free to the script-in-hand performances of student-written plays.

Brumbaugh Gives Lecture On Cloisters

To the Seventh-Day Baptists who lived at the Ephrata Cloisters it was a sin to own property, G. Edwin Brumbaugh, a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, said here yesterday.

He spoke on the restoration of the Cloisters at a Simmons lecture. About 150 students and faculty heard the lecture.

Conrad Beissel

Referring to other unusual customs of the ascetic sect, Brumbaugh said their day began at 6 p.m. From midnight until 2 a.m. the group held religious services.

Conrad Beissel founded the Cloisters early in the 18th century. Brumbaugh said Beissel's purpose was to retreat from the materialism of the world. Beissel, like so many other persons living at that time was influenced by the doctrine of quietism, according to Brumbaugh.

This was the belief that retirement from the material world would give a person power to communicate with God.

Beissel, who advocated celibacy, wrote a book, "Marriage: The Penitentiary of Mortal Man."

Brumbaugh used slides in conjunction with his lecture. The pictures showed the austere character of the buildings at the Ephrata settlement.

Soph Class To Meet Tomorrow At 7 p.m.

William Bair, sophomore class president, announced yesterday that the sophomore class will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in 105 White Hall.

Bair stated that the purpose of the meeting will be to organize the group. Suggestions will be accepted for spring social activities and for determining class colors.

New IFC Officers To Be Installed

The new Interfraternity council officers will be officially installed during the IFC banquet at the Nittany Lion inn next Monday at 6:45 p.m.

Julian Cook, banquet chairman, said A. R. Warnock, dean of men emeritus, will be the guest speaker. Cook said the banquet would cost $2.60 per person. Two members from each fraternity will be eligible to attend, he said.

The new officers are Stanley Wengert, president; James Wharton, vice-president; and John Allison, secretary-treasurer. Retiring officers are Harold Leinbach, president; Curtis Wessner, vice-president; and Alan Uhl, secretary-treasurer.

Thomas Hanna and Kent Tomlinson are also members of the banquet committee.

 from the school, from which they have not received any assistance this year."

The club is sponsoring an all-College chess tournament for students, which begins tonight. Movsovich reminded all those who registered for competition to play their matches on schedule. Prizes will be awarded to the winners.

FBLA Will Hold Meeting Tonight

The Future Business Leaders of America will hold a meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in 317 Willard hall, John Beiter, president, said.

The purpose of the meeting is to initiate several members to the degree of assistant. He also reported that there would be four speakers at the meeting to talk on "Practice Teaching in the Business Field."

Jennings Is Added To Air ROTC Staff

Capt. Richard F. Jennings, formerly stationed at Hamilton Air Force base, Calif., has reported for duty with the Air Force ROTC detachment at the College.

Lt. Col. Jack W. Dieterle, professor of air science and tactics, also reported that T/Sgt. William G. Gicking, who reported to the unit in March, has been promoted to master sergeant.

40 AF Students Return From Trip

Forty Air Force ROTC advanced students at the College recently returned from a two-day tour of Air Force installations in the eastern United States.

Under the supervision of Lt. Jack W. Dieterle and a staff of four flying officers, the group toured Olmstead Air Force base maintenance shops, and jet engine buildup and flight operations facilities at Middletown, Pa. They then flew to Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, O., for a tour of aero-medical, propeller, and armament laboratories.

After flight line familiarization with the giant B-36, the entire group flew to Middletown and then returned to State College.

Rodgers Will Speak At IRC Meeting

Allan Rodgers, assistant professor of geography, will speak at the International Relations club meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in McElwain lounge.

His topic will be "Russian Industrial Potential."

Rodgers is a member of the Committee on Soviet Studies of the Association of American Geographers. He has studied at the Russian institute at Columbia. At present he is conducting research on the Soviet Union.

Refreshments will be served after the lecture.
