

Dorm Radio Tests Called Successful

Tests with "wired wireless" in Atherton, Simmons and the West Dorms over the week-end were termed successful by the campus radio station committee.

Three students, Mahlon Knott, Edwin Greenberg and Sheldon Penman, broadcast a jam session and recorded music Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings. The broadcast was carried into the dorms through the power lines.

The West Dorm Council yesterday issued questionnaires to area residents questioning them on the advisability of having laundry case service from the West Dorm post office.

The questions are:
1. Do you send your laundry cases home, and if so, how often?
2. Would you use the laundry case mailing service if it would be installed in the West Dormitories post office?

The council will try to get laundry case service from the post office through proper student government channels, John L. Clark, council spokesman, said. The council will take action if it feels the response toward such facilities is favorable.

The questionnaires must be placed in the paper slot in the West Dorm post office not later than Saturday, Clark said.

During one Irvin Hall broadcast, a dance also was going on in Irvin Hall.

Closed Circuit System
Over 100 colleges use the closed circuit broadcasting system. The signal is transmitted by power lines to places on campus. Fraternity lounges and other off campus living units can use special telephone lines.

The committee said that if the campus radio station receives the senior class gift, it could begin broadcasting almost immediately. Skull and Bones and Parminous, senior men's hat societies, are campaigning for the station.

Better Speech Facilities
R. T. Oliver, professor of speech, said that the station would provide better facilities for radio and speech work and cultural appeal for all students.

The proposed program for the station includes discussion of campus problems, interviews of athletes and heads of organizations. Outstanding lectures could be broadcast directly or tape recorded.

Help To Student Government
Oliver believes that a campus radio station could do for student government what television did for the Kefauver hearings. Discussions of contemporary events and interdepartmental panels also will be broadcast.

Dramatic shows, comedy programs and news programs will be broadcast by the speech, dramatics and music departments.

It would cost from $5000 to $6000 to put the program into effect. The College already has a radio station in Sparks.

Balloting On Gift Begins Tomorrow

Seniors will begin voting tomorrow to choose their class gift.

The suggested ways for spending the $8000 gift fund are: a campus radio station, a student press, an ambulance, a gridiron statue, a gate at the junction of Route 322 and Pollock road, a scholarship fund and a grand piano for Schwab auditorium.

A preferential ballot will appear in tomorrow's Collegian. The voting will take place Wednesday through Friday in Old Main. Ballots also will be available there.

You can really help the GI's—join the Red Cross blood drive Thursday at the State College Methodist church.

William Zakor, editor of the 1951 edition, said that the first shipments of the book would arrive later this week and that the schedule for distribution would be announced then.

PSCA Auction Makes Profit Of $300 Saturday

Gross profits for the Penn State Christian Association's auction, held Saturday afternoon outside the TUB, were $328.92. This includes expenses totaling approximately $60.

Articles selling for the highest amounts of money were a used 1937 panel truck donated by Antes Motor Sale Company, for $35; a lamb donated by Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Henning, for $25; a football autographed by Coach Charles "Rip" Engle for $25, and bronze candlesticks from President and Mrs. Milton S. Eisenhower, for $24.

The soccer ball used by the soccer team on their recent trip to Iran, autographed by Coach Bill Jeffrey, sold for $15.

John Cox, who emceed the all-College talent show sponsored by the Association of Independent Men, was auctioneer. The auction was sponsored to help offset a deficit in the PSCA's budget.

Among the items for sale were household furniture, children's clothes, books, sports equipment, jewelry, women's clothes, men's clothes and foods and baked goods.

Many students and townspeople offered their talents and services for the event. These included offers to wash windows and cars, mow lawns, repair a radio, shine shoes, darn socks, baby-sit, wash clothes, train a dog, call a barn dance and Dr. Yeagley's offer to "hold the world on his head."

Men To Debate W. Virginia Today

A West Virginia twosome will face William Klisanin and Frank Fasick of the College debating team at 4 p.m. today in 305 Sparks. Klisanin and Fasick will take the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved: That the Hoover-Kennedy plan of defense is practical."

Dave Lewis will be chairman. The debate is open to the public and there will be an open forum afterward.

Harry Kondourajian and Clair George will argue the same question against West Virginia in a radio debate at 8:30 tonight over WMAJ.

Bridge Club Tourney Begins Tomorrow

The Penn State Bridge Club has announced a two-session, total-score bridge tournament to be held tomorrow and next Wednesday at the TUB. The winning pair will receive a trophy.

Play at both sessions will start at 6:30 p.m. The tournament is open to all, but only College undergraduates are eligible for the trophy.

This is the second annual tournament sponsored by the Bridge Club. Last year the winners were James Homire and Harry Kaufmann.

Lock Haven Students Will Address PSCA

Delegates from Lock Haven State Teachers College will describe the workings of the Christian Association at their college to members of the Penn State Christian Association at their meeting, 7:30 tonight in 304 Old Main.

The meeting has been organized so that the two Christian Associations could unite in a joint meeting to share ideas and receive suggestions for improving their programs.

Shades of Marconi

EDWIN GREENBERG, left, and Sheldon Penman broadcast jazz and classics by way of a "wired wireless" system in Irvin Hall Saturday and Sunday. The music, picked up by radios in the West Dorms, Atherton and Simmons, was transmitted by the power lines. The students used the broadcast as a test for the proposed campus radio station. They used channels 680 and 700 for the test which monaters who toured campus trying to pick up the broadcast termed successful.

Debaters Place Third At Carnegie

Winning six debates and dropping two, Penn State won third place in the first annual Carnegie Tartan Tournament Saturday at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Howard University, Washington D.C., came in first with seven wins and one loss, thus permanently retiring the tournament trophy. Duquesne University's team followed in second place, winning six and losing two.

The Penn State affirmative team—Robert Alderdice and David Lewis—defeated St. Francis College, the University of Rochester, and Duquesne University, and lost to the University of Pittsburgh.

John Boddington and Clair George, arguing the negative side, defeated the Seton Hall College, Purdue University, and Carnegie Institute of Technology, and dropped their debate with Howard.

Although Duquesne tied with the College team in number of debates won, Duquesne had a "slightly higher point rating," according to Marlin Brenner. Ten points was given for each debate won, and a bonus was awarded which was based upon the caliber of opposition each team met.

The topic of the debate was this year's national intercollegiate question, "Resolved: That the non-Communist nations should form a new international organization."

Twenty-two college debate teams from four states and the District of Columbia participated in the tournament. It was the first time that an interstate college debate tourney of this size has been staged in Pittsburgh since before World War II.

KDR Wins Scholarship Trophy

By JOHN PAKKANEN

Kappa Delta Rho was awarded the scholarship trophy at the Interfraternity Council banquet in the Nittany Lion Inn last night.

The award, presented by Harold Leinbach, outgoing council president, is awarded to the fraternity making the biggest improvement in scholarship during a semester. The previous holder of the cup was Alpha Phi Alpha.

Wengert Installed

Stanley Wengert was installed as the new council president at the close of the banquet. James Wharton became new vice-president, and John Allison was installed as secretary-treasurer.

Guest speaker Arthur Warnock, dean emeritus of men and president of the National Interfraternity Conference, predicted a normal number of freshmen on campus next year.

He suggested a "Know Your America Week," a mandate of the last national conference, to be held next autumn during homecoming. He suggested adopting such a theme for the weekend fraternity displays.

"A positive approach," he said, "is needed to understand the fundamental concepts of the American system and its differences with Communism."

Understand Fundamentals

He asked the fraternities to figure out some method of helping a national movement to promote character building as a practical force. He praised the idea of substituting community service for hell week and said that the adaptation of the idea is a spreading trend in the country.

Dorm Council To Give Blood On Thursday

By DAVE JONES

The West Dorm Council, in an effort to stimulate interest in the current, campus blood donor campaign, last night requested its members to give blood in the drive.

Council members will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the West Dorm lobby and go to the bloodmobile in a group.

The council appropriated money from its treasury to pay for the casting of a die for activity keys for members. Each member, will however pay for the cost of his own key. Charles Brewer was appointed chairman of a committee to handle key arrangements. He said the die would cost about $20.

After discussing a proposed amendment to the council constitution for over 45 minutes, members voted the amendment down. The amendment dealt with terms of office and election of council officers.

James Dunlap, welfare committee chairman, said his committee would hold weekly meetings with the food service to discuss food problems in the area. He also said favorable response were already being received on the laundry box-service survey begun yesterday.

Dunlap reported that his committee was working with the Nittany Council on guest meal tickets for the dining halls. Action is still forthcoming, he said.

Thomas Durek, council president, told members that Harry Shank and William Souleret will work in conjunction with Frank Simes, resident advisor, on plans for an open house on May 12. He also said a committee was working on awards for area men who are outstanding in various fields.

The council invited the Association of Independent Men to use the West Dorm lounge on May 19 for a senior ball week-end house party.

A committee was appointed to plan a banquet for council members at the end of the semester. Committee members are Brewer, chairman; John Clark, Robert Fatzinger, Joseph Galati, and Larry Gregor.
