

Col'umn What You Want

By DAVE COLTON

Princeton scrambled to the top in the District II battle for baseball supremacy by defeating Georgetown 3-1 in a crucial game Saturday. The victory moved Princeton's record to 13-2 for the season, while Georgetown now has a 12-3 slate. In another important game, Hofstra scored a run in the last of the eighth to edge Queens College narrowly and remain among the East's collegiate leaders with a 12-3 record.

During the last Tuesday's game with Dickinson, head baseball manager Robert Speicher remarked to some of us on State's bench that converted-outfielder Stan Laganosky had been doing a great job on first base and hadn't committed an error all season. No sooner had he finished speaking than pitcher Owen Dougherty threw to Lag and picked a runner off first. Big Lag started the rundown and threw to second but his heave was wild and went into center field for his first error of the year. After the inning was over and the players returned to the bench we mentioned the incident to Lag. Shortstop Paul Mowry jokingly said to second baseman Bill Mihalich, "You haven't made an error yet, have you Bill?" You guessed it. The next inning Mihalich bobbed an easy grounder for his first miscue of the season. No wonder ballplayers are superstitious.

One of the most improved players on Coach Joe Bedenk's team is shortstop Mowry. Paul got a chance to start the first game of the year because regular third baseman Harry Little was on the soccer trip to Iran, and shortstop Chris Tonnelly moved over to third to replace Little, leaving the shortstop duties to Mowry. Tonnelly broke his ankle, and Mowry remained at short. He is hitting .278 and has miscued only once in 20 chances. Besides, he has repeatedly robbed enemy batters of potential hits over second base. Twice during the Dickinson contest he made beautiful gloved-hand stops of line drives.

Outfielder Sil Cerchie is due to explode with base hits one of these days. Sil, potentially one of the best hitters on the club is batting only .174. Yet he continues to powder the ball in practice. During Friday's practice sessions he drove a tremendous homer to left, and also had a triple.

Germans Vie For Olympic Committee

VIENNA, May 8 —(AP)—West Germany and East Germany must get together if they want to take part in the Olympic Games, the International Olympic committee decided today.

A German Olympic committee, formed entirely of West Germans, was admitted unanimously to the IOC.

But, the Germans were told, they will be kicked out again unless East German athletes are allowed to compete on an equal basis with West Germans for places on a German Olympic team.

Two Israel Groups

It was almost the same thing the IOC yesterday told the two committees seeking admission of Israel. The two Israel groups were told to get together by Jan. 1, 1952, and they would be eligible for the 1952 games.

The two German groups, however, were ordered to appear before an Olympic commission at Lausanne, Switzerland, on May 20 and 21.

Otto Mayer, chancellor of the IOC, told a press conference that "West Germany is more important because it has 60 million people while East Germany has about 22 million. But we must have the East Germans, too. We cannot accept two committees from one country."

Formed Committee

East Germany had formed an Olympic committee recently and sent a representative here to seek approval.

Mayer said, however, the executive commission had decided last week to order the two German committees to combine.

He added that the East German committee was agreeable to such a combination.

"We think the West Germans will be, too," Mayer said.

Konstantin Adrianov of Russia, who was elected to the Olympic committee yesterday, spoke in favor of admitting the present German committee. He also urged that the committee be expanded to include the East Germans.

Bad Shooting Answer To Lacrosse Defeat

By TOM SAYLOR

What makes coaches gray?

Lacrosse Coach Nick Thiel and his assistant, John McHugh, undoubtedly know the answer after watching their team absorb a 13-10 licking from once-victorious Syracuse last Saturday.

Thiel had this to say: "We should have won the game, but the way we were shooting it's no wonder we didn't. If the boys would learn to fake the goalie before firing away, our team would be a lot better off."

"As an example, take the last shot we had in the game, the one by (Ed) Herring. There was no one between him and the goalie. But instead of faking the goalie out of position, he attempted to fire it past him. He would have had an easy score if he had thought a little instead of just using plain force."

Mendelson Tough

The Lion coach continued: "It was that way all through the game. That's why it seemed as if (Herb) Mendelson (the Syracuse goalie) played such a whale of a game. Not that he didn't play a good game, don't misunderstand me. But we made him look outstanding by just trying to smack the ball past him when we should have aimed a little."

Assistant Coach John McHugh shook his head disgustedly when asked about the Lion shooting. "We took 40 shots at the Syracuse goal, and that doesn't include the ten that we made. Ten shots out of 50—one out of five—that's pretty bad."

This week the Lions will really have their hands full when they take on the undefeated Maryland Lacrosse Club.
