

Galati Discloses Charge Evidence

See Editorial Page Four

Joseph Galati, who Tuesday resigned a West Dorm office and charged that the recent Association of Independent Men elections were unconstitutional, disclosed to the Collegian yesterday "evidence" he says can prove his accusation.

Galati listed seven points. It was learned that he also submitted the "evidence" to Daniel A. DeMarino, assistant dean of men, earlier in the afternoon.

Charges

Galati charged that:
1. Stanley Zimmerman, West Dorm Council secretary, had told him that he, Zimmerman, had told Weston Tomlinson to represent him at AIM elections. Galati also said that Zimmerman had told him that the Lion party clique (in the West Dorms) had picked another alternate for him. (Zimmerman denied in a letter to the Collegian that he had given Tomlinson permission to sit in for him at the AIM elections. Tomlinson made the original charges of political party influence in the elections. Under the AIM constitution political influence is outlawed.)

2. Howard Sprankle and Richard Schoenberger, two alternates at the meeting, are members of the Lion party.
Party Members
3. Three West Dorm members-at-large—Ray Evert, Robert Huling, and John Stoudt—are Lion party members.
4. Four candidates for AIM offices—David Mutchler, Joseph Haines, Stoudt, and Evert—are prominent in the Lion party.
5. Schoenberger claims to have gone to the meeting as an alternate at the last moment. If this is true, how did he make the nominating speech for Evert?

Reached last night, Evert said that he did not decide to run until the last minute and that he passed his list of qualifications to Schoenberger during the meeting.

Roommates

6. Sprankle is Mutchler's roommate.
7. Richard Kingensmith, West Dorm Council treasurer, had been approached to become part of the bloc, but refused.

Kingensmith last night affirmed that he had been approached to become part of the bloc, but he said he turned it down because he preferred to run as an "independent."

He denied, however, that he had been approached on a political party basis.

Approached

"I was approached, but not on a political party basis. I am a member of the State party, although I do not hold a clique (continued on page eight)

Next Handbook Will Contain All Regulations

Next year's "Freshman Bible" will contain more information than ever before, in an attempt by the student government to make all regulations available to fall freshmen and new students in one book, Florenz Fenton, editor of the handbook, said yesterday.

The Student Handbook, which is to be distributed to incoming students during orientation week by the Penn State Christian Association, will be a combination of the former Student Handbook, the Student Government Handbook, and Undergraduate Regulations. It will also include the All-College Constitution and freshman customs for men and women.

Most of the material has been gathered and the book is in the process of being edited, Fenton said. All-College Cabinet has agreed to finance the publication this year.

On the editorial staff are Florenz Fenton, editor; Robert Fraser, copy editor; Leonard Kolasinski, managing editor; Nancy Luetzel, Laura Badwey, Patricia Nutter, LaVonne Althouse, Mary Fisher, Olga Ekimoff, Gertrude Needleman, Marjorie Harris, Marian Ungar, Eliza Jane Newell, and Edward Gildea, assistants.
On the advertising staff are Robert Leyburn, business manager; Howard Boleky, advertising manager; Robert Koons, assistant advertising manager; Carolyn Alley, Donald Jackel, Jeanne Phillips, Melvin Glass, Marc Kimmel, Samuel Wayman, Richard Smith, Peter Raidy, Marion Morgan, John Horsford, Kenneth Wolfe, and Alison Morley, assistants.

COHEN SPEAKS TODAY

Dr. Hirsh Cohen, assistant professor of engineering research, will speak on "Development of Non-Linear Mechanics" at 11 a.m. today in 203 Engineering A.

Today's Inkling Has New Lit Features

Inkling, the new photographic-literary magazine, is on sale today.

The magazine contains fiction, poetry, photography, and art work. No such type of publication has ever been produced before on campus.

Inkling is the current effort of students to establish a literary publication for the College. Only Old Main Bell, was successful. The New Portfolio and Critique existed for only a year.

Contributions

Inkling was chartered by All-College Cabinet, which assisted with funds to be applied to the debt of its defunct predecessor, Critique. Student organizations and other donors have contributed to its financial backing.

It is the first student publication to make use of the offset lithography process. This process allows almost unlimited use of line drawings and gives greater and more flexibility in the use of photographs and in special makeup.

The success of the first issue will depend on student and faculty sales because of the limited amount of advertising in the magazine.

25 Cents

Inkling will be on sale for 25 cents on campus and on the spring carnival grounds.

The magazine includes such make-up features as brief sketches and photos of the authors with their stories, and two illustrated full-page poems. "An Inkling of Greatness," an article based on interviews with two prominent lecturers who have visited the campus, and feature columns on books and music highlight the issue.

Milton Bernstein designed the cover.

NSA Petition Given To Legislature

The absentee voting petition was submitted to the Pennsylvania legislature in Harrisburg on Tuesday by the NSA student committee on absentee voting.

The senators and representatives expressed interest in the petition, and although no commitments were received, the student committee felt that the mission had been a complete success, David Fitzcharles, committee chairman, said.

The voting petition was first discussed informally with the Senate committee on constitutional changes. Sen. McPherson, chairman, and the 15 members, asked questions concerning the petition and the feasibility of absentee voting.

Other copies of similar proposed amendments on absentee voting were given to the student committee to look over.

The student committee was later introduced to Rep. Adam Bower, chairman of the House elections committee, and Rep. Edwin Tomkins. The Representatives discussed and the students presented their views on the voting petition and told of the interest at Penn State in the petition.

Following the discussion, Sen. Fred Hare introduced the student committee to the Senate.

The committee was composed of William Bair, president of the sophomore class; Fitzcharles, voting petition committee chairman; Nancy George, Panhellenic Council president; and William Klisanin, chairman of the NSA.

Alumni Institute Program Set, Lehman Says

A new program, differing from any previous alumni program at the College, has been organized in the form of an Alumni Institute, to be held from June 21 to 23, Ross B. Lehman, assistant executive secretary of the Alumni Association, announced recently.

Graduates of 13 classes, ranging from 1886 to 1946, will return to the campus for their reunions on this week-end. For the first time an educational program has been arranged as part of the reunions.

A symposium on "Civilization in 2000 A.D." has been planned for Friday morning, June 21, while in the afternoon short courses on a dozen popular and scientific subjects will be offered.

The short courses will include talks on subjects such as "Live Longer and Like It," "Fly-Tying and Casting," "How to Buy a Fur Coat," and "Facts and Fads on Nutrition."

Alumni returning for this institute will be housed in the West Dorms. Tours of the campus and banquets to be held in five-year groups are also scheduled along with the symposium and courses, to round out the three-day program.

Blue Band To Give Annual Spring Concert

The Blue Band will present its annual spring concert on the mall in front of Schwab Auditorium Sunday at 3 p.m. The Blue Band is directed by James W. Dunlop. In case of rain, the concert will be held in Schwab Auditorium.

Clear Skies Are Predicted For First Time In Three Years

By JIM GROMILLER

Penn State's third annual Spring Carnival opens at 1 p.m. today on the Osmond parking lot.

Forecasters predict clear skies, which may make this carnival the first not to be plagued by rain.

Fifty-three fraternities, sororities, and campus organizations have entered entertainment booths that will remain open until 11 tonight.

All women will receive 11:30 permissions for the carnival. Parking will be prohibited on the Osmond lot today because of the carnival.

A large ferris wheel will be a part of this year's carnival, but will not be in competition for the $100, $50, and $25 cash prizes.

The prizes will be awarded to booths earning the most tickets. All proceeds of the carnival will be used to help establish a student loan fund under direction of All-College Cabinet.

Tickets will be sold at the entrance to the carnival and will serve as legal tender at all booths in the carnival.

Last year's carnival earned nearly $800 for the Campus Chest. Almost 22,000 tickets amounting to $2,118.48 were sold.

The number of booths in this year's carnival is slightly less than last year, but joint fraternity-sorority entries are more prevalent this year.

This will be the first appearance of a carnival actually on campus. Both previous carnivals were held downtown on South Allen street and East Beaver avenue.

The Hotel Greeters Association, organization for hotel administration students, and Androcles, junior men's hat society, will take charge of food and drink concessions.

Robert Fast is carnival chairman for the spring week committee.

The following groups will sponsor booths at the carnival:

Voila! Un Chapeau

Joan Harvie

Ferris Wheel, Joan Harvie Head Hatters

Joan Harvie, with a revolving ferris wheel perched atop her "mad" hat, was chosen first place winner in the annual Mad Hatters' Day contest yesterday. The hat was judged the entry best depicting the motif of Spring Week. Miss Harvie is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Miss Harvie and Bruce Gerwig, senior in architecture, combined efforts in making the hat.

Roger Downing of Beaver House received second prize for the most amusing hat, a large paper representation of a palm tree about six feet tall.

The "most original" award went to Herbert McCollon, of Kappa Sigma fraternity, with a tennis shoe and tennis racket perched atop his hat.

The entries ranged from hats portraying television sets to windmills and alarm clocks. The judges expressed regret that they were unable to find a suitable category for a hat portraying a miniature blue windmill.

The prizes were $10, $5, and $3. Mrs. Milton Eisenhower, Mrs. Wilmer Kenworthy, and Lois Nelson, instructor in clothing and textiles, were judges.

Samuel Vaughan was in charge of the program for the spring week committee.

Students To Travel In England, Israel

The Jewish Educational Travel Organization has announced a new itinerary for student travel in England, France, and Israel during July and August.

Detailed information is available from the Jewish Educational Travel Organization, 50 West 45 street, New York 19, N.Y.

Swedish-Trained Female Gymnasts To Perform Here

Sofiaflickorna, noted Swedish girl gymnasts, will appear in Recreation Hall next Thursday at 8:00 p.m.

The Sofia girls are specially picked, carefully trained young gymnasts ranging in age from 14 to 21. They are carefully chosen from promising young gymnasts at the age of 10 or 11 years. Through most of their youth the youngsters are taught by their Sofia sisters.

The program to be presented will include demonstrations based on the gymnastics of Per Henrik Ling of Sweden. Ling's method is used in the Swedish schools and in the Swedish army.

The Sofia girls were organized prior to the 1936 Olympics. Since then they have made 450 demonstrations and appeared in the United States twice—once for the World's Fair, and then on tour.

The girls arrived in New York on March 19 and flew to California for their first engagement. While in California they made a twenty minute film in Hollywood.

Tickets for the performance in Recreation Hall are on sale at Kaye's Korner. They may also be purchased from physical education students.
