

First DP Student To Arrive Monday

The first of the group of 25 displaced persons to come to State College as a prospective student will arrive Monday. He is Gyoergy Geczy Jr., 19, a native of Hungary who has spent the last six years in a displaced persons' camp in Salzburg, Austria.

Ralph Cash, chairman of the campus displaced persons committee, said yesterday that Geczy will be employed in town for one year after which he hopes to enroll at the College in business administration.

He understands English very well, Cash said, but speaks it with difficulty.

Geczy, his sister Maria, 16, and their parents, arrived in New York Thursday aboard an International Refugee Organization ship. They are coming to the United States under a placement plan for DP students.

The Penn State Christian Association and the Commerce Club of State College sponsored a drive several weeks ago to obtain job assurances for the prospective students in or near State College.

The boy will work as a stock clerk and salesman for College Sportswear. Maria has been assured employment in Baltimore.

The father, an engineer, and mother will live in Granger, Ia.

Dr. Clinchy To Speak At Chapel

Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and founder and president of the World Brotherhood Organization, will speak in Chapel at 11 a.m. tomorrow. His subject will be "Reasons for Hope in a Difficult Time."

The Chapel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Willa Taylor with George Ceiga at the organ, will sing "Let Us Rejoice" by Tschesnokoff and Howorth.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews, founded in 1928, has grown under the leadership of Dr. Clinchy from a single office with one assistant and an annual budget of a few thousand dollars to 62 offices throughout the United States with 250 employees and an annual budget of two million dollars.

This organization was expanded to an international scope when the World Brotherhood Organization was set up in Paris in 1950.

Dr. Clinchy did graduate work at Columbia University and at Yale Graduate School. He earned the degree of Master of Arts from Columbia and Doctor of Philosophy in education from Drew University. Florida Southern College in 1946 awarded him a Doctor of Laws degree, and in 1947 he received the degrees of Doctor of Literature from Missouri Valley College and Doctor of Divinity from Wesleyan University.

Among books he has written are "All in the Name of God," "The World We Want to Live In," "Intergroup Relations Centers," and "Handbook on Human Relations." He has also written magazine articles on group relations.

Dr. Folkers' three lectures are part of the Chemistry 570 special topics in modern chemistry series.

A contest for those interested in photography has been announced by Edward K. Thompson, managing editor of Life magazine. A deadline of Sept. 15 has been set.

Residents of the U.S., its territories or possessions, and members of the U.S. armed forces on active duty are eligible for entry in the contest, but no contestant may be more than 30 years old.

There will be 100 cash prizes ranging from $25 to $3000. The three top-ranked pictures in each of the two divisions will appear in Life.

Complete details and contest rules can be found in the May 21 issue of Life. All correspondence is to be addressed to Life's contest for young photographers, P. O. Box 10, New York 46, N.Y.

Taxation Institute Begins Tomorrow

The Department of Economics and Commerce and the general extension services will conduct the fifth annual Institute on Taxation beginning tomorrow and ending next Thursday.

J. K. Lasser, national authority on taxation from New York city, will be honorary chairman. He was graduated by the College and is the author of "Your Income Tax," "Your Corporation Tax," "Excess Profits Taxes," and other books.

The program is devised to provide a concentrated study of important, up-to-date tax procedures and problems.

Roy Blough, member of the council of economic advisers to the President of the United States, will be guest speaker at a meeting highlighting the five-day event.

Fewer Saturday Classes Highlight New Schedule

A new class sequence plan designed to promote maximum utilization of classroom space will go into effect next fall, according to Ray V. Watkins, scheduling officer.

The plan will release considerable space for other uses, notably research, and thus boost over-all use of classrooms from 75 to 90 percent. A by-product of the plan, he said, will be a reduction in the number of Saturday classes from approximately 400 to 150.

He explained that 118 Saturday classes, mostly for laboratory courses, have already been scheduled and that appointment classes yet to be arranged probably will boost the total to about 150.

The plan was proposed by G. M. Dusinger, professor of mechanical engineering, and was approved by the procedure committee headed by Provost Adrian O. Morse. Several other plans were also considered by the committee.

"There is no assurance," Watkins said, "that the new scheduling plan will solve all our problems, but there is no question that it will be decided help. The committee feels that it most certainly is worth a trial."

One undesirable feature of the new plan is that many classes will be scheduled to meet on successive days. Under the present system there is at least a one-day interval between classes for all three-credit courses.

Editor Says Facts And Peace Linked

Facts, and the freedom to get them and distribute them are needed more than anything else to restore the world to peace, public debate to decent calm, and governmental conduct to morality, James R. Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington (D.C.) Post, said last night at the Pennsylvania Press Conference.

Wiggins said it is because the Russian people do not know the facts that a dictatorship is able:

1. To marshal their energies for war and to deny them all but the bare necessities of life.
2. To impose upon them standards of wages and hours and working conditions that exist nowhere else in the civilized world.
3. To enforce deprivations of political liberty the western world left behind a century ago.

Wiggins was the principal speaker of the dinner session at which nearly 200 newspapermen were cited for excellent handling of news and photography during the past year. The awards were announced by Bart Richards, associate editor of the New Castle News and president of the Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors.

Newspapers, Wiggins said enjoy immunity from government interference in their fact-gathering operations and must be sure they do not admit self-imposed interference with their duties. Editors who withhold facts inconsistent with their own philosophy, purposes, or profit and who print only the facts that fulfill their own principles are as much a menace to our free principles as arbitrary government, he said.

Wiggins said that a dictatorship is able to impose upon them standards of wages and hours and working conditions that exist nowhere else in the civilized world. He also mentioned the deprivations of political liberty the western world left behind a century ago.

2 Japanese Visit Press Conference

By CHUCK HENDERSON

Mitsuo Horiguchi and Takeo Fukumitsu, two Japanese delegates visiting the United States, are attending the annual Pennsylvania Press Conference today.

They are two of a group of 12 Japanese representatives who were sent to United States by the Supreme Command of Allied Powers and the Japanese Newspaper Publishers Association. They are to study journalism here and learn about the American way of life.

Horiguchi is a representative of the Hokkai Times, of Hakkaido in northern Japan. Fukumitsu is representing the Minami-Nippon newspaper of southern Japan.

Horiguchi has written eight books and has published his own magazine.

Both Fukumitsu and Horiguchi are editorial writers. Fukumitsu graduated from the Tokyo Imperial University.

The pair arrived in San Francisco March 26 and since then have visited Washington and New York City. This is their first visit to a small community.

They spent three weeks in Washington and four weeks in New York. In New York they studied under Professor Taylor, head of the American Press Institute.

They will leave the United States late in June, after visiting Chicago, New Orleans, Birmingham, Phoenix, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

The Pennsylvania Press Conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Society of Newspaper Editors, the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, and the Department of Journalism at the College.

Fishing Paradise Attracts 1500

"Fisherman's Paradise," in Bellefonte, opened yesterday and thousands of anglers tried their luck. This best known mile of Pennsylvania fishing waters opened with a probable record number of fishermen.

Brook, brown, and rainbow trout were the attraction which drew 1,500 men and women into the reservation within 45 minutes of its opening.

An angler is allowed to keep only one fish from the stream, but he may catch as many as he likes as long as he throws them back.

Stankowski Elected Hort Club President

Leon Stankowski was elected president of the Hort Club at its last meeting.

Other new officers of the club are Louis Laffoon, vice-president; James Boodley, treasurer; Helen Stender, secretary; and Albert Zihmer, agriculture student council representative.

The club's adviser is M. T. Lewis, professor of plant breeding.

Penn State Centers Offer Summer Credits
