

Senior Gifts Range From Ivy To Clock

The benches scattered over the campus, the clock in the tower of Old Main, the Lion Shrine, and the organ in Schwab—all these items and many more have been provided for by the College graduating classes dating back to as early as 1900.

The Class of 1900 gave funds for the benches, 20 of which were installed in 1945 and 30 more a year later. One of the first class gifts was the Hammond electric organ given by the Class of 1903. The organ was installed at a class reunion in 1938.

The following class, 1904, contributed funds for the clock in the tower of Old Main. The original works were repaired and rebuilt when Old Main was reconstructed in 1929-30.

From 1908 to 1912, ivy was bought for McAllister Hall, the Armory's tower, Engineering Building, Schwab, and the library. The "1913 Senior Porch" was constructed on the front of the original Old Main.

Two Entrances
The two entrance gates on E. College avenue were given by senior classes, also. Classes of 1917-'18 and 1925-'26 gave the gates at the east entrance at Pugh street and 1916 gave the memorial gate at the front entrance on the Mall.

The scoreboard on new Beaver Field was purchased by the class of 1926. Graduates of 1934 gave the elevator at the College Infirmary. In 1935, a permanent fund was established, the income being used for purchase of books for the library.

New Telescope
The 1936 class gave the telescope on top of the Botany Building and increased the size of and remodeled the organ in Schwab, originally given by the class of 1904. The Westminster Chimes in the tower of Old Main are the gift of the 1937 class.

In 1938, the multiple astronomical observatories in back of Ag Hill and part of the equipment were donated. The ski lodge in the mountains, which recently burned down, was the gift of the class of 1939.

The class of '40 spent $5000 for the Lion Shrine, sculptured by Heinz Warneke. This sum was supplemented by $3000 from the College for walks and landscaping. The flag poles at New Beaver Field, completed in 1946, were provided by the class of 1944.

Old Main Murals
The year 1946 marks the completion of the murals in Old Main, originally started by a fund from the class of 1932. Classes of 1946 and 1947 contributed funds for a new Student Union Building, and the classes in the last three years have been working toward a student press.

Seniors of this year are providing money for a campus radio and a Donald MacIntire Memorial Scholarship Fund.

DG's Model Fashions For Benefit

About 50 persons attended a fashion show sponsored by Delta Gamma sorority at the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house Tuesday night. Proceeds from the show will be given to the sorority's national philanthropy, aid to the blind.

The fashions, modeled by members of the sorority, were from the Charles Shop. Charles Petnick, owner of the store, served as commentator.

Summer wardrobes, including bathing suits, shorts, pedal-pushers, cotton and dressy dresses, and evening gowns, were shown.

Barbara Baker was chairman for the fashion show, and opened and closed the program. The models were Betsi France, Georgia Gianopoulos, Martha McMillan, Adell Owen, Betty Pat Thomas, Jane Stieber, and Patricia Vester.

Three members of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Donald Roush, David Helfrich, and Donald Carlson, served as escorts for the models. Bruce Wagner, also a member of the fraternity, played background music on the piano.

NEWMAN CLUB
Tickets for the Newman Club picnic, to be held Saturday, are available at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Donation is 75 cents.

'Radio'---

looked in America during the past year's war memorial celebrations (we figured she meant that America intentionally did so in its peace propaganda campaigns).

"The United States declared war on Spain in 1898," she went on to say (she even knows American history, we figured).

She then told of "horrible" atrocities American soldiers inflicted on the people of Cuba and the "poor" Spanish soldiers. We then came to the conclusion that this was not an American radio station. Indeed, we discovered it to be RADIO MOSCOW!

A male American-sounding voice then came in to tell us of the 130,000 men the United States has lost in the Korean war thus far: (Grabbing our latest edition of the Collegian, we discovered the latest casualty list recorded 65,523 killed, wounded, and missing).

The dilly that really sent us into the aisles went like this:

"Blood plasma sent to Korea is yielding millions in profits for Wall Street tycoons."

After quickly telling her to "come off it," we heard a medley of "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," and "Over There." This we also got a large charge from.

The only way to save American lives, we learned, is to surrender. We also discovered from our Moscow informer that thousands of American citizens are sending telegrams to President Truman to "call our boys back home before they are all killed." These "facts" should prove of great value to us when we get drafted in June.

Several "letters from American soldiers held by the Chinese" were read. These were real classics!

One said that the Chinese Communists were the best fighters and were the best companions a man could hope to find. It went on to say that the Reds treat all their prisoners with friendship and equality. Somehow we could not forget how our pool room buddy was found with his hands tied behind his back and a Communist rifle slug in the back of his head.

Yeah, radio is a wonderful thing—you can shut it off when screwballs like that get on the air.
