

College Football Ban Wins Favor In East

Many colleges in the East are favorably inclined toward elimination of Spring practice and the platoon system from present-day football, according to Dr. Carl P. Schott, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics at the College.

Early replies to the Penn State proposal that they be eliminated as "injurious to the general health of college athletics" portend a sympathetic reception for both suggestions when they come before the Eastern College Athletic conference for consideration later this summer, Schott said.

Mid-Year Report

The Athletic Advisory board, a 13-man body representing student, faculty, alumni and trustee opinion, suggested the elimination of both in a mid-year report which decried the over-emphasis fostered by Spring practice and expressed the fear that the platoon system would be financially ruinous to college football unless something were done about it immediately.

Copies of the report were forwarded to the 91 members of the Eastern College Athletic conference and their replies indicate a desire to cooperate with Penn State in its endeavor to bring both problems to the attention of football authorities in the East and the nation.

25 Replies

Schott said of the first 25 replies received, none was hostile and practically all were agreed that Spring practice should be eliminated and that some effort be made to encourage a restoration of the limited substitution rule. Nearly all said that present-day football was "exacting too high a price, financially and scholastically."

The Dean said he had received many letters from former players and others interested in college athletics who praised Penn State for its espousal of this cause and expressed the hope that the College would not relent in its endeavor to have both eliminated from the athletic scene.

Football Season Tickets On Sale

Football season ticket applications for faculty members and other College personnel have been placed in the mail and may be returned from now until September 15, it was announced today.

H. R. Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, said the applications will be honored on a "first come, first served" basis, and that all seats will be located between the goal line and 35-yard line in the West stands. Each employee is entitled to buy two tickets, priced at $9.60 each, Federal tax included.

Gilbert pointed out that a saving of $4.80 is effected by the purchase of a season ticket, since tickets to the four home games at the established price of $3.60 each represents a total outlay of $14.40 per person. The season opens September 29 against Boston U.

Former Coach In Mexico City

John Lawther, former Penn State basketball coach, and his wife are currently located at Hotel Geneve, in Mexico City, which will serve as Lawther's headquarters during the first part of his teaching-coaching assignment in that country.

Lawther, in a letter to friends, said he will work with three different groups—coaches, young players, and mature players—while in Mexico City for the next three to four months. On weekends he will go to neighboring cities for clinics.

The last part of his stay in Mexico will be spent on the road, going from city to city to conduct week-long clinics.

Sophs May Not Figure In '51 Football Plans

Except for the quarterback position, where there are no hold-overs, sophomores are not expected to figure heavily in Penn State's 1951 football plans.

Lettermen and other hold-overs number 30 or more, presaging a tough fight for the sophomores who will be bidding for starting assignments when pre-season drills open in August.

Most outstanding in Spring drills were Pete Schoderbek, 190-pound guard of Duquesne, and Don Malinak, former all-school-boy end of Steelton. The quarterback job, of course, is a wide open affair between Tony Rados, Steelton; Bob Szajna, Reading; and Frank Minana, Johnstown, Rados looked good in Spring drills.

Still others who may break into the picture if varsity losses are abnormally heavy because of draft or academic difficulties are Harry Settino, Bronx, N. Y., and Tom McCurdy, Avalon, both guards; and Keith Vesling, Clarendon; Wayne Wolfkeil, Wilkes-Barre; Buddy Rowell, Erie; Ken Newman, New York; Jimmy Finn, Williamsport; Don Eyer, Chambersburg; Nick Firda, Taylor; and Dick Jones, Bellevue; all potentially useful as offensive or defensive backs.

Matmen Have Best All-Time College Athletic Record

Wrestling owns the best all-time record of any intercollegiate sport at the College.

In 41 years of grappling, the Lions have won 193, lost 50 and tied 9 for a whopping 76.5 win percentage.

Under Charlie Speidel, who ascended the coaching helm 25 years ago, the Lion wrestlers have won 102, lost 28, tied 7.

Next most effective record was compiled by the soccer team, which owns a 40-year record of 177 wins, 36 defeats, 35 ties.

Bill Jeffrey took over in 1926, and in the 25 years, since his booters have won 141, lost 26, tied 22.

Track and cross-country, both long-time activities, own a win percentage of 70.0, closely pressed by baseball with a 68.1 record.

Penn State's only Main Session publication, the Summer Collegian, gives a complete record of campus happenings each week.

Football Coaches' Clinic Plans Set

Offense and defense will get equal attention when three of the East's top coaches join hands for a football coaching clinic on the College campus August 13-15.

The host coach, Charles A. "Rip" Engle, who came to the College from Brown University a year ago, will concentrate on pass defense and blocking assignments in the winged-T, with special emphasis on so-called "blocking rules." Engle pioneered in the development of the winged-T.

George A. Munger, who is the East's foremost practitioner of the single wing, will divide his time between the development of a single wing offense and defensive team play. His Penn teams are highly regarded for the variety of their defense and their staunch defense.

The third member of the clinic, George K. "Lefty" James, of Cornell, who began his coaching career at Bucknell under Carl Sanvely, adopted the T successfully at Ithaca and now is regarded as a perfectionist in its employment. He will setup his defense against the single wing, and develop play patterns on the offense.

Earl J. Bruce, chairman of the clinic committee, said he expects several hundred coaches to attend the three-day grid panel. The joint sponsors of the clinic are the Penn State School of Physical Education and the Western Pennsylvania Football Coaches association.

Duplicate Bridge Session Set

A duplicate bridge session will be held every Monday night at the TUB from 6:45 to 10 p.m.

Robert Baer, president of the Penn State bridge club will be in charge. The bridge session will be held throughout the Main Session and Baer will teach beginners how to play the game.

College Books Ten Football Games For '52

For the first time in 21 years, Penn State will play a ten-game football schedule in 1952. Five of the ten games will be played at home.

Only newcomer to the schedule announced today by H. R. Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, is William & Mary.

The 1952 game with the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, had previously been announced.

The College added a tenth game to its schedule, in 1931 to oppose Lehigh in an Unemployment Fund benefit at Philadelphia.

The '52 schedule:
Sept. 20, Temple; 27, Purdue.
Oct. 4, William & Mary; 11, West Virginia, at Morgantown; 18, Nebraska; 25, Michigan State at East Lansing.

Nov. 1, Penn, at Philadelphia; 8, Syracuse, at Syracuse; 15, Rutgers; 22, Pitt, at Pittsburgh.
