

FRANK GULLO, who, along with Hummel Fishburn, directs the Monday Night Sing, is shown directing an imaginary group of songsters in one of the current favorites that he runs through with the summer audiences every week.

Monday Night Sing Has Long Tradition

Frank Gullo and Hummel Fishburn are in the groove. Those who attended Monday's sing, or who have sung lustily to the leadership of this combination on other occasions have little doubt of that.

For with Professor Gullo leading songs and Professor Fishburn at the piano, singing is easy, as thousands of persons throughout the state have discovered.

The Monday night sings at which these two less academic Professors display their talents are not new at Penn State. Since 1924, when the sings were begun by Prof. Richard W. Grant, summer students have enjoyed the get-togethers. This year as usual the sings will be continued every Monday night during the Main Session.

Well-Known Team

The team of Gullo and Fishburn is better known than most students realize. After starting in the State College Rotary Club, the two soon received invitations to other clubs, teachers institutes, and other gatherings. Says Fishburn, it started a "chain reaction."

Since then the pair has traveled to all parts of Pennsylvania as "good will ambassadors of the College." Last year they led singing at teacher's institutes or other educational meetings in 30 counties. They estimate their total audience at 80,000. The largest group was a Lincoln Day dinner in Washington, D.C., attended by 12,000.

Made Recordings

Since they cannot accept all invitations, they have recorded their wares on film for the Eastern States Cooperative Association. The two colored motion pictures are used at meetings of farmers and vocational groups. Fishburn says, "It's the same as if we were standing there."

They use no slides, words, music, song sheets or books, and the singing is unrehearsed and spontaneous. Fishburn credits Gullo as a "genius" for that sort of thing.

Fishburn, who has been here for 32 years, mentioned some persons who have attended the Monday night sings for years. Miss Anna Louise Laub, a grade school teacher from Lewistown has been coming ever since the beginning. Even during gasoline rationing, Miss Laub saved her coupons to come to the sings.

Attendance Dropped

Other old-timers are Mr. and Mrs. John Friese, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bischoff. Attendance isn't what it used to be however, according to Fishburn, and he says, "I'd like to fill the place up."

A POPULAR CENTER of student activities since its opening in the Fall of 1948, the Temporary Union building will again be open for the use of summer students. Formerly a USO center in Lebanon, the TUB was purchased by the College for use until a permanent Student Union building is erected.

Air Force Adds Geography To ROTC Program

A comprehensive course in World Political Geography will be included in the program for Air Force ROTC students at the College beginning in September. Lt. Col. Jack W. Dieterle, professor of air science and tactics, said today.

The 60-hour course, which will be included in the program for the freshman year, is designed to show the relation of air power to the earth's material resources, factors of space, history, economics, and government.

The sophomore year will include 12 hours of work in Air Power Concepts, a closely allied subject, Colonel Dieterle explained.

The Air Force, convinced that political geography is a "must" subject for today's potential Air Force officer, worked out the program with the aid of the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, president of Georgetown University, and Dr. George T. Renner, professor of geography at Teachers' College, Columbia University, both professional geographers.

A principal source of officer procurement for the Air Force, the Air ROTC program is supervised by the Continental Air Command with headquarters at Mitchel Air Force Base, New York. The program is offered at 125 colleges and present plans call for expansion to 187 colleges and universities.
