

Men To Continue Tri-Dorm Residence

Watts, Irvin, and Jordan Halls will house men students again this fall, instead of women as announced last spring, the President's office said yesterday.

The same procedure for selecting occupants will be used as originally announced by the student-administration committee formed to select men to live in Hamilton and McKee Halls. Thompson Hall is still slated for women residents in the fall.

Jeffrey Tells AF Of Iranians

There are many people in trouble-torn Iran who want to achieve better understanding with the people of the United States, William Jeffrey, soccer coach at the College, said to a class of Air Force men Saturday.

Jeffrey, who led the Penn State soccer squad on a goodwill tour of Iran in March and April, spoke at the graduation exercises for the 150 airmen enrolled in the clerk-typist training program at the College.

Telling the airmen that it's good to go to other countries and to meet people of those countries, Jeffrey said that there are many well-meaning people in Iran who are making their contributions toward a better world.

Jeffrey also told the airmen that while many boys in this country have never played soccer or been acquainted with the game, it is known and played throughout the world.

"Youth of other nations prefer to kick the ball rather than throw a ball," the veteran coach told the 800 airmen still assigned to the 3445th School Squadron on the campus.

Vet Enrollment Ends Today: 12,000 At State Since War

More than 12,000 World War II veterans have been enrolled at the Pennsylvania State College since the inauguration of GI educational benefits in 1944.

With enrollment of veterans under the GI-Bill slated to end today, except for veterans discharged from the service since July 25, 1947, fewer than 2000 veterans will be on campus next fall.

President Milton S. Eisenhower, in disclosing the figures, estimated the loss of income from this source during the forthcoming biennium at $2,300,000.

Penn State's current enrollment of veterans, including 224 who enrolled for the first time this summer, is 1,534. At its peak, there were 5,536 veterans enrolled in the Fall of 1948.

More than a year before the end of World War II, the first two veterans to enroll under the GI Bill registered for the Spring semester of 1944. Last Spring, there were only 2,550 former servicemen on campus. More than 600 were graduated in June.

Under the terms of the Federal legislation, veterans enrolled before today's deadline will be permitted to finish their educations.

1534 Vets Enrolled For Main Session

A total of 1534 veterans are enrolled at the College for the Main Summer Session, according to Rebecca Dourner who is in charge of veterans registration.

Mrs. Dourner reported today that 224 of the 1534 veterans are enrolled for the first time while 1306 of them are former students and 2 are students who transferred from centers.

The change in policy was made possible by a "leveling off" of applications from women at a total that can be accommodated by adding only the rooms in Thompson Hall to the normal capacity of campus housing for women," according to Dean Wilmer Kenworthy, director of student affairs.

700 More

The original plan was to admit 700 more women to the College in the fall to overcome the expected drop in male enrollment. This would have placed the coed population to a new all-time high of 2700 or more.

The women were to have been assigned to the West Dorm area, with the exception of Hamilton and McKee Halls.

Even with the women living in the West Dorms, the College policy of requiring freshmen to live on campus was to have been continued. As many as possible were to have been assigned to the West Dorms, with the rest living in Nittany and Pollock dormitories.

Follow Plan

The number of freshmen and upperclassmen now to be assigned to the West Dorms will be figured according to the plan formed by the student administration committee.

The committee was made up of the presidents of the West, Nittany and Pollock Councils, the dean of men, and the director of housing.

The room assignments for next year are now being sent out from the housing department.

Song Penned By Pattee Presented To Library

A copy of the Alma Mater of the College, penned by Dr. Fred Pattee who wrote the song in 1901, has been presented to the Library at the College on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the writing of the song.

The presentation was made by F. Joseph Bedenk and A. O. Rasmussen for the Class of 1924. The copy was made by Dr. Pattee for the Class which dedicated its LaVie to Dr. Pattee.

Resolution Asks College Inquiry

A move to request Gov. John S. Fine to institute an investigation of "un-American influences and activities on the campus of the Pennsylvania State College" was made at a meeting of the American Legion's 23rd District in Bellefonte Sunday.

A resolution asking for the investigation was passed unanimously yesterday by representatives of 26 posts. The resolution was sent to the Legion's state organization for consideration at the department convention at Pittsburgh next month.

President Milton S. Eisenhower, on vacation in Wisconsin, could not be reached for comment. No one else at the College has made any statement.

The Prexy is expected to make a statement when he returns on Thursday.

To the Governor

It was also delivered to the governor's office Monday.

Officers of the 23rd District said the move was the result of an extensive investigation and a series of conferences.

A conference was held Saturday in Washington, D.C. and district Americanism committee members and Legion department and district officers have con-

Eisenhower Returns For Trustees Meeting

Prexy Milton S. Eisenhower will return from his vacation in Wisconsin tomorrow.

The Prexy has been on vacation since June 24 with Mrs. Eisenhower and daughter Ruth, Ruth.

His return is timed to coincide with the regular July meeting of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees to be held Friday.

Agronomy Group To Convene Here Late In August

New findings in all kinds of crops and soil science will highlight the program when the College plays host to the annual convention of the American Society of Agronomy, August 28 to 31.

Also meeting at the same time will be the Soil Science Society and the Forest Soils Conference. Members of Penn State's department of Agronomy, headed by Dr. H. R. Albrecht, have been busy arranging facilities for the thousands expected for the meetings.

Top ranking scientists of this and other nations are listed to speak and join in the series of technical discussions. While the convention proper begins on Tuesday, Aug. 28, scores of soils technologists have registered for the pre-convention trip to examine soil building characteristics of Central Pennsylvania.

Numerous excavations, exposing the soil-building and rock deterioration processes at work in the area, will permit the scientists to make on-the-spot inspections.

Dr. Stephen M. Raleigh is chairman of the general committee for the Penn State agronomists. These include trips to several of Pennsylvania's scenic and historic points of interest.

Trustee Board Election Shakeup Decree Granted

A petition by the College for a change in the manner of naming 12 of its trustees was granted by the courts of Centre County in a decree handed down yesterday by Judge Ivan Walker in Bellefonte.

According to the change, six of the 12 trustees will be named by delegates representing agricultural interests and six will be nominated by persons in the state representing the interests of engineering, mining, manufacturing and mechanical fields.

Heretofore, 12 of the 32 trustees were named without respect to the interests of those nominating them.

The change was asked by the College on the grounds that bickering had arisen in the selection of candidates.

Walker's Opinion

In concluding his opinion, Judge Walker said:

"From an examination of the record, the court is unable to find any fault with the discretion and wisdom of those who favor the adoption of the amendment and those who gave their authority to accomplish that end, would warrant the court in finding what would amount to an abuse of discretion and a substitution of his judgment in place of those who have been intimately acquainted with the operations of affairs of The Pennsylvania State College."

A hearing on points of arguments on the matter was held recently. The opinion was filed after presentation of briefs by counsel representing the College and agricultural interest.

New Appointee

Roger W. Rowland, of New Castle, has been appointed to the Board of Trustees to fill the unexpired term of D. Norris Benedict, of Waynesboro, who has resigned from the Board. The term will expire on June 30, 1952.

Mr. Rowland, whose appointment was made by James Millholland, of Pittsburgh, as president of the Board, has served on the Board as an appointee of the Governor since 1939.

Recently, Gov. John S. Fine appointed William K. Ulerich, of Clearfield, to fill the post that had been held by Mr. Rowland.

Mr. Benedict, who is president and general manager of the Frick Co., Waynesboro, was first elected to the Board by delegates from agricultural and industrial societies in 1946. He has served as a member of the committee on finance and business.

11 Foreign Students To Come Here

Eleven students from other countries will be enrolled in the department of industrial education at the College for the Fall semester, Dr. S. Lewis Land, professor and head of the department of industrial education, said today.

Sponsored by the Department of State and the U. S. Office of Education, the students are experienced vocational school administrators ranging in age from 30 to 50 years.

Three of the men are from the Philippine Islands, three from Germany, two from Norway, and one each from Finland, Turkey, and India. They will arrive in State College in September and remain until the close of the Fall semester.

Dr. Land explains that the Department of State and the U. S. Office of Education desire that in addition to the instructional program, the men be given every opportunity possible to secure firsthand information concerning home life in this country.

Therefore, Dr. Land is seeking homes in State College where one or more of the students could obtain room and board. He points out that the men receive adequate allowances to cover living expenses and requests persons who desire to have the men live at their home call him.

Teacher Lab Sessions Begin For Secondaries

Thirty elementary teachers finished the first session of the sixth Pennsylvania Conservation Education Laboratory for Teachers at the College Saturday and another 30 secondary school teachers began the second session Monday.

Directed by George J. Free, associate professor of education, the three-week laboratory sessions instruct teachers in conservation practices which they can then disseminate in schools and communities of the Commonwealth.

Participants in the laboratory are awarded scholarships by various civic, state and national government departments of health education and conservation who are interested in advocating conservation. The Schools of Agriculture, Education and Mineral Industries at the College cooperate to sponsor the project.

Lectures, discussions, library facilities and audio-visual aids are used in the laboratory, but much of the work is done outdoors and with actual conservation situations.

Teachers enrolled are restricted to those serving the public schools of Pennsylvania, and having a background of three years experience. They must be recommended by the superintendent of schools in their district.

LaVie Photos Needed of All Summer Grads

Summer Sessions students who will receive bachelor degrees on August 11 or at the close of the Post-Session, August 31, should have pictures for the 1952 LaVie, senior class annual, taken before leaving the campus.

James Geffert, editor of the book, explained today that the 1952 LaVie will include names and pictures of all graduates of the 1951-Summer Sessions as well as mid-year and June, 1952 graduates, provided they were not included in the 1951 LaVie.

Pictures are taken daily, except Saturday and Sunday, at the Penn State Photo Shop, 214 E. College Ave. Appointments are not required. The LaVie staff requires men wear coats and ties for pictures and women wear plain-colored clothes.
