

Center Stage Offers Midsummer Violence

"Anna Christie", the Centre Stage production that begins its second week tonight, is guaranteed to leave you sweating whether it be hot or cool these summer evenings.

The best in Eugene O'Neill violence is in store for the theatergoers this week and many of the first row audience may find themselves looking for seats farther back from the turmoil caused when the three principals conflict in the tale of "that Old Devil Sea's" influence over them.

Health Education Workshop Starts

The Secondary School and Community Health Education Workshop for graduate and undergraduate credit is now underway.

Dr. Rose Clonge, assistant professor of adult health education, and Dr. Elizabeth McHose, professor of health education at Temple University, are directing the workshop for the 36 students attending.

The workshop is limited to six students from six counties in Pennsylvania. The students with varied backgrounds were selected by a local advisory committee. The six counties entered are Allegheny, Centre, Dauphin, Somerset, Perry, and Fayette.

The purpose of the workshop is to promote better health programs and to have schools work as a team.

During the workshop various exhibits will be on display in Room 1 White Hall from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Cooperating agencies are the Pennsylvania Department of Health, Department of Welfare, Division of Mental Health, the Department of Public Instruction, Division of Health Education.

Dr. Stoner To Give Physics Show Tonight

Dr. Richard G. Stoner, assistant professor of physics at the College, will present the third of a series of popular lectures on scientific subjects at the College at 8 p. m. Wednesday, in Room 117, Osmond Laboratory.

Title of the lecturer-demonstration, which will be open to the public, is "Demonstrations in Atomic Physics."

Dr. Stoner came to Penn State from Princeton and he has conducted extensive research on shock waves.

Annual Education Dinner Scheduled

The Fourteenth Annual Graduate Dinner for faculty and students in the School of Education will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 p.m. in the Nittany Lion Inn.

A speech by Walter E. Boyer of the Department of English Literature will highlight the program. He will talk on "Doodling With the Dutch."

Remarks will be made by Dr. M. R. Trabue, Dr. C. M. Long, Dr. C. O. Williams and Dr. Frank Kern, all of whom will be introduced by the toastmaster, Frank J. O'Donnell, principle of the High School, East Rochester, N.Y.

Group singing and entertainment, which will be provided by Lynn Christy and Ray Fortunato, is also listed on the program.

There will be a dance at the TUB following the program at the Nittany Lion Inn. Dress will be informal.

A very limited number of tickets may still be obtained at Room 102 Burrowes Building.

New Surgical Drug Is Synthetic Form Of Arrow Poison

A new muscle-relaxing drug that will be helpful to surgeons during operations was announced today by Lederle Laboratories.

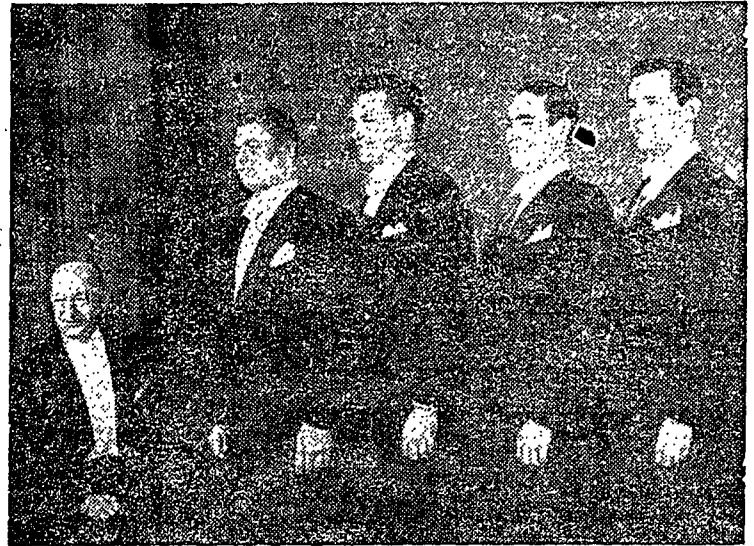

This new drug, Flaxedil, is a synthetic substance closely related to curare, the drug used by native South American hunters as an arrow poison to paralyze their game.

A Lederle spokesman said that use of Flaxedil in the operating room will mean less anesthetic for the patient, less nausea, and more rapid recovery.

The first information on curare was obtained by explorers visiting South America shortly after Columbus discovered the New World. They found that native hunters dipped arrows and spears in the drug and paralyzed their game. Later investigation revealed that the native drug acts on nerve endings to bring about temporary paralysis of body muscles.

William E. Eggert, instructor of meteorology at the Pennsylvania State College, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship for a year of graduate study and research at the University of Melbourne, Australia.

Pockrass To Study European Scene

Robert M. Pockrass, instructor in journalism at the College, is a member of a group of 20 American students and teachers of journalism to study the contemporary European scene firsthand this summer.

The project, titled "Foreign Assignment, 1951", will take the group to 10 Western European nations. They left New York by air on July 7 and will return to this country September 4.

Dr. Raymond B. Nixon, director of the division of journalism at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., heads the project which has been planned by Travel and Study, Inc., New York.

More than 200,000 books are circulated annually by the Library of the Pennsylvania State College, Elsa Lisle, circulation librarian, reports.
