

Fun Night to End Orientation Week

By DAVE JONES

Meetings tonight, tomorrow night, and Friday night, to be followed by an All-College fun-night Saturday, will complete this year's Orientation Week for the 4000 new freshmen and transfer students on campus.

All new women on campus will meet at 6:45 tonight in Schwab Auditorium when Women's Student Government Association will

Customs' Exemptions Are Granted

Exemptions from Freshman customs for both men and women will be considered by Tribunal and Judicial at the first meetings of the two groups.

Freshman customs board chairman Joan Yerger announced that exemptions from the three-week women's customs period will be granted at a meeting of the board on Saturday at 10 a.m. in White Hall.

Miss Yerger pointed out that the board is the only organization that can grant immunities to women. No upperclasswoman may grant individual immunities.

Women eligible for immunities must be over 21 or have undergone customs at other colleges. However, all women seeking immunity must appear at the meeting.

David Mutchler, Tribunal Chairman, said the first meeting of the body will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in 201 Old Main.

Mutchler also pointed out that Tribunal is the only body that may grant men immunities from customs. In cases of appeal of a Tribunal decision, All-College Cabinet will be the final appellate body.

Men over 21, or men who have undergone customs at another college are exempt from customs, but, like the women, must put in an appearance at the court be-

All Newcomers Housed--Clark

In spite of the unexpectedly large influx of new students this week-end, the Department of Housing has found living quarters for all arrivals, Russell E. Clark, director of housing, said yesterday.

"Everybody who got here had a bed, and everybody got fed," Clark said.

No accurate figures on the enrollment for the fall semester will be available until after registration is completed. An unofficial estimate by C. O. Williams, acting dean of admissions, placed the number of freshmen arrivals at 2700, 200 more than the original estimate of 2500. The greater part of the increase is due to a sudden upturn in the number of acceptances of new men students last week, Williams said.

About 9000 undergraduate students are expected at the College for the first semester.

Starlight Dance Set

An All-College starlight dance, sponsored jointly by AIM, IFC, Panhel, and Leonides will be held tonight on Old Main terrace.

The dance will begin at 8:30. Freshman women have received permissions to attend the dance until it ends, and they then must return immediately to their dorms.

An orchestra under the direction of Darrell Rishel will provide music. In case of rain, the dance will be held tomorrow night at 8:30.

present a program explaining its organization. Mary Jane Woodrow, WSGA president, will speak to the women. Freshman women's customs and Judicial will be explained and a skit will be presented.

Freshman men will meet at 8 tonight in Schwab to learn about the ROTC organization on campus. Representatives from Army, Navy, and Air Force units will explain their branches. All freshmen are required to take ROTC for two years.

Levitt To Speak

Tomorrow, new women will meet again at 6:45 p.m. in Schwab for a program to be presented jointly by Panhellenic Council and Leonides.

Marilyn Levitt, Panhellenic president, will speak to the women on the council's organization. Panhellenic Council is the governing body for sororities on campus.

Ann Burlingame, treasurer of Leonides, will address the women on the organization's functions. Leonides is an independent women's group.

WRA Open House

New sophomore men will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab to learn about the three branch ROTC organizations on campus. Army, Navy, and Air Force representatives will be present to explain their units.

New women will meet again at 6:45 p.m. Friday in White Hall for an open house sponsored by Women's Recreation Association. Tours of the building will be conducted and all facilities will be open for the women's use. WRA will sponsor games.

Fun Night Saturday

Freshman men will meet at 6:45 p.m. Friday in Schwab for Dean of Men's night. H. K. Wilson, dean of men, and his staff, will be introduced by Harry Cover, All-College vice-president. Functions and facilities of the dean's office will be explained.

New sophomore men will meet at 8 p.m. Friday in Schwab for a

Houses Reach Halfway Point in Rushing Period

Fraternity rush week is on! Fall rushing at Penn State's 49 fraternities began Monday and will continue through Orientation Week.

A summer survey of all houses conducted by Interfraternity Council has indicated approximately 315 vacancies to be filled this semester. Although "house guests," during Orientation Week, are expected to fill some of those vacancies, IFC officials feel there will be numerous vacancies that may be filled by fall rushees.

Under an IFC ruling revised two years ago, first semester freshmen cannot be pledged by a fraternity. Freshmen living in the West Dorms cannot break their room contracts with the College, which bind them to College dormitories for one year.

Live At Houses

Second semester freshmen who were on campus last year are permitted to pledge under IFC rulings, but second semester students who come to the College from other schools or Penn State centers may not be pledged. Any upperclassman may be pledged. Freshmen who attended summer sessions at the College, but have not completed one semester, may not pledge.

Rushees may live in fraternities upon invitation as house

Educate Yourself, President Urges

By LEE STERN

President Milton S. Eisenhower last night told a gathering of nearly 4000 new students at Recreation Hall that the individual alone must be held responsible for his college education.

"We can help you learn," the President said, "but only you can educate yourself. At college you must accept the responsibility for your own position."

"The extent to which you learn the true values which Penn State can provide depends entirely on the degree to which you accept the responsibility for yourself."

Best Student Government

The convocation was opened with short introductory remarks by Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs. All-College President James Worth introduced the Prexy.

After welcoming the new students to the campus, the President emphasized the need for cooperation between the students and the administration. "At Penn State we have student government as good as that existing in any other college in the country, but any good institution always tries to do better," he said. "Conditions can still be improved if we work together," he stressed.

The President then outlined five values which in his opinion should be achieved by every student during his four years at Penn State.

Curricula Accredited

The first of these, he said, is "sufficient knowledge in one field to help earn a rewarding place in the total economic fabric of our nation."

All curricula at the College are accredited nationally, so that each graduate may be able to further himself in his chosen field, the President said.

The second of the values to be gained from a college education is "learning how to communicate with logic and clarity," the President said.

Housing Forms Out Tomorrow

The Association of Independent Men will begin distribution of forms for the newly-set-up men's housing card system during registration tomorrow and Friday in Recreation Hall.

Representatives of AIM and Interfraternity Council will help with distribution. IFC cooperated with AIM in setting up the system. Preliminary work of gathering information and designing a card was done during the summer by John Laubach, AIM president, and other AIM representatives.

The system will enable AIM to speed up the formation of Town Council. The cards, which will be kept in the Dean of Men's office, will be a complete record of the addresses of all men on campus and in town. The system will aid especially in locating town men.

Hat Council to Meet

Marvin Krasnansky, acting president of Hat Society Council, yesterday asked all members of the council to contact him so that an election meeting can be scheduled. Krasnansky can be reached at the Daily Collegian office, College extension 543, or at 4012.

Blue Key Hats Ready

Blue Key members may pick up their hats and keys today at the Athletic Association office in Old Main, President Arthur Rosfeld announced yesterday.

Shingles will be given out at the first meeting of the group next Monday or Tuesday.

9000 Start Registration Tomorrow

More than 9000 undergraduate and graduate students will begin registration for the fall semester tomorrow morning. Registration will continue through Saturday.

All students must report to their advisors to pick up the registration application form and the registration envelope. All forms must be filled out before going to Recreation Hall for processing.

Registration will be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow for students with last names beginning with Le and ending with Zy. Students from A to La will register on Friday.

Unclassified and special students will register from next Monday through Friday at any time between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Students in the Division of Intermediate Registration must report to the DIR office at 401 Old Main and then follow the procedure outlined on the registration envelope.

Students with conflicts or courses added or dropped must go through the Board of Control, which will be located in Willard Hall. Signs will be posted indicating the location of each department in the eight undergraduate schools of the College.

2 College Debaters Attend Tournament

Clair George, senior, and Marlin Brenner, who graduated in June, represented the Middle Atlantic region in competition for membership on the American International Debate teams that will tour Australia and Great Britain. The tournament was held in Evanston, Ill.

The tours of two teams to be chosen will be sponsored by the Speech Association of America and by the Institute of International Education.

IFC president, Stanley Wengert, reminded fraternities that rushees may not enter pledgship before 8 a.m. Saturday, 48 hours before classes begin, and warned that IFC will punish violating houses.

Wengert also said no student will be considered by IFC as officially pledged unless he has signed a pledge register at the Student Union in Old Main. The register will appear there Saturday morning.

guests, but cannot break dorm contracts to live there during pledgship. Rushing may not interfere with Orientation Week activities.

BX Features Ties, Dinks, Bows Today

Freshman dress customs will go on sale in the student Book Exchange at 8:30 a.m. today, Milton Bernstein, chairman of the board of control, announced yesterday.

Green dinks and black bow ties for the men and green ribbons for the women must be purchased at the BX, Bernstein said. The official five by eight name cards will also be available.

The BX is located in the Temporary Union Building and will be open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m. through Saturday.

Names Checked

Customs dress must be purchased by 4:30 p.m. Saturday by all freshmen, since customs go into effect at 8 a.m. next Monday, Bernstein said.

Freshmen will have their names checked when the customs are purchased. That list will be used by Tribunal and Judicial to check on freshmen who fail to buy their customs.

The exchange was established three years ago for the purpose of providing students with books and school supplies at the lowest possible prices.

Students may bring used books to the BX to sell, and they may also purchase used books there. Anyone may take used books to the BX and place their own selling price on them.

BX Staff

With each purchase, a receipt is given. These receipts are redeemable for a 20 per cent rebate to the student near the end of the semester.

The BX is run by students appointed by All-College Cabinet. Bernstein is chairman of the BX board of control; Robert Spragg, secretary, chairman of the Used Book Agency; Jay Headley, treasurer; Joseph Haines, personnel director; Clair George, purchasing agent; and Frank Kelly, advertising director.

Frosh Permissions Set By Dean Weston

Freshman women have been granted 9:15 permissions during Orientation Week and sophomores and upperclass women will have 10 o'clocks during the week and 1 o'clocks Friday and Saturday, according to Pearl O. Weston, dean of women.

This week-end freshmen will receive 10 o'clocks, she said. If orientation programs run later than the closing time at the dormitories, coeds may stay until the completion of the program but must return to the dormitories immediately, Miss Weston said.

Sunday night regular freshman hours will go into effect and customs will begin next Monday morning.
