

Opposition Growing To Iranian Premier

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 13—(AP)—A pro-western Iranian politician emerged from retirement today to lead growing opposition to nationalistic Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and his anti-British oil policy.

He is Seyid Zia Ed-Din Tabatabaie, 62, who served as Premier for three months after leading a coup d'etat 30 years ago. He launches his fight to depose Mossadegh by re-opening headquarters of his Eradeye Melli (National Will) party, dormant six years.

Raps Mossadegh

In a speech before several hundred supporters, Seyid Zia accused Mossadegh government leaders of following a creed "of instigating and encouraging the killing of their political opponents." He promised free speech, more equitable taxation, and land reform.

On the subject of oil nationalization he parried newsmen's questions, saying merely "oil has been nationalized—nothing can be done without parliamentary approval."

British Squeeze On

The British in particular are hoping for Mossadegh's fall. His political fortunes have not been helped by recent British moves putting the financial squeeze on Iran's economy. Today Britain ordered British ships not to deliver any more goods to Iran. The squeeze is already being felt.

British spokesmen here feel that Seyid Zia, while not planning to cancel the popular nationalization law, will adopt a more moderate policy. They feel he might agree to British management of the oil fields and resumption of operations which have been at a standstill for two and a half months.

Seyid Zia's chances of becoming Premier are debatable, but are improving as the economic crisis becomes more acute. Many deputies fear loss of their seats if Mossadegh remains in power and controls the elections scheduled for November and December.

critical machinery to Czechoslovakia. The agent, Gustav Davidovic, pleaded guilty. He was sentenced yesterday to six years and 10 months in prison.

2—The U.S. high commission announced that 31 of the 108 Czechs borne to west Germany in a commandeered express train Tuesday had chosen to remain. Originally, the number seeking asylum was placed at 25. The others left today for home by bus, leaving behind the four-car train. In Washington, Senator Cain (R-Wash) had proposed that the group be held indefinitely as potential spies.

There is little likelihood Czech fliers will try to trespass over West Germany. U.S. and British jet-fighters patrol the skies constantly.

At least two plane connections between Czechoslovakia and the West seemingly will continue unchanged. These are operated by the Scandinavian Air Lines between Vienna and Prague and Swiss Air between Zurich and Prague.

Business of the Czechoslovak Air Line west of the iron curtain had been trimmed considerably before the ban on flights over West Germany was imposed. But it has flown three times a week to Paris and twice a week each to Brussels and Amsterdam.
