

Coed Housing Nears Normal, Weston Says

"Slowly but surely" the overflow of students which caused temporary sleeping quarters to be set up in the lounges of the dormitories is returning to normal, Dean of Women Pearl Weston reported yesterday.

From the high tide mark of 96 lounge-housed women, the number has shrunk to approximately 40 with Miss Weston's assurance of normality "one of these days."

The cause of the delay lies in the fact that Miss Weston is holding the reservations of all women who were on campus last year until she receives definite word that they have no intention of returning for the fall semester.

As fast as possible after the cancellation of the $10 deposit the overflow of students is being properly housed, Miss Weston added.

As for men's housing, Russell Clark, director of housing, reported that all students have been quartered. Clark also said that the housing of men in the lounges was only necessary one night and for only ten or 12 men.

Glee Club to Try Out

All men who desire to try out for the Men's Glee Club may still do so at 7:30 tonight in 200 Carnegie Hall, Frank Gullo, director, announced.

An old members who intend to rejoin, must sign up for the club this year.

Pershing Rifles to Meet

The first regular meeting for the Pershing Rifles, Company B-5, will convene in the Armory at 7 tonight for registration and orientation.

All members expecting to be active in the company will register at the meeting. Appointments of officers at all respective stations will be made.

1952 LaVie Ag Pictures Slow

Only a few seniors in the School of Agriculture have had their pictures taken for the 1952 La Vie, James Geffert, editor, announced yesterday.

When their date for picture taking comes, seniors should go to the Penn State Photo Shop as soon as possible, he said, because in this way the staff can do a better job and have more time in which to do it.

Closing dates for each school are final, he said, and if a student does not get his picture taken in the allotted time, there is nothing that can be done. No appointments are necessary.

The dates and schools are:

PSCA Influence Called Student Job

The Penn-State Christian Association's influence on the College campus can only be as strong as its members make it, Luther Harshbarger, executive secretary of the PSCA, told the PSCA forum last night. Harshbarger spoke briefly to approximately 40 upperclassmen who attended the organization meeting of the forum.

Allen Marshall, vice president of the PSCA cabinet, outlined the PSCA's program for the year. He said it will include Bible study and theology discussions, studies on religion in higher education, a colloquy on religion in politics, and tours of the United Nations' New York headquarters and Washington.

Talent Sought For Collegian, Froth, Inking

"Calling all candidates!" is the cry of editors of campus publications this week.

Talent is especially sought in the freshman and sophomore classes. It is not necessary to be enrolled in the Department of Journalism to get on the staff of one of these publications, nor is any previous journalistic experience required. Promotions are made on the basis of interest and ability.

Reporting, editorial, art, business, typing, promotion, circulation, advertising and photography positions are available.

The Daily Collegian has issued a call to news candidates and photographers at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 9 Carnegie Hall.

Froth editorial, art, and photography staffs, and new candidates for these positions, will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 2 Carnegie Hall. Workings of the magazine will be explained and assignments will be made.

Staffs and candidates of Inking, campus literary magazine, will meet at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in 217 Willard Hall.

Players' Shindig Set for Friday Night

The annual Players' Shindig, designed to acquaint new and interested students with the functions of the campus dramatics group, will be held at 7 p.m. Friday in Schwab Auditorium.

Guided tours of the auditorium's theatrical facilities will be made. Entertainment will be provided and refreshments served. Anyone may attend.

Allen Gardenhour, Jr., 1950 graduate in electrical engineering, has been appointed an electrical engineer at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, White Oak, Md.

Construction—

age Building nears completion, but because of the lack of the same precious steel beams, the Pond Laboratory addition will be delayed in its completion.

Work is underway on the new stairways on the fourth floor which is being added to the Main Engineering building. Much interior work on the floors now occupied has been completed.

The two 90-foot flag poles on front campus have received a new coat of paint.

Donald Coble climbed each of the poles to give them their coat of silvery paint.

Sunday Movies?

The approval of County Solicitor Austin O. Furst to a petition for a vote on Sunday movies in State College Borough and College Township has been announced.

Since no objections to the petition were filed by last Friday's deadline, the question will be placed on a separate ballot to be used by the voters in those two districts at the general election, Nov. 6.

Approximately 1100 persons signed the petition.

Debaters Will Meet

The men's varsity debate team will hold its first meeting for the year at 7 tonight in 305 Sparks.
