NAME.....
ADDRESS.....

Dear Mom,

I've just learned a way to save you money, and myself some unnecessary walking. Instead of sending my clothes home to have them cleaned and laundered, I'm going to send them to the SDCA. The SDCA? The Student Dry-Cleaning Agency. It's a non-profit organization operated by some of the students. The SDCA serves as a pick-up and delivery point for most of the downtown establishments.

How is this going to save you money? Well, I've checked the dry cleaning prices at home and in State College. They're cheaper here, and the SDCA prices are practically the same as the prices downtown.

In addition, one of the fellows that works for the student agency told me that the cleaners are going to offer a special every Thursday. I'm going to watch the Collegian ads and take advantage of this "special day" each week.

In short, Mom, it looks as if using the SDCA will help to save money on my dry cleaning bill. It'll also save me time and a lot of walking.

Ofo course, I'm also helping a bunch of fellow students work their way through college. Pretty good deal, Mom?

Love,
Me

P.S. The girls are going to be able to take advantage of "special day" each week, too. Watch the Collegian on Thursday morning.
