and other factors being equal, upperclassmen are given precedence.

The three largest loan funds are the Andrew Carnegie Beneficiary Loan Fund with a principal of $100,000, James A. Beaver Loan Fund with a $50,000 principal, and the Mary Beaver White Loan Fund with a principal of $64,000. Income not loaned on the latter two must be reinvested until the principal is raised to $100,000.

Herbert H. Kinley, administrative assistant, said that although it is impossible to predict the conditions 15 years from now, the income from loan funds will be more than adequate for the next five years.

Should cabinet decide to set up a student scholarship fund instead of the loan fund which was recommended, it would be the first student sponsored scholarship with the exception of the scholarships set up and administered by the Panhellenic Association, Cwens, and Mortar Board.

Kinley pointed out that if cabinet decides in favor of a scholarship fund, it should be made perpetual with a means of increasing the principal. This, he suggested, might be carried on by so delegating the profits from the spring carnival each year.

He also suggested that a clause requesting, but not demanding, that the recipient repay the scholarship when and if possible, would be of help in increasing the amount of the principal for the fund.

Ralph Egolf is chairman of the cabinet committee.
