500 Attend 4th NSA Convention

At the fourth National Student Association convention, more than 500 delegates from 200 colleges discussed everything from McCarthyism to deemphasization of intercollegiate athletics.

A report on the convention, held in August at the University of Minnesota, was given to All-College Cabinet Thursday by William Klisanin, chairman of the committee at the College.

McCarthyism Defined

McCarthyism, which was defined by the conference as "characterized by reliance upon legal legislation immunity, guilty-by-association, and unproven scatter-shot charges," was condemned by a 220 to 48 vote.

By an overwhelming majority, the delegates voted to re-affirm NSA's stand on academic freedom, urging that no teacher be dismissed without being made aware of the causes and without being given the opportunity to defend himself.

The delegates, representing 670,000 college students, urged that college athletics be returned to the students. They demanded that intercollegiate sports be both de-commercialized and deemphasized.

Lucky Frosh Finds 'Foolish Hatmen'

"Tuesday is Froth Day" are the lucky words by which Joseph Barnett won Froth's "Foolish Hatman" contest.

Paul Poorman of Paroli Nons, the appointed "Foolish Hatman," was approached at 10 a.m. yesterday by Barnett, who had contacted many other hatmen before

"I was very surprised and pleased when I found out that I had finally made the right choice," said Barnett. "I had asked so many other hatmen that I had almost given up hope."

The contest began on Monday, Oct. 1. All freshmen were eligible who were undergoing full customs. The rules called for a frosh to find the "Foolish Hatman" between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., and to say "Tuesday is Froth Day" before any other greeting.

Being the winner, Barnett will accompany Frothy in the Flaming Foilage Festival race October 6, sponsored by the Lock Haven Express, which many Pennsylvania schools are entering. The forty mile race down the Susquehanna River will begin at 8 a.m. and last approximately five hours. Barnett's comment: "I'll be in there paddling."

University to Open For Exiled Students

By DAVE PELLNITZ

Another step in combating Soviet enslavement will be taken on Nov. 1 when the Free Europe University in exile begins its first academic year with a student body of more than 100 undergraduates from Eastern European countries now behind the Iron Curtain.

The university was founded as an educational branch of the National Committee for a Free Europe, a group of private American citizens "united in their conviction that freedom is indivisible." Among the members of this organization are such notables as Dwight D. Eisenhower, James A. Farley, Darryl F. Zanuck, Francis Biddle, Cecil B. de Mille, and Spyros Skouras.

Paris is Central Branch

The purpose of the university is to provide a study center for young people of both sexes, without distinction as to race or faith, who find themselves exiled from their countries of origin. It was also founded to equip these people for future leadership in their native lands.

The university maintains a Western European branch in Paris as a central base of operations on the continent. Here, too, is the committee on awards and placement which will select those young people to be assisted in the further pursuit of their studies at recognized Western European or Near Eastern universities and colleges.

Study Under Exiled Profs

At present, however, the main body of these students will be assembled in the Free Europe College at Strasbourg, France, and students will take many of their courses at the University of Strasbourg, although the college is in no way part of the university. One of the requirements to be eligible for these scholarships is being capable to follow university courses in the French language.

The curriculum will also include the Central and Eastern European Seminar, which offers the students instruction in their national cultural heritage. The seminar will include a national section for each country represented by the students. Instruction will be handled by exiled professors and will be chiefly in the native tongue.

A third component of the students' instruction will be a series of lectures to be given by French, American, and other visiting educators and men of affairs. The lectures will deal mainly with particular aspects of life in the United States, France, and other Western democracies.

Asylum for Exiles

Other work of the National Committee for a Free Europe includes the operation of Radio Free Europe in Western Germany. Through its broadcasting facilities exiled democratic leaders daily break through the Iron Curtain with messages designed to keep alive the hope of freedom and to get to the forces working for ultimate liberation inside the Curtain.

The Committee also provides asylum, assistance, and employment to individuals and groups of exiles during their stay in the West.

Further information concerning the Committee and the Free European University in Exile can be obtained by writing the National Committee for a Free Europe, Inc., 301 Empire State Building, New York, N.Y.

The first meeting of the West Dorm council will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the McKee Hall lounge.

Tribunal Ratio Change OK'd By LA Council

The Liberal Arts Student Council Monday instructed Edward Shanken, president, to vote in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment changing the Tribunal ratio.

In other action taken, the council voted in favor of an athletic holiday Monday morning following the University of Pittsburgh football game. The council, however, instructed Shanken to vote against a proposed central promotion agency.

The council also voted in favor of a scholarship fund to be set up from last year's Spring Week profits, and selected an international understanding committee with Robert Alderdice as chairman.

The constitutional amendment proposed by All-College Cabinet last week to change the Tribunal ratio from five seniors and two juniors to five seniors, three juniors, and one sophomore was received favorably by the council.

The half-holiday was originally set for the Saturday morning of the Villanova game. Changing the date was thought to benefit more students.

A scholarship fund to be set up from last year's Spring Week profits was recommended rather than a loan fund, because the loan funds now in existence are considered adequate.

An international understanding committee was formed. Robert Alderdice, president of the International Relations Club, was appointed chairman, and Hardy Williams, John Baron, Guyla Woodward, Ann Quigley, and Edward Shanken, ex-officio, as members.

The committee will promote international understanding with exhibits and motion pictures in conjunction with the faculty of the Liberal Arts school during the month of October. Faculty representatives will be appointed by the dean of the school.

Classes will begin at 6:30 p.m. Monday. The sessions will last one hour each week.

About 300 students took lessons last year.
