

Four of Villanova's Toughest Wildcats

pects the Wildcats have had in a long time. He weighs 230 and stands six feet five inches. Brannau, the littlest man on the team at 155 pounds is the Mainliners' quarterback and passer. Addiego, a sophomore halfback, scored three TD's against Army last week. - Rilo, co-captain of the Wildcats, will play offensive end.

Nittany Lions Ready For Villanova Contest

BOB SZAJNA, the Lions' sophomore signal-caller, will operate from the quarterback slot this afternoon against Villanova. The former Reading High School gridiron star, who played quarterback last year for Penn State's freshman football squad, was impressive in his first college game last week, against Boston University. The tall, rangy ball-handler led the Lions to a close 40-34 victory over the Terriers.

TED SHATTUCK, 200-pound halfback for the Nittany Lion gridgers, who today will lead Penn State's ground attack against Villanova.

CO-CAPTAIN Art Betts, (above), Penn State's rugged six-foot, three-inch, 205-pound left end, will be one of Coach Rip Engle's main offensive cogs in the State football team which plays Villanova today.

ED HOOVER, Penn State's six-foot, three-inch, 230 pound offensive tackle, is rated by several sports magazines as one of the outstanding tackles in the East. A senior from Altoona, he decided to attend Penn State because of its proximity to his home town. He is playing his third year of varsity ball. First broke into the starting lineup his sophomore year against Boston College.
