Yanks Take Series Lead By 13-1 Win

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP)—The New York Yankees put the slug on Leo Durocher's wonder boys, the New York Giants, 13-1, today, and move into their own ball yard with a 3-2 victory count in their favor for tomorrow's sixth game of the 1951 World Series playoff.

Records were tied all over the Polo grounds as Gil McDougald, the Yankees' great rookie infielder, propelled a home run into the left field balcony with the bases loaded in the third inning and Joe DiMaggio celebrated his 50th appearance in a world series game.

Only two other batters ever matched the feat of the 22-year-old McDougald, who only last season was the most valuable star in the Texas league. None had done it since 1936, when Tony Lazzeri of the Yanks helped officiate at a similar massacre of the Giants in the same park. DiMaggio's big 50 equalled the record set by Frankie Frisch more than a decade ago.

Co-starring with McDougald in the 12-hit assault was little Phil Rizzuto, who pushed a two-run homer into the close right field stands in the fourth off Montia Kennedy. The great shortstop also clouted a single and scored three times.

Ironically for the Giants, the size of the beating they received would have been much smaller had the game been played in Yankee Stadium. It is extremely

Tryouts for 'Tartuffe' Will Continue Tonight

Tryouts for the Players' production of Moliere's comedy "Tartuffe," will continue from 7 to 9:30 tonight in the Green Room on the second floor of Schwab Auditorium.

Roles for seven men and five women are still to be filled. Those interested may sign up for an appointment on the bulletin board in the Green Room.

Madame Pandit Cancels Appearance at Seminar

Madame Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, ambassador to the United States from India, scheduled to speak at tonight's closing session of the Seminar on Human Relations at the Nittany Lion Inn, has been forced to cancel her engagement because of illness.

The seminar, being sponsored jointly by the College and the United Steelworkers of America, opened Sunday night with addresses by Philip Murray, president of the United Steelworkers, and President Milton S. Eisenhower.

In the absence of the ambassador, union leaders will summarize the sessions of the past four days at tonight's banquet.

Those who hold tickets to the dinner may get a refund by returning the tickets to the person from whom they were purchased.

Factual Information
Speaking before the seminar yesterday, Dr. Otto Klineberg, professor of psychology at Columbia University, explained how attitudes, but he warned that fight to help wipe out discrimination.

BX to Sell Penn State Class Rings

The official Penn State class ring, approved by the permanent ring committee of All-College Cabinet, will be sold by the Book Exchange starting Monday, Milton Bernstein, chairman of the BX Board of Control, announced yesterday.

Students purchasing rings through the BX will receive a five percent refund at the end of the semester, according to Bernstein. The usual 20 percent discount cannot be granted on the rings because of the small margin profit.

Tax of 20 Percent
Bernstein emphasized that the BX was a service organization for the students and operated on a non-profit basis. "With the five percent refund at the semester's end, students will be obtaining their rings at practically cost," Bernstein said.

Cost of the rings will vary between $21.75 and $26.25 depending on the weight of the ring. A twenty percent tax must be added to determine the total cost of the ring.

Bernstein said the rings would be available in onyx, ruby, spinel, and garnet. Fraternity letters may be embossed on the stones for an extra charge.

One-Way Traffic Trial Will Begin

An experimental system of one way traffic north will go into effect on Shortlidge road between College avenue and Pollock road at 6 tonight.

Walter H. Wiegand, supervisor of plant extension, announced the experiment in an attempt to remedy the present congestion near McElwain and Simmons Halls during the evening hours.

The one way traffic from College avenue to Pollock road will remain in effect until 2 a.m. tomorrow. Two way traffic will be permitted tomorrow night. However, the one way experiment will be tried again on both Friday and Saturday nights.

An officer of the campus patrol will be stationed at the Pollock road intersection to prevent traffic from driving south on Shortlidge road.

Wiegand explained that the experiment will end at 2 a.m. Sunday and the present two way traffic will then be resumed.

An analysis of the experiment will be made by the physical plant next week.

One phase of the experiment was carried out last weekend.

Campus patrol stationed a number of patrolmen along Shortlidge road in an attempt to eliminate the illegal parking which is responsible for the tieups.

Captain Philip Mark, of campus patrol, said yesterday that only three violators were apprehended, and that traffic flowed smoothly.

Of the three, Mark said, one student drove his car up the sidewalk to the side door of Simmons Hall and a second parked across the entrance to the parking lot.

Wiegand also was pleased with the reduced congestion last weekend, but explained that it was not a true test since a large proportion of the student body was off campus for the weekend.

Mark explained that it would probably be financially impossible to continue using so large a number of patrolmen to enforce the no parking regulations, but that campus patrol will make similar checks from time to time.

Record Crowd Seen For Oct. 20

A record breaking crowd is expected to participate in Penn State's 31st Homecoming Day Saturday, Oct. 20.

An alumni luncheon, golf tournament, and dance-party are some of the activities highlighting the homecoming schedule. These are in addition to the Michigan State football game and cross-country meet.

Registration of alumni will begin Oct. 19 in Recreation Hall and will continue through Saturday morning.

Friday afternoon and Saturday morning an alumni golf tournament is scheduled.

The Alumni Council, governing body of the association, will hold its annual meeting Saturday morning. At 11:30 a.m. the alumni luncheon will be held in Recreation Hall.

Until next Monday, alumni will receive priority on reserved seats for the Saturday night production of the Thespian show, "Bottoms Up."

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, a record Beaver Field crowd will witness the Nittany Lion's game with Michigan State. The cross-country team will also meet Michigan State Saturday afternoon.

A cider party and dance for alumni will be held in Recreation Hall Saturday night.

Fraternities and sororities have planned many special functions for returning alumni both Friday and Saturday nights.

Schott Attends ECAC Meeting In New York

Dr. Carl Schott, dean of the physical education school, served as a member of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference committee which met in New York last weekend.

The committee met to discuss 12 points of athletic policy brought up by the council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Dr. Schott listed four points which caused the greatest controversy and discussion at the meeting. They were: (1) pre-and post-season practice in all sports; (2) the substitution rule in football; (3) post-season games and championship tournaments; and (4) length of schedules.

Most of the points were merely given cursory discussion since the same committee will meet again on Nov. 9 to formulate final decisions.

At a meeting last spring of the NCAA council, Schott presented most of the 12 points. The NCAA council passed the 12 points on to the ECAC.

Men's Debate Team To Meet Tonight

New and old members of the men's debate team will meet at 7 tonight in 305 Sparks to hear the first inter-squad debate of the year.

Edward Shanken and Robert Alderdice will take the affirmative side of the question, Resolved: That the federal government should adopt a permanent plan of wage and price control. Mark Unger and Jay Heady will oppose them with the negative side.

3 Councils To Decorate Windows

Plans for the AIM window display project, which will be held Oct. 15-22, and election of Pollock Council officers were the topics of the Nittany and Pollock Council meetings held last night.

Joseph Haines was elected president of the Pollock Council at its meeting last night. Other officers elected include Frank Schrey, vice president; Gail Shaver, secretary, and Lewis Johnson, treasurer.

The theme of the window display project will be worked around Pennsylvania Week and Homecoming, Jack Baldwin, president of the State College Commerce Club, said.

The Commerce Club, which met with the window display committee last Monday, has secured 29 windows in town with the help of Gene Fullmer, director of the Club.

Finest Attempt
Windows will be decorated by 25 dormitories from the Nittany-Pollock area, three will be filled by the Town Council, and the last window will be decorated by the Barons, Nittany-Pollock social group.

"This is the first year that anything like this has been attempted," Gail Shaver, window display chairman, said. "We hope to enlarge the project next year," Shaver said, "until it becomes known all over the state."

Actress to Present 'Americana' Tonight

Virginia Sale will show what can be done with wig, glasses, change of voice, and facial expression when she presents her original "Americana" character sketches at 8 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

Sponsored by Delta Gamma sorority, Miss Sale will give the same comic monologues that played to full houses at Michigan State last week, according to Patricia Wertz, publicity chairman.

Quick changes in view of the audience, and original costumes add interest to the program, which consists of six numbers. In "Three O'Clock in the Morning" Miss Sale portrays a hostess finally getting rid of party guests.

Dakota Fever
In "The Husband's Night at the Ladies Monday Morning Club" she is the stuffy president, the foggy secretary, and the tittering chairman of the sick committee. The final number is a dramatization of Dakota Fever, the autobiography of her aunt, Anna M. Robbins, in which she plays several characters in the period covering 1880-1945.

Her other sketches are "Traveling on the Illinois Central," "Movie Mama," and "The School Ma'am."

Tickets will be sold today by members of Delta Gamma at the Corner Room and at the Student Union desk for $1.20 including tax. Representatives spoke at fraternities and sororities yesterday, and arranged a display in the window of the Athletic Store.

Proceeds for Blind
Proceeds from the show will be used for the blind. The sorority sponsors nursery schools in Los Angeles and Minneapolis for children with eye defects; training programs for orthoptic technicians; and classes where parents of blind children may learn how to help their children.

Personal services to blind individuals include entertainment and reading, transportation, and sale of articles made by the blind. Profits will be shared by local organizations who are working with sight conservation.

Miss Sale, sister of the late entertainer Chic Sale, combines her entertainment work with the job of being a wife and mother. After motion picture and radio work in Hollywood, she came East to appear on television with her husband, Sam Wren.

They had their own show, "The Wren's Nest," which Miss Sale wrote herself. For eight years she was featured as "Martha" in the Sunday serial, "Those We Love," which is to be televised soon from New York.

Miss Sale is a Delta Gamma herself, from the University of Illinois.
