Oxford University Debators

WILLIAM REES-MOGG (L.) and Richard Taverne, members of Oxford University's debate team, will be at the College tonight to take part in the annual international debate.

Penn State, Oxford To Debate Tonight

Top debating talent will be put to the best tonight as Oxford University's William Rees-Mogg and Richard Taverne join Penn State's David Lewis and Clair George in a mixed debate on the merits of Winston Churchill's return as prime minister.

The 16th annual international debate is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in 121 Sparks. The topic will be Resolved: That the return of Mr. Churchill as prime minister would be highly regrettable.

The teams will be mixed, with Taverne and George arguing affirmative while Rees-Mogg and David Lewis take the negative.

The non-decision debate, sponsored by New York's Institute for International Education, is open to all without charge. An audience-participation forum will be held afterward.

Taverne, who has lived in both Holland and the United States, is studying ancient history and philosophy. He is the former secretary and librarian of the Oxford Union Society and ex-president of the Oxford Labor Club.

Rees-Mogg is also majoring in history, although he hopes to make journalism his profession.

He is former president of the Union Society and the University Conservative Club. He has served in the education branch of the Royal Air Force.

George, manager of the men's debate team, represented the College in last year's international debate. He was on the negative team that permanently retired the Washington and Jefferson debate trophy and took first place in the state tournament at Temple University last Spring.

Lewis placed first among the top 20 debaters in the grand national debate tournament. He debated the negative side at Washington and Jefferson, and Temple.

Last year England sent Ernest Alwyn Smith from the University of Birmingham and John Gwynn Williams from the University College of North Wales. Representatives from Oxford were here in 1948 and 1949.

Kent Forster, associate professor of history, will chair the debate.

Prexy Declines Comment On Financial Solution

President Milton S. Eisenhower yesterday had no comment on the request by Gov. John S. Fine that the state's four largest state-aided colleges help find a solution to Pennsylvania's financial problems, according to the Associated Press.

The governor sent telegrams over the weekend to the heads of Penn State, University of Pennsylvania, Temple University, and University of Pittsburgh, asking them to set up a joint study of the revenue and tax problems.

It was understood that President Eisenhower had wired a reply to the governor this morning. His stand on the proposal was not announced, however.

Chancellor Rufus H. Fitzgerald of Pitt assigned two of his aides to the job. University of Pennsylvania President Harold Stassen called a meeting for today, but a spokesman said he would go along with the request.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple, said he wired the governor that he will appoint two professors to take part in the tax study on the assumption that the other colleges will join in the move, the AP reported.

Fine told College officials that Dr. Edward B. Logan, his budget secretary, and Otto F. Messner, his revenue secretary, will provide "such pertinent data as you may require for this study."

The situation which Fine says "very directly and seriously affects some universities and colleges of the state as well as the hospitals, schools and other state services," has arisen out of the Senate snarl over the governor's proposed one-half of one per cent income tax.

It was pointed out that Penn State alone is $4,000,000 behind in its state aid receipts and has turned to bank loans to maintain operations.

Just how the joint study would be conducted or who would handle what part of the revenue-expenditure problems was not stated by Fine, the AP said.

Penn State Engineer Goes on Sale Today

The Penn State Engineer will appear on the stands today.

The first issue of the semester will be available at the Student Union desk in Old Main and at the Corner Room for 20 cents per copy.

Tickets on Sale For Ag Party

Tickets for the Ag Hill Party, Nov. 3, will go on sale tomorrow for members of Ag Hill's clubs, William Griffith, publicity chairman for the party, announced yesterday.

Club presidents will handle the sales within the clubs, Griffith said. Tickets for lower campus will be available at the student union desk in Old Main early next week.

The tickets will cost $1 per person.

Plans have been made, Griffith said, to accommodate 2500 at this year's party. This is an increase of about 1000 over last year's party.

An incomplete list of prizes to be given away at the party includes meat, cider, plants, apples, vegetables, flowers, chickens, eggs, butter, cheese, honey, and potatoes. These prizes will be contributed by the Ag Hill departments concerned with their production.

Koons Requests Copy

Robert Koons, promotion manager of the Daily Collegian, has asked the promotion staff to have their copy for the alumni page ready to be turned in at the promotion staff meeting tonight.

15 Top Juniors Chosen to Pick Queen of Prom

Fifteen members of the junior class have been designated as "outstanding juniors" and will form a selections committee to choose Miss Junior Class to reign over Junior Prom weekend festivities.

The 15 students were selected last week by a committee composed of H. K. Wilson, dean of men; Pearl O. Weston, dean of women; George Donovan, manager of student activities; James Worth, All-College president, and Michael Hanek, president of the junior class.

Entrance Rules

Those selected from the class as outstanding juniors who will form the queen selection committee are Lee Coy, Merritt Dinnage, Thomas Durek, Hanek, Janet Herd, Joan Hutchon, John Laubach, Jo An Lee, William Leonard, Samuel Marino, Jean Nisley, Arthur Rosfeld, Richard Rostmeyer, Walter Sachs, and Joan Yeger.

Entrants for the title of Miss Junior Class must be junior coeds. Their photos must be submitted to the Student Union desk in Old Main between Oct. 22 and 12 noon on Oct. 27.

15 to be Chosen

Entrants may be sponsored by groups or individuals. Each photo must contain the name and address of the entrant and the sponsor's name on the back.

The top fifteen entrants will be chosen by the selection committee following interviews. The top five coeds and Miss Junior Class will be chosen by the committee's final ballot at the Junior Prom on Nov. 9.

The queen and her court will be crowned at the dance. She will be guest of honor at the Syracuse football game on Nov. 10 and will ride in a float at the game.

Pennsylvania Week Now Under Way

The sixth annual Pennsylvania Week got under way yesterday, and throughout the state this week, educational institutions and business, industrial, labor, farm, religious, fraternal, civic, and patriotic organizations will sponsor programs and activities designed to salute the state.

In his proclamation of Oct. 1, Gov. John S. Fine referred to Pennsylvania as a "Titan of industry, a leader in agriculture, a haven of religious freedom, and the home of natural beauty, scenic wonders and historic shrines."

Mills Named President of West Dorms

Richard Mills, senior in Industrial Engineering, last night was elected president of West Dorm council. He succeeds Thomas Durek.

Other officers elected were Ralph Griffith, vice president; David Stamm, secretary; and Richard Taglang, treasurer.

3 Point Program

Mills, who last year served as secretary of the Association of Independent Men Board of Governors, presented a three point program to be followed by the council during the year:

1. Strict cooperation between the dormitory units and the council on the one hand and between the council and AIM on the other.

2. Elimination of politics from the function of the council and AIM.

3. A broad social program for the West Dorms. Mills, who last year chaired the AIM social committee, suggested that a joint social committee be established with the women of Thompson Hall to facilitate the third point of his program.

Alumni Dance

He was elected by a vote of ten to seven over Griffith, who later was chosen vice president.

The council also voted to extend the use of the West Dorm lounge to AIM for the AIM-sponsored alumni dance. The dance, to be open to all independent undergraduates and alumni, will be held Saturday from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

The next regular meeting of the council will be at 7 p.m. Oct. 22 in the Hamilton Hall lounge.

Ten Alumni Gridders To Return Saturday

Ten Penn State football lettermen of bygone years have accepted invitations to return to their alma mater for Saturday's Homecoming Day festivities.

This will be the beginning of the new alumni Homecoming Day procedure to honor former Penn State football letterwinners.

Harold Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, said that the Saturday plans call for honoring those football teams between the years 1887 to 1901 and the 1926 team.

Gilbert said that this new alumni homecoming program will be carried out in future years by adding one number to the previous year's team. The base years will be 1900 and 1925.

Next year the teams chosen for Homecoming Day honors will be 1902 and 1927, an advance of one year in the last number.

Of the 86 members of the 1887 to 1901 and 1926 teams asked to be guests this Saturday, only ten will be able to be here.

Friday night they will attend the Varsity S meeting in Hamilton Hall. Saturday noon the old gridgers will be guests of the Alumni Association banquet. Then at the Michigan State-

Penn State football game Saturday afternoon, the 10 honored men will sit together in a special section. At half time their names will be called and while they stand up, appropriate music will be played.

No alumnus of the first Nittany team, 1887, has said he would be back so R. W. Moty, class of '93 will be the oldest returnee.

Members of the '26 Lion squad who will be here Saturday are Harold Dangerfield, Kenneth R. Weston, William Pritchard and John Curtin.

Graduates in 1903 who will be here also are Edward B. Farr, E. E. Hewitt, and Arthur Schoffstall. The team of '95 will be represented by G. K. Spence and 1901 by L. R. Scholl.
