

Campus Will Celebrate 6th Anniversary of UN

Plans for the celebration of United Nations Day and United Nations Week at the College have been completed, according to D. W. Russell, chairman of the faculty committee.

The program will open with the celebration of United Nations Day on Oct. 24, marking the sixth anniversary of the signing of the charter. Muri Eren, representative of the Turkish government, and Dr. Jan Albert Goris, representative of the Belgian government, will speak to students, faculty members, and towns people at 8 p.m. in 121 Sparks.

21 Colleges Invited To Colloquy

Twenty-one colleges and universities have been invited to participate in the Penn State Christian Association colloquy on "The Loyalty of Free Men" Nov. 16 to 18.

Student organizations at the College will be invited to send delegates to the colloquy, which will begin with a banquet at the Nittany Lion Inn Nov. 16. Russell Wiggins, editor of the Washington Post, will speak.

The colloquy will be divided into three parts, "Individual Rights and a Free Society," "The Religious Basis of Freedom," and "The Use of Power in a Free Society."

Other speakers will be Richardson Dilworth, city treasurer of Philadelphia; Col. Francis P. Miller, a consultant of the State Department; James Fulton, head of the House foreign affairs committee; Dr. James C. Bennett, professor of Christian ethics, Union Theological Seminary; Dr. Liston Pope, dean of Yale Theological Seminary; and Harry Butcher, executive secretary, committee of seventy, Philadelphia.

Colleges invited to attend the colloquy are Albright College, Allegheny College, Bucknell University, Dickinson College, Franklin and Marshall College, Indiana State Teachers College, Lehigh University, Lincoln University, Mansfield State Teachers College, Pennsylvania College for Women, Princeton University, University of Maryland, Wilson College, Susquehanna University, Juniata College, Gettysburg College, Lycoming College, Lock Haven State Teachers College and Penn State centers at Altoona, Hazleton, and DuBois.

PSC Membership Deadline Extended

The Penn State Club has extended the deadline for membership applications to Nov. 6. An initiation of new members is planned for a short time after this date.

The club elected David Thomas secretary at its last meeting to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Derle Riordan.

An invitation from Philotes, independent women's organization, to hold a mixer in Simmon's lounge was accepted. The affair will be held next Friday evening.

Lewis Hoover, president, announced that Claire Morris will be the club's candidate for the Belle Hop Ball Queen to be chosen at the dance on Nov. 3.

Peter Lansbury, athletic chairman, announced that both the swimming and football teams will organize. The swimming team will meet at 7 tonight in the Glennland Pool and the football team will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday at Beaver Field.

James Madison, the fourth president of the United States, was the oldest of 12 children in his family.

BX to Refund Money

The Used Book Agency at the TUB will be open until tomorrow to refund money for books that have been sold. Unsold books will also be returned to owners.

Students must bring their pink claim tickets with them to claim money or books. UBA store hours are 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Mag Agency Offers Bargain Subscription Tolls

With the cost of books skyrocketing, the College asking more money for food, and even the telegraph company getting in the act by raising their prices, it would seem that inflation is really here.

However, there is still one place where students can save money. The Magazine Subscription Agency, newly organized on campus, is selling magazine subscriptions at a special student rate, which is about half the regular subscription price. And that isn't inflation.

The agency is located in 112 Old Main, the student employment office.

James Ramsey, general manager of the agency, "walked" into the job when he went up to buy a magazine subscription, and found no one selling them. His assistants are John Marino, George Fijo, and James Moss.

Band to Play At Horse Show

Penn State's Blue Band will be a feature of Penn State Night Tuesday at the week-long show held by the Pennsylvania National Horse Show Association in Harrisburg.

Appropriate marching formations, College songs, and equestrian music will be performed for the thousands of visitors expected to attend the show.

Gov. John S. Fine will be guest of honor. President Milton S. Eisenhower and members of the Board of Trustees of the College have also been invited.

The band will travel to Harrisburg next Tuesday afternoon to practice in the Arena, where the performance will be held.

To Take Washington Trip

The School of Home Economics is sponsoring the United Nations Festival on Oct. 27 and 28 in carrying out the theme of United Nations Week on campus which is to emphasize international understanding. There will be a 50 cent admission for adults and 25 cent admission for children.

The Penn State Christian Association, the Department of Education, and the Department of Political Science are co-sponsoring a student trip to Washington on Oct. 28. There will be a chartered bus taking 35 students and (Continued on page eight)

Resident Counselors Lead Two-Way Life

By ANDY McNEILLIE

Want to know who some of the hardest working men on campus are? They are the resident counselors in men's dormitories.

These men must lead a double life, one as a full time graduate student, and one as a kind of "Mr. Anthony" for hundreds of Penn State students.

Counselors work through the Dean of Men's office. They must be graduate students, but it is not necessary to have an undergraduate degree from the College.

The main duty of the resident advisors, as they are sometimes called, is to assist students with any problem they might encounter during their stay on the campus. The counselors must know all phases of campus life—fraternities, student organizations, student government.

Homesickness—A Problem

One of the earliest duties a counselor must perform is to help new students adjust themselves to their new environment. Many students need help in changing their curriculum, or may not even know what subject in which to major. In the latter case, the counselor may send the student to the Psychology Clinic to have aptitude tests taken during Orientation Week analyzed.

The counselors must also help students with many personal problems, the most frequent being homesickness. Counselors say, many students leave campus each year because of homesickness. A student's personal problem is kept that way—personal.

At the present time, counselors are engaged in helping students set up their unit student government in the dorms, but the counselors want to emphasize that they are not disciplinarians as many students think. That is left to tribunals a student government may form.

Extra-Curricular Activities

Resident advisors also help set up a system of student tutors to aid other students not doing so well with their studies. Tutors are usually paid 75 cents an hour.

A program just being started provides for each counselor to have one other specific function and that is help students with extra-curricular activities. One may form a glee club, another an orchestra or dance band, and another could coach and set up athletic events.

Applications Ready For Blood Donors

Pledge forms are available today for students who wish to participate in this year's blood donor drive, Millard Rehburg, drive chairman, has announced. The announcement was made at Tuesday night's meeting of the blood drive committee established recently by All-College Cabinet.

The committee will bring a fully-equipped Red Cross blood-mobile to the TUB from Johnstown Nov. 14 and 15 to secure 400 pints of blood from students. The blood will be used for servicemen in Korea and in hospitals in this country.

Must Be 21

Pledge forms for those who wish to donate a pint of blood to the drive may be obtained at the Student Union desk in Old Main, the West Dorm main lounge, the TUB, 112 Old Main, and in women's dormitories.

Those who wish to pledge blood must be over 21, or between 18 and 21 if they receive written permission from their parents. Students who fill out pledge forms must return them by Nov. 5 to 112 Old Main.

Drive Last Year

Donors will be notified by postcard as to the day and time they should appear to give blood. All who pledge to donate will receive a physical examination prior to the donation. Those who donate will be dismissed from all classes from the time of the donation until the end of the day.

A blood drive was conducted in the borough last year by the College administration, but donations were limited because of the short notice students received, Rehburg said. This year's drive is being conducted by the cabinet committee and the student body.

Marino to Head Rally Committee

Samuel Marino, president of Druids, sophomore hat society, was appointed head of a permanent pep rally committee Tuesday night at the meeting of Hat Society Council.

In addition to Marino, two members from Cwens, Chimes, and Mortar Board, Skull and Bones, Parmis Nous, Androcles, and Blue Key will make up the committee.

The council also set up a committee to look into freshman customs changes. Richard Rostmeyer, president of Androcles, junior hat society, will chair the committee. Other committee members are Ramsey Hamilton, treasurer of Blue Key, Nancy McClain, president of Mortar Board, and Jo Ann Lee, president of Cwens.

Ag Party to Benefit Philippine University

The Ag Hill party, scheduled for Nov. 3 will be a benefit affair with the proceeds going to aid Silliman University in the Philippine Islands.

The university, a co-educational institution at Dumaguette on Negros Island, will use the money to rebuild and also advance agriculture.

Faculty Council Names Wyland As Chairman

Mary J. Wyland, professor of education, has been named chairman of the Faculty Advisory Council for the 1951-52 academic year.

Dr. John H. Ferguson, professor of political science and retiring chairman, said the other elected officers are Arthur H. Reede, professor of economics, vice chairman; and Dr. Joseph G. Rayback, associate professor of American history, secretary.

New committees named include textbooks—Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter, professor of psychology, chairman; Dr. John S. Bowman, professor of English composition; and Dr. Ruth L. Pike, associate professor of foods and nutrition.

Traffic and parking—Dr. Thomas C. Kavanagh, professor of civil engineering, chairman; Dr. John B. Washko, associate professor of agronomy; and Eugene C. Bischoff, professor of physical education.

Scheduling and registration—Luther T. Bissey, assistant professor of petroleum and natural gas engineering, chairman; E. Scott Roscoe, assistant professor of industrial engineering; and Dr. Robert L. Weber, associate professor of physics.

Previously named committees on College reorganization, operating cost, promotion and tenure, faculty load, and faculty welfare were reappointed without change.

450 Take Tests In Accounting

Approximately 450 students studying commerce at the College are taking a battery of tests given by the Accounting department.

About four hundred elementary accounting students are taking orientation and interest tests, designed to probe knowledge of principles and to discover ability to grasp the meaning of business material. The test compares the student's basic inclinations to those of more than 1000 successful accountants.

A Level 1 achievement test, designed to measure technical knowledge in accounting, is being taken by about fifty second year commerce students.

The tests, which are machine corrected, are part of a program developed under the auspices of the American Institute of Accounting at a cost of more than $100,000.

Testing will be completed by Friday and the results are expected within three weeks.
