

24 Bands Play Here Saturday

The second annual Band Day will be held this Saturday with 24 high school bands participating, Prof. Hummel Fishburn, head of the Music department, announced yesterday.

Invitations were issued to 56 bands from all over the state, being restricted to those bands whose directors had earned at least one of their degrees at the College.

A pre-game mass formation program will follow a parade through town and campus with more than 1600 players, drum majors, and majorettes playing under the direction of one leader.

High schools represented are Barnesboro, Franklin-Conemaugh Township, and Richland Township from Cambria County; Bedford and Saxton-Liverty from Bedford County; and Brockway-Snyder-Washington Joint from Jefferson County.

Emporium from Cameron County; Greenwood Joint from Perry County; Hollidaysburg, Roaring Springs, and Tyrone from Blair County; Huntingdon and Mt. Union from Huntingdon County; and Lewistown Joint from Mifflin County.

Johnsonburg, and St. Marys from Elk County; Mechanicsburg and Shippensburg from Cumberland County; Milton from Northumberland; Moshannon Joint from Northumberland; Moshannon Joint from Clearfield County; Muncy from Lycoming County; while Centre County is represented by Philipburg, Port Matilda, and State College High Schools.

Nittany Council Appoints Four Area Chairmen

Nittany Council last night approved the appointment of four area committee chairmen.

Daniel Fagan was named to head the Nittany section of the campus blood drive sponsored by All-College Cabinet. The campus drive is part of the national program to get more blood for Korea. A Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the TUB Nov. 14 and 15 to handle students desiring to donate blood.

Forms To be Distributed

The Nittany area has a quota of at least 30 donors. The campus quota is 400. Pledge forms for donors may be obtained now and must be turned in to the dormitory chairmen no later than Nov. 5.

John Pepper and Robert Heidt were named to the area Campus Chest committee. Pledge forms will be distributed in the individual dorms and may be returned to the dormitory presidents.

The two Association of Independent Men representatives-at-large from the area will be elected by the council next Monday night from among those who have turned in signed petitions.

Schultz on History Committee

Any area resident is eligible to run for the office. In order to be considered he must turn in a petition signed by 50 men before Saturday noon. The petition may be turned into either Gilbert Nicholas or George Unger, members of the area elections code committee.

Jay Schultz was named to work with Richard Mills, West Dorm president, as the area representative on the AIM history committee.

A committee to select an area candidate for Junior Prom queen was appointed with Weston Tomlinson, chairman, and James Himes and Steven Pontier as members.

Pivot Contributions Accepted Until Nov. 3

Pivot, College poetry magazine, will accept contributions to the publication until Nov. 3.

Two prizes, one of $10, the other $5, will be offered for the best poems. Three faculty members will judge the entries.

Contributions should be mailed to James Heffley, 214 W. College avenue, or to the English Composition office at 239 Sparks.

Histology is the study of the structure of animal tissues seen under a microscope.

Alumni View Campus, Life, And Football

"Where did all those buildings come from?" was the question bewildered alumni asked this weekend. The consensus on the game was that we put up a good fight against heavy odds.

Al Karaska, a Tau Sigma Phi of '31, commented "the good Lord was not on our side." H. H. Ehrinas, a Lambda Chi Alpha of '23 said the game was good "but State has lost the old spirit." Charles Ziegler, a Delta Tau Delta of '46 thought that the better team won but "State put up a creditable show."

"Enlarging the stadium is the best thing that has happened to State," was the comment of Mrs. J. C. Neff, class of '29. She added that she thought the increase in coed enrollment is good for the College. Howard Hench and Rob Rekkoph agreed that more coeds were a good deal for male Penn Staters, but that students seem younger now.

C. K. Wingard, a Sigma Alpha Epsilon of '23, thought that "students have a better chance for education now." Robert Jones, a Phi Kappa Sigma of '42 thought the college had changed a lot, "but it's getting better all the time."

Lawrence Machmer, class of '20, said that "everything is too nice for students." He added that the college was going to extremes. Karl Thomson, class of '49, thought that the college was constructing too many buildings.

Joanne Dunlap, a tri Delt of '51, said that the whole place seemed quieter although there was still the same general atmosphere.

Federal Job Applications Required Now

George N. Leetch, director of the College Placement Service, announced that seniors who want to be eligible for jobs with the federal government upon graduation in January or June must send in applications now.

Applications for junior agricultural assistant must be in today and for junior management assistant or junior professional assistant by Nov. 13. Applications can be picked up at the College Placement Service, 112 Old Main.

There are openings for students in agricultural economics, agronomy, animal husbandry, botany, entomology, forestry, home economics, horticulture, plant pathology, poultry husbandry, soil science, statistics, and zoology as junior agricultural assistants. Salaries start at $3100 a year.

Students in social science, public or business administration may apply for jobs as junior management assistants at $3100 to $3825 a year. Appointments for jobs under the Foreign Affairs Intern Program are made on the basis of these applications.

Civil service examinations will be given Dec. 8 in State College.

Weekend Crowd Sets New Mark

The 31st annual Homecoming Day produced not only the largest crowd ever to witness an athletic contest in Central Pennsylvania but also the largest number of alumni ever to return to the College at one time in the history of Penn State.

Lured largely by Michigan State's national gridiron power clashing with the Nittany Lions, 30,684 spectators overflowed Beaver Field in the greatest crowd ever in State College as well as the entire state of Pennsylvania outside of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Prior to Saturday's Michigan State-Penn State clash the largest crowd to attend a game on Beaver Field was the 24,579 that watched the same teams play to a 14-14 tie in 1948.

Ridge Riley, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, in claiming the largest return by alumni, estimated at least 6000 alumni were here over the weekend.

Although only 800 ate at the Alumni Association luncheon Saturday noon and only 1202 registered in Recreation Hall, Riley said those figures did not give a true report since as many as 5,000 tickets for the game were ordered through the mail by alumni.

PSCA to Hold 1st Coffee-orum

Subjects of national and international interest will be the topics discussed by two Penn State Christian Association groups at their meetings today.

Dr. Neil Riemer, associate professor of political science, will lead a discussion, "Who's Who in the 1952 Presidential Race" at the first PSCA Coffee-orum of this year. The discussion will be held at 4 p.m. today in the main lounge of Thompson Hall. It is open to all interested students.

Tonight Dr. Wallace Brewster, professor of political science, and Dr. Lawrence Huber, professor of agronomy, will discuss "The Successes and Failures of the United Nations" at the PSCA Forum, to be held at 7:30 tonight in 304 Old Main. Donald Snyder will be in charge of the meeting, which is open to all students on campus.

Old Grads Enjoy Game, 'Cold' to Cheerleaders

Among the cheering thousands watching the Penn State-Michigan State game in the stands Saturday were ten former letterman athletes of Penn State.

The ten old-timers were comfortably settled on the shady side of the stadium, section F, Row L. Eight of them took off at the half to stroll the paper-littered path around the field and talk with other alumni.

The two former stars who remained in their seats during half-time were W. R. Motz, class of '93, and Arthur S. Schoffstall, '00. Mr. Motz was very pleased at being the oldest letterman present, and was "enjoying the game highly."

It was the first game on campus he had seen since his graduation. Mr. Schoffstall is now general manager of Huntingdon, W. Va., Nickel Company. Letterman

Schoffstall was more interested in watching the half-time procedures than in answering questions. He did remark that the game was "very fine" and added that "Penn State had come a long way since 1900."

These two alumni athletes had as much pep and interest in the game as any of the sunburned students on the opposite side of the stadium.

The girl cheerleaders made little or no impression on Mr. Schoffstall. There were too many "other interesting things for him to watch" than cheerleaders.

Mr. Motz's reaction to the coed cheerleaders was also rather disappointing, but typical of a true sports fan. He frankly admitted that he was too busy watching the teams even to notice the girls.

Chest Begins Drive Saturday for $12,000

Penn State's second annual Campus Chest drive will begin Saturday and run for a two week period, William Klisanin, drive chairman, said yesterday. This year's goal will be $12,000.

The Campus Chest is Penn State's attempt to solve the problem of repeated charity drives. It carries as its motto "Give once, serve all." By contributing to the drive, students may benefit nine charities at one time.

Organizations which will receive funds from this year's drive and the percentage of the income they will receive are Penn State Christian Association, 46 percent; World Student Service Fund, 12 percent; Scholargram program, 8 percent; Leo Houck Cancer Fund, Women's Student Government Association Christmas party, March of Dimes, Heart Fund, and Salvation Army, six percent each; and State College Community Fund, one percent. Operating expenses will consume three percent of the drive's income.

Students will be solicited at their residences, Klisanin said. Personal pledges or cash will be accepted. Those who wish to pledge to the drive can have the amount added to their second semester fees.

Klisanin said no definite amount would be solicited from each student. Last year each student was asked to give $2 to the drive.

Those in charge of solicitations are John Allison, fraternities; Donald Beal, town men; John Laubach and Joseph Haines, campus men; Joan Yerger and Virginia Opoczanski, campus women; and Patricia Jones, town women. Murray Goldman will be solicitation chairman.

Last year's Campus Chest goal of $14,000 fell short by about $3500. It was the first such drive on campus. Before last year, each group benefiting from the drive solicited separately for funds. The concentrated Campus Chest drive proposes to eliminate these numerous campaigns by having only one drive each year.

World Festival To Follow UN Day Jubilee

The second annual International Festival, planned to follow the celebration of United Nations Day, will be held at the School of Home Economics from 2 to 5:30 p.m. next Saturday and 7 to 10 p.m. and from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The festival will offer a colorful program of exhibits from many foreign countries, illustrated by talks and moving pictures. The program will feature folk songs and dances from other nations, a costume show of dresses from other countries, and demonstrations of the cooking of foreign foods. Collections of dolls, household gadgets, and toys from many lands will be shown.

Each of the three programs will be different, although the main features will be repeated each time.

Tickets can be purchased from any member of the international committee of the school or at the door. The festival is for the benefit of the foreign scholarship fund.

Railroads Discussed By English Speaker

William H. Stebbings, examination officer of the Institute of Transport, London, England, addressed the faculty and students of economics and commerce on "Nationalization of the Railroads."

He has been visiting the College during the past three days as a part of his tour of American colleges and universities evaluating work in transportation.

Football Film Showing

A football film of the Penn State-Nebraska game played this season will be shown at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 3 White Hall.

The film showing will comprise a portion of the meeting of the Centre County Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation. The meeting will be open to the general public and refreshments will be served.

Government Seminar Plans Trip

A visit to Capitol Hill, conferences with some senators and representatives, and visits to important parts of United States government are included in the plans for this year's Washington "Meet Your Government" seminar.

The seminar, sponsored by the Penn State Christian Association in cooperation with the Political Science department and the School of Education, will take place next Sunday through Tuesday. The cost is approximately $25.

On Sunday the group will travel to Washington and spend the afternoon and evening sight-seeing.

Visit Capitol Hill

On Monday they will visit Capitol Hill and interview some senators and representatives after seeing Congress in session.

On Tuesday groups will visit the Supreme Court, the State Department, the Mediation and Conciliation Service, UNESCO, the Korean Embassy, the American Council of Education, the Washington office of education, United Press and the British Embassy. The committee planning the seminar is also trying to obtain an interview with President Harry S. Truman.

The purpose of the seminar is to allow students to see their government in action, to have interviews with senators and representatives, to sit in on committee sessions of the Senate and House, and to study at first hand the workings of specialized national and international government departments.

Leadership

Leadership for the seminar will include Dr. David Russell, School of Education; Dr. R. Wallace Brewster, Political Science department; Luther H. Harshbarger, PSCA; Mrs. Doris Allen, PSCA secretary, and Julia McNutt, secretary in the Sociology department.

The seminar is open to all students upon payment of a $5 registration fee. Applications must be made by next Thursday.

Transportation will be provided and while in Washington students will stay at the American University or at inexpensive hotels.

Weekend Traffic Handled With Ease

With 5000 cars on campus during Saturday's game with Michigan State, traffic ran smoothly and there were no reports of accidents, according to Capt. Philip Mark, of the campus patrol.

The patrolmen had to handle a lot of traffic, Mark said, but there were few, if any, traffic violations.

By using temporary areas east of Hort Woods, the practice field near the golf course, along with regular parking lots, sufficient parking space was provided.

Mixer to Be Held At TUB Tomorrow

A mixer, sponsored by the Psychology Club and Psi Chi, will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the TUB. Harry Ritzel, president of Psychology Club, announced that the program will feature a combo, cider, and doughnuts.

Joe Mazurkiewicz, chairman of the mixer committee, is in charge of the arrangements.

The nickname of Uncle Sam is believed to have originated during the War of 1812.
