 essay. The motion was unanimously passed.
 Lurie's motion was then changed to request that the suspension of social probation be lifted for houseparty weekend, Nov. 9 and 10. The motion was defeated 27 to 11 with one abstention.

'Must Enforce Rules'

Eugene Kolber, Pi Lambda Phi's IFC representative, said "The next four weeks will work a hardship on the brothers and pledges of Pi Lambda Phi, but we realize that IFC must draw the line somewhere. For the betterment of IFC and the College we will make the most of the situation. We would like to thank all the fraternities for the time they have sacrificed to hear this appeal."

Speaking for the IFC board of control, Edward Shihadeh, chairman said "It is unfortunate that a violation of this sort has arisen at such an inopportune time. However, the rules and regulations of such an organization as IFC must be enforced regardless of the situation."

UN Speakers--

 preserving peace, he continued. Eren said "When this shift in emphasis came about, the UN was transformed from an impotent warbling society to an organization with teeth."
 The fact that the original mistakes have been corrected show conclusively that the UN has the capacity to live, Eren stressed. He added that the fact that 50 nations answered the call for help in Korea, by a recommendation, not by any formal order, proves that the organization is here to stay and is ready to guide the world into a new period of international life.

View of Smaller Nations

Goris, a member of the Belgian delegation to UNESCO, expressed the point of view of the people of smaller nations. He said the experience of the past has left the western European people with a painful memory of international politics. These people have a reserved, pessimistic attitude towards any international movement.

Goris pleaded, "Give the UN a chance. It may have been inspired by angels, but it is a human institution. Men are inconsistent and fickle but they also are noble and capable of great and worthy deeds."

Party Voting--

 steering committee recommendations for the coming party elections.

Evert and Clair George, who are writing a party constitution, said the document would definitely be read Sunday. The constitution will explain the reorganization and aims of the Lion Party.

Chances will be sold by the State Party starting Saturday. The prize will be a $25 Defense Bond, the winner of which will be announced Nov. 13. The purpose of the raffle is to obtain operating money for the party.

Evert will appoint Lion Party section leaders, four junior class representatives, and a board of senior advisers at Sunday's meeting. Section leaders will campaign in the different dormitory and fraternity areas on campus. The junior representatives will be a temporary position until class reorganization is completed for the spring elections.

CPA Approved Barrett-- By Ed Council Tuesday Night

The Education Student Council gave approval to the proposed central promotion agency Tuesday night. Walter Sachs, chairman of the cabinet central promotion agency committee, spoke on the organization and advantages of the agency.

Ralph Egoft, council president, announced that two freshmen are to be elected to the council and that nominations are now open in 102 Burrows. Elections will be held October 30 and 31 in 105 Burrows. Charles Brill was appointed to serve during the unexpired term of Mary Foucart, and Edward Crossley was appointed to represent the council on the Religion-in-Life-Week committee.

Ruth Eddy, council secretary, presented a set of by-laws for the first reading. The final reading will be given at the regular meeting next Tuesday evening. Sally Shapiro was named chairman of a committee to sponsor an education mixer in cooperation with Future Teachers of America and Kappa Phi Kappa, education honorary.

Joseph Gronick announced that all material for the council-sponsored education handbook is due before Thanksgiving vacation. Publication is scheduled for January 15.

John Beiter, chairman of the council publicity committee, announced that plans are now being formulated to send news releases concerning outstanding students in the School of Education to hometown newspapers.

 bers of the faculty and graduate students in the School of Education. Goris, an outstanding artist, will speak to art classes during the day.

The final program for United Nations Week will be an International Festival sponsored by the School of Home Economics. The program, which includes exhibits, lectures, films, musical events, demonstrations and a costume show, will be held from 2 to 5:30 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, and from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday. Nezhil Manyas, assistant director of the Turkish information office in New York City, will be one of the guest speakers at the festival.

United Nations Week programs have been arranged by a faculty committee. The theme which it set up for UN Week is to emphasize international understanding. Members of the committee are D. W. Russell, professor of education, chairman; Vaclav Mares, professor of economics, and Hazel M. Hatcher, professor of home economics.

Pechan Bill--

 he was assigned to take the unpopular side of the question.

Would Destroy Tenure
 Keyes said the bill was more than a simple loyalty oath but also included a questionnaire and investigations in which any kind of evidence is permissible. The purpose of the bill is to ease the dismissal of unwanted persons, said Keyes.

Jo Hayes, supervisor of State College schools, said the bill repealed public school teachers' rights under the tenure bill.

Robert Murray, instructor of history, moderated the discussion which was sponsored by the Graduate Students Association.

Tribunal Representation
 The Central Promotion Agency, tabled by cabinet at its last meeting, will be up for a vote. Walter Sachs, chairman of the CPA committee, will report on its possibilities.

A constitutional amendment placing a sophomore representative on Tribunal will have its final reading and be voted upon.

Clair George, chairman of the selections committee for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, will give a report on the selections which took place last week.

Athletic Holiday

Thomas Jurchak, All-College secretary-treasurer, will read a letter from the Council of Administration pertaining to the athletic half-holiday. The council ruled that the holiday will be Saturday morning, Nov. 10.

William Klisanin, Campus Chest chairman, will give the Kickoff Dance committee's financial report. Campus Chest sponsored the dance. He will also request that Penn State be host of the Student Government Clinic, which was held at Muhlenberg College last year.

Carroll Chapman, elections committee chairman, will report on the arrangements and regulations for the forth-coming freshman and sophomore class elections to be held Nov. 15.

James Worth, All-College president, will make committee appointments with the approval of cabinet.

Boyd to Speak To Engineers

Seniors in the School of Engineering will hear an address by T. A. Boyd, General Motors research laboratories consultant, at 4:10 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium, Dean Eric A. Walker, School of Engineering, announced today.

Boyd, a chemical engineer and a graduate of Ohio State University, was one of the discoverers of the effects of liquid compounds of lead on engine knock. This discovery made possible improved automotive and aviation fuels.

Development of triptane, a new fuel with an anti-knock rating three times as high as the 100 octane fuel used in airplane engines, was accomplished by Boyd and two other men during World War II. Triptane was made in large quantity for advanced research and development on high output, high economy engines.

Dr. Walker also extended an invitation to other students or faculty members who may be interested in attending the lecture.
