750 Students Attend Two Party Meetings

State Names Eight As Clique Officers; Nominations Open

Over 450 students voted for sophomore and freshman clique officers and opened nominations for candidates of the same classes at a State Party meeting Sunday night.

Jack Keim, the only student nominated, won unanimously the sophomore class clique chairmanship; Frank Reese was elected vice clique chairman; Ann Quigley, secretary; and Warren Haffner, treasurer.

Richard Bouchet was elected freshman class clique chairman; Otto Hetzel, vice clique chairman; Rae DelleDonne, secretary; and Leon Williams, treasurer.

Final nominations for State Party candidates for the Nov. 15 elections will be held next Sunday.

Any student who has attended either of the first two meetings will be permitted to vote at next week's election.

George Glazer, a member of the All-College elections committee, attended the party meeting and recorded all students attending for the first time. Party officials took roll at the first meeting.

Carroll Chapman chairman of the elections committee, said students will not be permitted to vote next week if their names are not on either roll sheet.

Preliminary nominations for sophomore president are Robert Snelling and Clark Sell for vice

250 Forum Tickets Are Still Unsold

After a five-week Community Forum ticket campaign, about 250 tickets are still unsold for the opening lecture by Robert Vogeler Thursday night, according to George Donovan, Associated Student Activities manager.

Vogeler, the first American businessman to fall victim to Communist "justice," will appear at 8 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium to tell his experiences during 17 months' imprisonment in a Hungarian jail.

Season tickets for the forum will be on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main until 5 p.m. today, after which none will be available. They are $3, including tax.

Single tickets for Thursday's lecture will be sold for $1.50 tomorrow and Thursday at Student Union.

Total sales of season tickets cannot be computed for several months, Donovan said, since some people hold out tickets until the third and fourth lectures.

An assistant vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., Vogeler was serving as its European representative in Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia when he was arrested on Nov. 18, 1949, and charged with "espionage, sabotage and conspiracy against the Hungarian government."

After days of severe mental and physical torture, he con-

Lion Receives Four Frosh Nominations; No Sophs Named

Four freshmen were nominated for class offices at preliminary nominations of the Lion Party Sunday night. There were no nominations for sophomore class officers.

Ray Evert All-College chairman said he was "not worried" about the lack of nominations for sophomore officers. He said this situation has come up before.

Richard Hurlbring and Robert Smoot were nominated for freshman class president, Stokes Lazarus for vice president, and Dorothy Ebert for secretary treasurer.

Further nominations can be made this Sunday, but the party will elect its final candidates at the same meeting at 7 p.m. in 121 Sparks Building.

Evert also told more than 300 students who attended the meeting of a plan to obtain a greater representation of student opinion on campus. He said the party has requested fraternities and campus organizations to send a representative to a meeting at 8:30 tonight in 405 Old Main to discuss any improvements the students would like to see on campus.

The reorganization of the freshman and sophomore cliques was completed with the election of two members at large for each class. Ann Gibbons and Joseph Rice were elected to the freshman clique, and James Hand and Guyla Woodward to the sophomore clique.

A board of senior advisers appointed by Evert are Milton Bernstein, Clair George, William Klisanin, David Mutchler, John Stoudt, and Robert Schultz. Barbara Baker, John Donnal, Joseph Haines, Frank Kelly, and Arlene Rifkees were named as temporary junior class representatives until the spring elections.

The party constitution, being written by Evert and George, has not yet been completed. Evert said the document may not be finished until the spring campaign.

To Sell Sunday Papers

The Student News Agency will start selling Sunday papers in McAllister Hall from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. every Sunday, Howard Miller, manager of the Sunday branch of the agency, has announced. Joan Hoffman will handle the sales.

Three Faculty Members To Study Tax Problems

Three faculty members have been appointed by President Milton S. Eisenhower to study the current state tax problem now facing the State legislature.

Dr. Eugene Myers and Dr. R. S. Stout, professors of economics, and Prof. C. F. LeeDecker, acting executive secretary of the Institute on Local Government, will conduct the study in conjunction with experts from the University of Pittsburgh, Temple University, and the University of Pennsylvania. C. S. Wyand, assistant to the president, said yesterday.

Wyand said the faculty committee will present a report of its findings to the presidents of the four schools but will under no circumstances recommend a solution to the tax problem.

Newspaper Reports

The reports will be presented to Governor John S. Fine through the school presidents about Dec. 1 to allow study of the reports before the legislature convenes on Dec. 10, Wyand said.

Metropolitan newspapers carried reports from their Harrisburg correspondents Sunday on the tax request, saying in effect that the Committee Action To Be Reported

What happens when a student is called before the Disciplinary committee of the College?

Daily Collegian reporter James Gromiller will attend the first hearing of the committee this semester this afternoon. His story on the philosophy and procedure of the committee will be published in tomorrow's Daily Collegian.

This will be the first time that the Daily Collegian has been permitted to report the meetings of the committee. No names will be used.

2 Student Parking Lots Are Opened

Two additional parking areas on campus have been opened by the College in an attempt to alleviate the student parking problem.

Half of the parking area north of the Jordan Fertility Plots, with entrances on Shortlidge road and on the east entrance road near the Poultry Plant, now is completed and may be used, Walter Wiegand, director of the physical plant, has announced.

Work is being continued on the remainder of the lot which will provide space for 240 cars when finished.

The second area opened is along Park avenue, east of Hort Woods. Entrance is from Park avenue, which runs parallel to Pollock road on the north side of Beaver Field. The lot has space for 120 cars.

An area with space for 19 cars will be opened Monday along the Holmes street extension north of the Dairy and Creamery Building.

With the opening of this area, the street linking Curtin road and Park avenue will be opened to two-way traffic. Parking will be prohibited on this street.

Earlier in the year the College opened parking areas south of Grange dormitory with spaces for 126 cars; south of the Foundry colleges were reportedly refusing to make recommendations even though they said they would conduct the tax structure studies.

Philadelphia Bulletin

The Philadelphia Bulletin said the following on the situation, according to other newspapers which quoted the Bulletin.

"The survey, being conducted by top economists of the four colleges, will confine itself to estimates of tax yields of existing levies, predicted present and future economic conditions, along with analysis of the impact of projected appropriation acts."

The faculty committees to study the problems were formed following a recent request for such action by Gov. Fine.

Polls Open Today In Seven Schools

School council elections for seven of the eight schools open at 8 a.m. today and will continue until 5 p.m. Balloting will end tomorrow at 5 p.m.

The School of Agriculture is the only school which is not electing its representatives.

The Liberal Arts Student Council has released seven more additions to the LA nominations. They are Rachel DelleDonne, Phyllis Mermelstein, Janet Knoll, Nancy Ward, Toby Numerosky, Donald Safier, and Howard Salus.

Each nominee for the LA Council may submit an 8x10 poster at the polls. It is illegal to campaign in the vicinity of polls.

Ralph Egolf, president of the Engineering Student Council, announced that freshmen council members in Electrical, Aeronautical, Industrial, and Civil Engineering will be elected, although there were no nominations made.

"The freshmen will elect representatives from their respective departments who have no nominees by write-in ballots," he said.

Sophomores added to Industrial Engineering nominations are Michael Jordan, and Richard Dennis, while Quentin Rea, a sophomore, was added to the Mechanical Engineering nominations.

Architectural Engineering nominees have been announced by John Miller, chairman of engineering elections. They are Richard Gibson and Walter Detweiler, sophomores. Freshmen nominees are Sanford Cook and John Eiser. The LA elections will be held outside of Sparks Building, while

High School Students Fell Goal Posts

Penn State's Beaver Field goal posts came tumbling down again Saturday following the West Virginia game, despite a protection attempt by the College's football ushers.

Capt. Philip Mark of the campus patrol said that it looked like the majority of the people involved in the destruction were high school and grade school students. "There were very few College students involved to our knowledge. They seem to have obeyed the request not to take the posts down," Mark said.

T. R. Kemmerer, principal of the State College High School, said that when young people watch adults it is a psychological reaction for them to follow. He believed that it was unfair to blame the high school students because there were probably many College students also involved. "The College should certainly assume the responsibility, too," Kemmerer said.

The high school principal said that he would assume part of the responsibility by asking the students to refrain from taking down the goal posts when they attend Penn State games.

The mad scramble after the games can result in serious injury to bystanders, stated one campus patrolman. The College Infirmary reported that two students received treatment for injuries incurred during the scuffle. One student was treated for multiple lacerations of the fingers, while another received a muscle injury of the back. Both were dismissed after treatment.

CPA to Meet Tonight

Students interested in the Central Promotion Agency have been asked to attend a meeting at 8 tonight in 108 Willard Hall for preliminary organization of the agency. Walter Sachs, who headed an All-College Cabinet committee which investigated the agency, will explain the functions of CPA.

Workshop Will Start Tomorrow

The second annual Interfraternity Workshop program will start tomorrow with a series of dinners at eight fraternity houses. Representatives of each Penn State fraternity will attend the dinners.

The purpose of the workshop, in the words of Harold W. Perkins, assistant dean of men, is "to discuss separately eight areas of fraternity activities in order to uncover specific problems of mutual concern, to exchange useful ideas and techniques, and, if appropriate, to adopt recommendations to the Interfraternity Council."

The eight areas of activity to be covered by discussion group meetings on Thursday and Friday are administration, rushing, scholarship, pledge training, finance, public relations, social life, and house maintenance.

Saturday night, at a meeting of chapter presidents, IFC representatives, fraternity counselors, discussion chairmen, and college officials, a summary of the decisions of the eight discussion groups will be presented.

Main speakers at the meeting will be Dean of Men Emeritus Arthur R. Warnock, president of the National Fraternity Conference, and Frank H. Myers, municipal court judge of Washington, D.C., and past chairman of the IFC.

Change Made For Meeting Arrangements

Students or faculty making arrangements for rooms in College buildings for meetings of organizations, or arranging for a conference at the College will have to work through the department of housing effective Nov. 1.

Samuel K. Hostetter, comptroller, explained that this ruling would make it possible to coordinate plans with all other departments concerned through the housing department, thus simplifying arrangements, and also eliminating the possibility of having two major meetings on the campus at the same time.

This change does not affect arrangements for classrooms and laboratories for resident instruction and research, which will still be made through the College scheduling officer.

Persons planning to reserve rooms are requested to contact the department of housing at the earliest possible date so the department will have enough time to make the necessary arrangements, Hostetter explained.

Cosslett Will Speak In Osmond Today

Prof. V. E. Cosslett, of the Cavendish Laboratory, Cambridge, England, will speak on "Recent Developments in Electron Microscopy" at 4:15 p.m. today in 117 Osmond Laboratory. His talk, sponsored by the Physics and Mineralogy departments, is open to the public.
