

Students from 16 Nations Attend Agriculture Party

An international tone permeated the annual Ag Hill Party in Recreation Hall Saturday night as students from 16 nations attended the affair.

Profits were given to Silliman University in the Philippine Islands.

Dr. Henry S. Brunner, the ag school's representative on the College committee on international understanding, called off the roster of foreign students now in the School of Agriculture. Elias Caray, school administrator in the Philippines, spoke for the group and also told of his personal observations of work at Silliman University.

Nittany Council Asks for More Washers, Dryers

A consensus of Nittany Dormitory presidents at last night's council meeting revealed that men in the area strongly favor the installation of more washing machines and dryers in the PUB.

At present, only a few machines are available to the men and long waiting lines are the result. Men, questioned by the dorm presidents, said they would use the facilities if more of them were available.

A letter requesting installation of more machines will be sent to Housing Director Russell Clark by Weston Tomlinson, council president.

Daniel Fagan, chairman of the area's blood campaign, announced that 16 pledge forms had been received from men willing to contribute a pint of blood in the All-College blood drive Nov. 13, 14 and 15. Forms will be accepted until Thursday night.

William Cole, president of the Barons, Nittany-Pollock social group, announced tentative plans for two dances. One would be held Dec. 8, and the other, a square dance, would be held in the near future with no definite date decided.

'Ike', Truman Discuss NATO Enforcement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 —(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today sidetracked any discussion of his political intentions "just now" and said he has never authorized any Ike-for-president boom.

The five-star general also declared he did not discuss politics "not a bit"—during a private luncheon meeting with President Truman at Blair House this noon.

Later in the day, Mr. Truman, Eisenhower and the nation's top defense officials held a full-dress conference at the White House.

Press Secretary Joseph Short told newsmen the conference, lasting an hour and 20 minutes, centered on "problems of allocation and production" for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and for Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE).

It had been generally expected that the conference would discuss means to quicken the flow of U.S. arms to Europe in order to build up a compact fighting force in Western Europe ahead of schedule.

Sharply intensifying the mystery over what plans he may have for the 1952 presidential race, Eisenhower held fast to his original statement that he came back simply to discuss arms problems in Europe.

Like Eisenhower, the White House threw a damper on any political implications connected with the general's visit.

'Centennial' Issue Marks 42 Years Of Froth Humor

With an accuracy typical of the magazine, Froth, College humor magazine, hits the stands with a November issue celebrating a 42 year centennial. Along with the regular monthly features are several dwelling on Froth's past. Froth's "Girl of the Month" is Shirley Miller, a third semester elementary education major who likes music.

Besides "Mug and Jester," "Dope Sheet," "Trothing at the Mouth," and "Going Around in Circles," all Froth regulars, a special feature on life in the veterans' housing projects at Windcrest, titled "Paternity Row" is also included.

"The History of Coeds" and "Student Government Marches On" dwell on the past and present at State.

"The History and Evolution of Neo-Modern Modernism" is moulded around a group of pictures taken at the Temporary Classroom Building. A fictional character of the past is revived in "Frank Merriwell Saves the Day".

Four pages of humor, "Out of the Past," have been taken from copies of Froth from 1909 to the present.
