

$80,000 Loss Reported On Last Year's Sports

The College's 16-sport intercollegiate athletic program lost $80,000 last year, according to Harold R. Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics. Furthermore, the College has lost money in sports for seven out of the last ten years, he added.

The only years the College actually showed a profit was in 1948, when the football team played in the Cotton Bowl, and the two following seasons, Gilbert said.

These facts were brought out Tuesday night at a panel discussion on "Intercollegiate Athletics in an Educational System" sponsored by the American Association of University Professors.

Others Participating

Others participating in the discussion beside Gilbert were Rip Engle, head football coach; Carl P. Schott, dean of the School of Physical Education and Athletics; Prof. F. L. Bentley, chairman of the College Senate committee on athletics; and Prof. B. M. Hermann, chairman of the Athletic Advisory Board. Ridge Riley, alumni secretary, acted as moderator.

Gilbert explained that the $80,000 loss did not include coaches' salaries, scholarships, field maintenance, and other smaller items. Football bore the brunt of the expenses, Gilbert said, but on the other hand it was the chief source of income. The only other income to sustain the athletic program was the $15 assessment levied on each student by the College.

Schott explained the purposes of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Eastern Association.

AIM Plans Sat. Night House Party

The Association of Independent Men decided to hold a house party from 9 to 12 p.m. Saturday in the West Dorm lounge, and John Laubach, AIM president, appointed six committee heads at the AIM meeting last night.

Richard Marsh and his orchestra will play for the house party, Laubach said.

Neil Lehman was appointed to head a public relations committee. He will work in conjunction with Leonard Kolasinski, who was appointed to head the radio edits' committee.

Colloquy Delegates

Other committee heads are Wesley Tomlinson, Religion-in-Life committee; Franklin Reese, 1952 regional convention arrangements committee; Joseph Haines, AIM keys committee, and Paul Zanoni, National Independent Students' Association correspondence committee.

Laubach and William Cole will represent AIM at the PSCA "Loyalty to Free Men" colloquy Nov. 16.

A committee report was given on the regional meeting of National Independent Students' Association, which was held last week at Huntington, W. Va. Reese, one of five Penn State delegates, was elected vice president of this region, which includes Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Welfare Representatives

The association also voted to pay the $10 national and $10 regional dues of the ISA.

Frank Simes, adviser, attended the Student Welfare Committee meeting last week and suggested that AIM and Leonides have representatives on the committee. The motion was met favorably and has been referred to the Senate.

AIM and Phi Sigma Sigma sorority will hold an All-College square dance Nov. 17 in Recreation Hall. There will be a 25-cent donation.

Prexy Eisenhower Visits Brother At LaGuardia Field

Pres. Milton S. Eisenhower spent two hours with his brother, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Tuesday afternoon at LaGuardia Field in New York.

Flying in a special plane out of Philipsburg to New York, President Eisenhower lunched on his brother's plane.

"The visit was purely a family affair," President Eisenhower explained, "and I enjoyed every minute of it."

Rev. Murray Kenworthy Dies in Indianapolis

The Rev. Murray S. Kenworthy, father of Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, died Sunday in the Methodist Hospital, Indianapolis, Ind.

The late Rev. Kenworthy was a graduate of Earlham College and Harvard University. He held pastorates in several Eastern cities in addition to several in Indiana, and was active in the Indiana yearly Meeting of Friends.

Kenworthy was vacationing when he heard of his father's death. He flew home immediately.

Student Last Spring Turns Prof This Fall

By ROSEMARY DELAHANTY

How does it feel to be on the prof's side of that desk?

If anyone knows, it's Marlin Brenner.

Buzz, who was graduated from the College last June, is back again working for his master's degree—and he's also teaching Econ 1 four hours each week.

"You know," he remarked, "it's a queer feeling being a student in June and an instructor in September. You're young enough to know what the kids you're teaching are thinking, but old enough to realize how wrong their thoughts are."

"For instance, when I was an undergraduate, I didn't always think it necessary to keep up with reading assignments every single day, but now that I actually am on the other side of that desk I know a prof's job is twice as hard if the students haven't lifted background material from the text."

The thought of having to speak before a class three times a week is enough to scare many beginning instructors, but not Buzz.

Since he was manager of men's debate last year, and is a national champion in both debate and informative speaking, he hasn't had much trouble with his knees shaking during lectures.

As he put it, "My experience only made me a LITTLE nervous."

However, he feels that keeping a class vitally interested in economics four hours a week is a

European Newcomer Getting Along Fine

DP Here

Seva Arefjev

The first displaced person to come to State College is getting along well, according to Ralph Cash, chairman of the displaced persons committee.

George Geczy, 19 year old displaced person from Germany, is working at O. W. Houts, Inc. Since his arrival in June, Geczy has attended Christian Association social affairs and open lectures. He has sat in on some classes at the College.

When he first came to State College, Geczy allotted no money in his budget toward entertainment.

Geczy expects to schedule some extension courses in the spring and enroll at the College in the fall in business administration.

Seva Arefjev, 19 year old Ukrainian, came to State College in September. He was working at the Nittany Lion Inn until last week when he went to Philadelphia to see his ill mother.

Plans were made for Arefjev to enter the College in the fall in aeronautical engineering.

The committee plans to bring Gerd Weissman to State College this week. From Czechoslovakia, Weissman will work as a construction engineer at the Hawbaker Construction Co.

Frosh Consider 2 Dance Dates

The freshman class last night proposed alternate dates, March 21 or 28, for its annual dance. The dance will be held in Recreation Hall.

Because Phi Mu Alpha has reserved both dates for its annual dance, the official date for the freshman class will not be made until the former makes its decision.

Blue and Gold was voted by the freshmen as its class colors. It was chosen over Blue and Silver, and Green and Gray.

The resolution passed by All-College Cabinet not to take down the goal posts after the football games was accepted.

Gerald Maurey, acting president of the freshman class, named a committee to get the freshmen together to protect the goal posts at the Syracuse game Saturday.

The committee is Phoebe Powell, Louis Gud, Jane Evans, and Mildred McCowan.

Lion Publicity Meeting

A Lion Party publicity meeting for students interested in publicity, promotion, and distribution will be held at 7 tonight in 214 Willard Hall.

Harrison Receives Young Scholarship

John David Harrison, senior in the School of Mineral Industries, has received the Lewis E. Young Award of $100.

The award, established by the Western Pennsylvania section of the Woman's Auxiliary, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, is presented to an outstanding student in mineral sciences on the basis of character and high scholarship. It rotates among Penn State, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and the University of Pittsburgh.

Harrison is president of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, mineral industries honor society; vice-president of Tau Beta Pi, engineering honorary; and a member of Phi Lambda Upsilon, chemistry honorary; Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's honor society, and the American Society of Metals.

Brocaded pumps, dyed to match ballerina gowns, are a new fashion trend.
