

Blood Drive Passes Goal; New Pledge Total Is 915

Penn State's blood drive skyrocketed over its 800 pint goal yesterday and had officials happily worried about how they would schedule all donors.

Yesterday's totals showed 915 donation pledges with more still coming in. The drive deadline was 12 noon yesterday, but officials were reluctant to turn away pledges after the deadline because of the desperate need for blood.

Scheduling for 768 of the contributors has been completed. That is the limit the Red Cross bloodmobile will be able to handle in the four days it will be on campus. The unit will arrive at the TUB Monday to secure donations.

Plans for Overflow

Drive officials had three plans on how to handle the overflow of pledges. They will try to secure the bloodmobile unit for an additional day next Friday.

If this is impossible, they will ask Red Cross workers to work an additional hour each day. They now work six hours a day.

A final plan to handle the overflow would be to schedule the bloodmobile following the Thanksgiving vacation.

Millard Rehburg, drive chairman, gave "all the praise possible to students who have pledged and to all workers." He said the Johnstown Red Cross, which will handle the donations, is overwhelmed with the success of the drive.

Individual Figures

Although accurate figures on individual leaders were not available yesterday, officials said Phi Kappa Psi turned in 26 pledges and Acacia and Alpha Zeta added pledges to their already high totals.

The drive, which began Oct. 18, originally had a pledge goal of 400. The goal was then raised to 600 and the donation period extended as pledges began to pour in. Wednesday, the goal was raised to 800, double the original.

Some of the blood secured in the drive will be flown to American forces in Korea within 72 hours. The rest will be used in veteran hospitals in this country.

Poll at Game to Show TV Effect on Football

Spectators at the Syracuse football game tomorrow will be asked to fill in questionnaires which will be distributed at the stadium.

H. R. Gilbert, graduate manager of athletics, said the purpose of the poll is to discover the effect of television on college football attendance.

The one-page forms will be placed in the game program and will also be distributed through the stands. Members of campus hat societies will gather the forms at half-time.

Dilworth To Speak On 'Rights'

Richardson Dilworth, newly-elected Democratic district attorney of Philadelphia and present city treasurer of that city, will speak on "Individual Rights and a Free Society" at the inter-collegiate colloquy on "The Loyalty of Free Men" to be held at the College next weekend.

Dilworth will speak next Friday night in 121 Sparks. Purpose of the colloquy is to explore the relevance of religion to politics and government.

More than 200 delegates are expected to participate in the colloquy from 21 colleges and universities which have been invited to send representatives. All campus and town student organizations have also been invited to send delegates. Registration for the colloquy is now in process.

Born in Pittsburgh, Dilworth graduated from Yale University in 1921. After working a year and a half in a steel mill and in the Oklahoma oil fields, he entered Yale Law School. He was graduated cum laude and was editor of the Law Review in 1926.

Dilworth served a total of five years in the marines during World Wars I and II and has received a purple heart, a silver star and a presidential unit citation for his services. He now holds the reserve corps rank of lieutenant colonel.

In 1950 Dilworth polled nearly 49 percent of the 3,500,000 votes in his election as city treasurer, carrying the city by 77,000 votes. He is a member of the law firm of Dilworth, Paxton, Kalish, and Greene in Philadelphia.

Foreign Music Series Starts Next Monday

The Romance Language department will begin a series of weekly radio broadcasts Monday over WMAJ that will present music of foreign countries. It will be a half hour show beginning at 9 p.m.

Prof. Robert J. Clements, head of the department, will be in charge of Monday's program.

The program, called "Music of the Nations," was instituted last year. Irving Rothberg of the romance language department is the producer of the series.

The records to be played on the programs are from private collections of faculty members and students. These collectors will serve as commentators on later programs.

Future shows will include records of Hebrew, Japanese, and Norwegian music. There will also be a program of Renaissance music for the lute.

Frosh to Protect Goals Saturday

A request for all freshman men to "protect the Penn State goal posts from being destroyed by Syracuse students" was extended yesterday by Gerald Maurey, acting president of the freshman class.

David Mutchler, Tribunal president, asked the cooperation of all students to defeat the "negative tradition" of tearing down the goal posts at football games. Mutchler added that the action has imposed a strain upon the athletic relations of the College, and that the Syracuse game affords the last opportunity of the year to correct the wrong.

Maurey, who heads a committee appointed at the Wednesday night meeting of the freshman class for the protection of the goal posts, said at a meeting of that committee held yesterday it was decided that the freshman class would be asked to take an active part in stemming any student drive to tear down the Penn State goal post.

Grad Student Will Direct GBS 'Candida'

One of George Bernard Shaw's best known plays, "Candida," will be presented Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater of Old Main. The play is under the direction of dramatics student Ed Menerth as a thesis production requirement for his master's degree.

Since the Little Theater has a seating capacity of about 125, tickets for the play will be given free of charge on a first-come basis by Miss Jean Martin, Monday morning in the Schwab Auditorium Green Room.

Lead roles in the GBS play are Francine Toll, as Candida Morell and Joe Bird as her husband, the Rev. James Morell.

Eugene Marchbanks, played by Myron Cole, also has an interest in Candida.

Others in the cast are Bill Sample as Candida's father, Margaret Mulligan as Prosperpine Garnett, and John Pakkanen who acts the Rev. Alexander Mill as well as being stage manager for the play.
