Miss Junior Class and Her Attendants

Final Home Game 14th Renewal; Both Elevens Gun for 4th Win

By ERNIE MOORE

Penn State's football team will end its home season and play its 250th home contest today when the Nittany Lions meet Syracuse University on Beaver Field. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

The Nittany Lions will go after their fourth win of the current season, and try to extend the victory string they hold over Syracuse on Beaver Field. The Orange gridgers haven't beaten a Penn State football team on the Lions' home field since 1934.

A crowd of about 15,000 is expected to watch the Lions and Syracuse tussle in Penn State's 250th home football game. Since the sport was inaugurated here in 1887, the Nittany Lions have won 211 games while losing only 27. Eleven games ended in ties. Syracuse has played on Beaver Field 13 times, winning four, losing eight, and tying one.

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's Syracuse eleven will also be trying for its fourth win of the season this afternoon. The Orangemens' record shows wins over Temple, Lafayette, and Fordham, and losses to Cornell, Illinois, and Dartmouth.

Last year in Syracuse, the Orange gridgers upset Coach Rip Engle's Nittany Lions, 27-7. The win over the Lions marked the first time Syracuse had beaten Penn State since 1937.

Schwartzwalder's team is expected to combine a wing-T and double-wing and possible a single-wing offense against the Lions' wing-T this afternoon. Syracuse has been leaning toward the old style double-wing since the Fordham game in which it was used with success.

Chest Drive Donations Total $5900

Campus Chest returns reached $5900 as $700 in contributions flowed into drive headquarters yesterday. The Chest has extended its drive until Nov. 20 in an attempt to reach its $12,000 goal.

The Chest drive opened two weeks ago today, but was extended when officials saw it would be impossible to reach the goal within two weeks, due to slow returns.

Quick Returns Asked

Slowness in the drive was due to apathy on the part of many solicitors and laxity on the part of some students who apparently did not realize the importance of the nine charities benefiting, leaders said. Many solicitors had failed to make first reports as late as the second week of the drive. Officials asked for quick solicitation returns during the drive extension.

The faculty and staff portion of the drive, which begins solicitations Monday, will last all next week. Ralph Armington, professor of electrical engineering, heads the faculty drive.

Groups Not Included

Faculty contributions will go either to the Penn State Christian Association or the World Student Service Fund. Donors may designate which group will benefit from their contribution.

Professor Armington explained that groups benefited by the State College Welfare Fund, to which the faculty has contributed, are not included in this Campus Chest drive.

Motor Causes Mac Hall Fire

An overheated elevator motor caused a small fire in McAllister Hall yesterday morning. The fire was confined to the brick shaft and caused no apparent damage according to Captain Philip Mark of the Campus Patrol.

Pans of bread stacked in the elevator tilted, Mark said, causing the elevator to jam between the basement and first floor. The motor kept running, however, and started to heat up. Smoke formed when the insulation began smoldering, and five fire trucks reached the dormitory at about 10:35 a.m.

The blaze couldn't have caused any damage to the building, Mark said, because the shaft is fireproof and separate from the construction of the building.

For safety measures the automatic switch will be replaced by a manual switch at once so that in the future the motor can be stopped immediately if necessary.

Student Directory Out Wednesday

The Student Directory, published by the College, will go on sale Wednesday morning in 4 Willard Hall.

The 230 page directory lists the name, home address, State College telephone number and address, as well as the semester and curriculum, of each of the more than 11,000 students at the College. In addition the directory contains a calendar for the current college year and a listing of dormitories, fraternities, and town houses.

Copies of the directory are being distributed by A. W. Stewart, assistant registrar, to offices of faculty members.

Price of the directory is 35 cents.

time. The object is to eliminate the elongated periods of the past in which much student enthusiasm was lost.

Both parties elected their candidates at meetings Sunday.

Party platforms for the elections will appear in Tuesday's Daily Collegian.

All voting will take place in the second floor lounge of Old Main, Carroll Chapman, All-College elections committee chairman, said yesterday.

Dinner Canceled

The dinner for resident counselors, which was to be held in the West Dorm dining commons at 6:30 tonight, has been cancelled because Dr. Charles C. Noble, dean of Hendricks Memorial Chapel, Syracuse University, will be unable to attend.

TODAY'S WEATHER

PARTLY CLOUDY AND MILD

Queen to Rule Over Gridiron

Only hinted at in the decorations of last night's Junior Prom, football will reign as king this afternoon on Beaver Field when Penn State meets Syracuse.

The game, the half-way mark of the weekend, will have a free show during the half. Miss Junior Class, crowned at the dance last night by junior class president Michael Hanek, will be conducted around the football field in a motor caravan of three convertibles.

The Blue Band will march to the junior section of the stands at the close of the half-time period and accompany the class in "Hail! Oh Hail!" The fast-stepping band also has a musical trick up its collective sleeve for half-time entertainment.

The weekend climaxes tonight with the fraternity and AIM houseparties.

West Dorms Hold Elections Monday

Elections for the West Dorm representatives-at-large will be held from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight Monday in the resident counselors' suite.

Candidates are Paul Crofford, Thomas Kidd, Ellis Parish, and George Peters. All male residents of the West Dorms are permitted to vote for two of the candidates. The two receiving the highest number of votes will be representatives-at-large to the board of governors of the Association of Independent Men from the West Dorm area.

One-Way Traffic Scheduled Today

Traffic for today's football game will be handled the same as other home game traffic this year, Captain Philip Mark, campus patrol, and John R. Juba, State College chief of police, said.

Mark said that traffic would be one-way on Burrowes Road for the game.

Juba said that in the borough, traffic would be one-way east-bound on Beaver avenue and one-way west-bound on College avenue between Pugh and Ather-ton streets after the game.

62 to Start Eight Weeks Of Teaching

Sixty-two students from the School of Education will begin their eight weeks student teaching assignments Monday.

The Department of Home Economics Education assigned Helen Gregory to Beavertown Vocational High School, Betty Anders to Bellefonte High School, Patricia Robinson and Nancy Saylor to Coatesville High School, Eleanor Arena and Jane Frutiger to Elizabeth High School, Virginia Moore and Dorothy Morgan to Lewistown High School.

Joanne McMullen and Julia Barber to Litz High School, Nancy Gruber and Patricia Gronick to Mechanicsburg High School, Shirley Smith and Marjorie Telford to Mifflintown-Juniata Joint School, Joyce Harkins and Ann Spaide to Myerstown High School, Lois Woolford to Snow Shoe High School, June

Football Holiday

Today is the official athletic half-holiday which was announced by All-College Cabinet last week.

All classes are canceled.

Red Cross Bloodmobile To Arrive Here Monday

A Red Cross bloodmobile unit will arrive at the TUB Monday morning to begin securing blood from close to 1000 students who pledged contributions in the recent campus blood drive. The unit will remain on campus until Thursday.

Drive officials said that some pledges are still trickling into drive headquarters and that definite totals would not be available until next week.

Of the 1000 students pledging, 768 have received appointment cards designating the time they should report for their donation. The unit can handle 192 donors during a normal six hour day.

Because of the overflow in donations, officials are attempting to secure the unit's use for an additional period. They reminded students who have not yet received appointment cards that their pledges will be used, and will be scheduled as soon as possible.

Trapp Family Opens Concert Series Friday

Six daughters and two sons join their mother, Mrs. Maria Augusta Trapp, and their priest and musical director, Father Franz Wasner, to make up the Trapp Family Singers, who will launch the Community Concert series at the College at 8 p.m. Friday.

Widow of the late Austrian naval hero, Baron George Von Trapp, Mrs. Trapp is the principal contralto of the unusual family chorus. Agathe, Hedwig, Maria, Martina, Rosemary, and Eleanor are the daughters, and Werner and Johannes, the sons.

Descended from ancient Austrian nobility, this family turned a hobby into a profession when it renounced its ancestral estates and fortunes in defiance of Hitler and came to this country.

In "The Story of the Trapp Family Singers," a book published in 1949, Mrs. Trapp tells her family's story. It has become one of the top nationwide non-fiction best sellers.
