

The Lion's Lair

By ERNIE MOORE
Collegian Sports Editor

The news yesterday that Al Pollard, former Army football star, has been acquired by the Philadelphia Eagles from the New York Yankees, reminds us of an incident one of the Penn State football managers passed on after the Nebraska game.

The Lions were scheduled to work out in Chicago Stadium before entraining again for Lincoln. Ben Thompson, first assistant manager, went ahead of the team to Chicago with the equipment.

While Ben was in the dressing room prior to the arrival of the team at the stadium, a big, husky gent walked in the room.

"What team are you with?" asked the stranger.

"Penn State," replied Ben. "Yeh. Who do you have playing for you this year?" the stranger continued.

Ben proceeded to name the Penn State players until he came to the name of Bob Pollard, when the stranger interrupted him again.

"Pollard?" the stranger smiled. "Sure, I remember him. Played against him at Army last year."

By this time, Ben's curiosity got the best of him.

"What's your name," he said. "Al Pollard," replied the husky grigger.

The former army star had just finished working out with the New York Yankees who were scheduled to play in Chicago that weekend and just happened into the Penn State dressing room.

Penn State's gridders would like nothing better than to avenge the defeat the Lions suffered at the hands of Syracuse in Archbold Stadium last season.

The Nittany Lions went into the contest an even choice to come out on top. Besides that, the game was played at night and Penn State had never before lost a night football game. But after the first few minutes, Syracuse took command in the contest and rolled to an easy 27-7 victory. Penn State didn't break into the scoring column until the last play of the game.

(Continue from page six) good scorers. Coleman leads the team in scoring with four goals. Kocher is tied with Shirk for second place with two goals.

Starting at left wing will be Charlie Snyder, who has come a long way since the start of the season.

Holding down the halfback positions will be the top-notch trio of Jack Charlton, left; Kurt Klaus, center; and Frank Follmer, right.

At the fullback posts will be freshman Paul Dierks and junior Jay Simmons, who is playing his final season at State despite his class standing. He is enrolled in the pre-veterinary course, which may be made into a three year course by the student.

At goalie Jeffrey will start sophomore Bob Harris, with another sophomore, Jack Krumrine, in reserve.

Penn Athletic Head Sees TV Ban End

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—Francis T. Murray, University of Pennsylvania athletic director, thinks NCAA television restrictions are doomed.

Murray, whose school was a pioneer in television football, told newsmen today that the Detroit incident "should convince everyone that football television cannot be nationally controlled."

The NCAA only this week decided to allow telecasts to Detroit of tomorrow's Michigan State-Notre Dame game at East Lansing, Mich., originally, the game was to be televised only in the east.

"Football television isn't a problem for the NCAA," said Murray. "It isn't even a problem for such organizations as conferences or leagues."

Robinson Crusoe, a romance by Daniel Defoe (1719), was founded on the actual adventures of Alexander Selkirk during his four years residence in the island of Juan Fernandez off the coast of Chile.

Penniless Jim Thorpe In Hospital

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9—(AP)—All-American Jim Thorpe, flat broke, underwent successful surgery today for removal of a cancerous growth on his lower lip.

The legendary Carlisle School Indian who won fame as a football, track and baseball star—and last year was named by the Associated Press as the No. 1 athlete of this century—is a charity case at the Lankenau Hospital.

His third wife, Patricia, wept openly at a news conference in a hospital anteroom as she thanked the unnamed surgeon "for not taking any money."

"We're broke," she said. "Jim has nothing but his name and his memories. He has spent money on his own people and has given it away. He has often been exploited."

Thorpe, now a bulky, fat, aging 63 with thin greying hair and heavy wrinkles in his face, won all-American honors in 1911 and 1912 as the football wonder of the Carlisle Indian School. He did everything with the pigskin except blow it up.

The lip condition was discovered a week ago, Mrs. Thorpe said. He went immediately to a doctor.

The hospital said in a brief statement: "Jim Thorpe had a cancer of the lip. It was possible to remove the tumor radically by surgery. The defect was closed by plastic surgery and a deformity will be avoided."

Thorpe is expected to leave the hospital in a week or 10 days. He is being maintained in a private room, cost free.

Mrs. Thorpe proposes that Jim's friends in the sports world do something for him.

"It would be a nice gesture," she said, "if the National Football League which Jim helped found would hold a Jim Thorpe day."

"It would also be a nice gesture if the New York Giants, for whom Jim played, would sponsor a benefit."

Mrs. Thorpe said she didn't know what Jim would do when he got out of the hospital, adding she had no plans, no money, no definite place to go.

Snead Quits Golf Tourney

PINEHURST, N.C., Nov. 9—(AP)—What made Sammy run was still a live topic here today.

The Sammy under discussion was slamming Sammy Snead, or, scrambling Sammy Snead, as he was renamed today after his abrupt withdrawal from the North and South Open Golf Tournament following a six-over par 78 in yesterday's second round.

There were various explanations, but those in a position to know best remained discreetly silent.

Snead, who registers from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was on a train for Miami, Fla., less than three hours after posting the score that left him eight strokes out of first place after 36 holes. He won here the last two years.

Howard Capps, PGA tournament director, contacted Snead yesterday shortly after word reached the press room that Sammy had withdrawn. Capps said that Sammy remained firm.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 28...

THE OVENBIRD

Past Grand Master of the Royal Order of Gourmets and Raconteurs—our outspoken friend knows how to find the proof of the pudding. Especially such a thing as cigarette mildness! A "quick puff" and a "single sniff" left him hungry for facts. Smokers everywhere have tried the same tests and discovered the one true test of cigarette mildness!

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke, on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

After all the Mildness Tests...

Camel leads all other brands by billions
