

Education Week Events Continue

American Education Week will continue its program with a radio broadcast and a talk to the State College Parent-Teachers Association tonight.

The radio program, which will be broadcast over WMAJ from 6:15 to 6:30 p.m., stresses the importance of education. Alice Murray, a member of the Education Week committee, will be guest speaker at the PTA meeting at 7 tonight. Her topic is "What Our Schools Are Doing Today."

'48 Graduate Is PI Writer In Germany

Corporal Michael L. Horen, a journalism graduate from the College in 1948, has been assigned to Wiesbaden, Germany, as a feature writer at the 7100 Headquarters Support Wing Public Information Office, it was announced last week by Col. Laurence Kelley, commanding officer of Wiesbaden Military Post.

As a feature writer, Horen scans and writes the news of the Wiesbaden area for local and stateside publications. He also writes radio scripts for the American Forces Network.

Since his enlistment in September 1950, Horen has worked as staff writer at Camp Kilmer, N.J., and Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He was associate editor of the Keesler News, Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., editor of The Rolling Log aboard the USNS W. C. Langfitt, and acted as non-commissioned officer in charge of the Keesler Air Force Base Public Information office.

While a student at the College, Horen was a member of Theta Chi fraternity, and worked on the Daily Collegian, Froth, and the Student Handbook. He was president of the Penn State Club, historian for the Independent Student Council, and a member of Circulo Espanol and the Cosmopolitan Club.

Burdette Wins Judging Award

Lester Burdette, senior in animal husbandry, was high individual of 66 entries of ten colleges in the Eastern National Livestock Judging Contest held Saturday at Timonium, Maryland.

Penn State, as a team, was third with 3938 points. West Virginia won the contest with a total of 4022 points, while Ohio State finished second with 4020 points.

Burdette was second high in judging horses, third in judging sheep and ninth in judging beef-cattle.

James Gallagher, Edgar Fehnel, William Karmlich, and Ralph Yergey were the other students participating in the contest.

The meat judging team remained in Timonium for Tuesday's competition.

The National Intercollegiate Livestock Judging Contest will be held Nov. 24 in Chicago.

Ag Ed Honorary Initiates Pledges

Alpha Tau Alpha, agricultural education honorary, initiated 18 undergraduate students and four graduate students at a recent meeting.

The undergraduates are George Alleman, Thomas Allison, Daniel Bishop, Harold Caldwell, William Clark, Reed Franz, John Haer, Ralph Heister, Richard Herald, David Kincaid, Wesley Kriebel, Lawrence Lindstrom, John McConnell, Edward Reinsel, Donald Snyder, Lewis Vesco, William Waters, and Wilmer Wise.

Graduates taken into the honorary were Richard Jones, Raymond Rutledge, James Woodhull, and John Williams.

Chi Epsilon Smoker

Chi Epsilon, national civil engineering honorary, honored newly-elected members at its annual fall smoker recently.

Thomas Larson, president of the society, welcomed the group. The movie, "This is Penn State," was shown.

Juniors Want 'Football Players'

Do you have a football player in your room? If so, you are one of the persons who is costing the junior class over $100.

Ten cutouts of football players and one large football were taken from the Junior Prom decorations Friday night. If they are not returned, the class must pay the decorator for the missing cutouts.

If the cutouts and football are returned to the Student Union, no questions will be asked, a junior class spokesman said.

Bus Serves As Hotel For Trapps

Not only unique in their musical organization, the Trapp Family Singers have an unusual travel arrangement in their blue and cream bus.

The bus has been completely outfitted with facilities for cooking, sleeping, rehearsing, and family devotions, and takes the place of hotels for the family.

The Trapp Family Singers will appear here at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Schwab Auditorium as part of their 12th tour. They have made both national and international tours covering Central and South America, Australia, and New Zealand.

Last year's tour ended in their native Salzburg where they were featured in the Salzburg Music Festival.

Home for the family is a farm in Vermont, where the Trapps built their house in replica of the mountain homes of Tyrol. Although the family once had a full staff of servants, they now do all household chores.

A book written by Maria Augusta Trapp, the mother of the family, is entitled "The Story of the Trapp Family" and tells of their leaving their home and turning a family hobby into a means of earning a living.

Four daughters, two sons, the mother and the director, Dr. Franz Waser, who also sings bass, make up the group.

Pershing Rifles Inspection Set

Cadet Brig. Gen. Thomas Irwin from Nebraska University will make an official social inspection of Pershing Rifles' Company B-5 this morning at the Armory.

Maj. William H. Cox, executive Army ROTC officer at the College, drove to Lock Haven this morning to meet the cadet general.

After his inspection tour here, Cadet Gen. Irwin will journey to New York to inspect the Eighth Regiment Division.

Cadet Gen. Irwin is in charge of all Pershing Rifles activity in the United States.

Hatcher to Attend Education Confab

Dr. Hazel M. Hatcher, professor in the School of Home Economics, will represent the American Home Economics Association at a conference called by the Institute of International Education today in New York City.

A grant from the Ford Foundation has recently allowed the institute to open five regional offices in the United States. These offices are to assist national organization in educational exchanges. The institute has called the special conference to discuss the subject, "Toward More Effective Programs of International Exchange."

Inkling Staffs to Meet

Circulation and promotion staffs of Inkling, College literary magazine, will meet at 7 tonight in 104 Willard Hall, Robert Leyburn, promotion manager, announced yesterday.

The magazine will go on sale in December.

Ex-Truck Driver Happy as Cashier

By DOT BENNET

What mental picture do you get when you think of a truck driver?—perhaps a big, dark-haired man, with a five o'clock shadow, if not actually a beard, grimy hands, tattooed arms, dressed in a nondescript jacket and dirty, unpressed pants.

This is hardly a good description of Janet Heaton, the pretty blonde under consideration . . . and although it may be hard to believe, Janet, before she became a Corner Room cashier, used to be a truck driver.

Ex-Truck Driver

Janet Heaton

All this came about four years ago when Janet's older brother went into the Army. Her father owns a lumber company, and after her brother was drafted someone was needed to take his place as driver of one of the trucks.

Since Janet's younger brother was too young to drive, what could be more natural than that the job should go to Janet?

So it happened that for over two years she delivered short orders of lumber, that is orders in the vicinity of Martha Furnace, which is her home town, with a big six-by-six Army truck.

Although she didn't dislike truck driving, when her younger brother was old enough to drive, Janet gradually found herself driving less and less, until finally he took over completely. She made a big occupational change and became a cashier in the Corner Room, work which she enjoys much more than truck driving.

She has been working at the Corner Room for over a year now, and has decided that lumber is much easier to handle than money.

Ag Council Proposes Amendment

The membership committee of the Agriculture Student Council at a council meeting last night proposed an amendment to its constitution which would allow one representative on the council for each fifty undergraduate students enrolled in a department.

Vote on the amendment will be made at the council's next meeting Nov. 27.

"The Agriculture Council is illegally represented by having 47 members on its roll call," William Griffith, chairman of the membership committee told the council. According to the constitution "only 45 students may hold seats in the council."

Griffith said that another amendment should read, "each department not represented in the council by an organization will appoint to the council the number of representatives stated in the previous amendment."

A unanimous vote, 27-0, favored a budget proposed by David Stabler, president of the Ag Council. The budget consisted of $100 for the Ag Hill Breeze, $25 for Open House or Coffee Hour, and $8.35 for stamps, post cards, and correspondence.

It was proposed that a non-voting representative from each council on campus participate in Ag Council meetings.

A motion was passed that the Ag council have a mixer with the Home Economics Council following the formers' meeting Nov. 27.

William Griffith, Thomas Jurchak, Donald Lutz, Donald Waddington, Edward Gearhart, and Jack Davies were named to the Coffee Hour committee by Stabler.

Hampton Will Speak

W. H. Hampton, representative of the Hoffman Bros. Drilling Co., Punxsutawney, will speak on grouting methods to the Mining Engineering Society at 7:30 tonight in 217 Willard.

Mixer Planned By Ed Council

Suggestions for the Inter-School Council Board constitution and plans for the Education School mixer were the main discussion topics at the Education School Council meeting last night.

President Ralph Eglif, who has been asked to write the Inter-School Council constitution, said that the council had previously acted as an advisory board. The Education council suggested that the powers of the board should not be extended.

The board is composed of the presidents of the eight school councils. Each council president will assist in the writing.

The social committee said that the TUB had been obtained for Dec. 13, for the Education School mixer. Invitations will be sent to all Education faculty members. Joseph Berg and Patricia Marsteller will provide the entertainment for the evening.

6 Dairy Barns Ready by June

The six new dairy barns located a quarter of a mile east of the National Youth Administration building, will be completed in June 1952. Dr. Mack Dawdy, instructor of dairy husbandry, said recently. Total cost of the construction will be over $600,000.

Separate barns for each of the five breeds of cattle and a milking parlor with a viewing room for spectators are features of the new barns.

Different types of construction, equipment, and housing are being built so that methods can be compared.

A small office building is also being erected. In the vicinity is a pavilion with two apartments. Each apartment can accommodate six students.

—it's your student government

---

—let your voice be heard

—elections Thurs., Nov. 15

BE SURE TO VOTE