

Engle to Make Few Lineup Changes for Rutgers Game

Scarlet Hosts State Gridgers Tomorrow

Coach Rip Engle will make just two or three changes in his starting lineups tomorrow when Penn State's football team meets Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J.

The Lions were scheduled to leave for Plainfield, N.J., where they will stay on the trip, early this morning. They will move into Rutgers Stadium this afternoon for their last pre-game workout.

Although Engle was still not set on his starting lineups for tomorrow's contest, he said that there would be at least two changes made, both on the defensive team. Either Don Malinak or Andy Silcock will start at the defensive left end, replacing freshman Bill Garrity. The other change will see Co-captain Len Shephard back at his linebacking post, replacing Pete Schoderbek, sophomore guard who suffered a severe sprain of the wrist in the Syracuse game.

Same Offense

The remaining defensive positions will probably be the same as started against Syracuse. Jesse Arnette will start at right end, Stew Scheetz and Roosevelt Grier at tackles, Don Shank at guard, Joe Gratson and Bob Smith at the other linebacking posts, Keith Vesling and Bob Pollard at halfbacks, and Don Eyer at safety.

Engle will probably start the same offensive team which opened last Saturday except possibly at left halfback where freshman Buddy Rowell and the Lions' leading ground gainer Ted Shattuck are still battling for the starting assignment.

Lions Favored

The odds-makers have placed the Lions a 14 point favorite in the ball game, the biggest pre-game edge they've received since the season began.

May Break Jinx

Both Rutgers and Penn State will be trying for their fifth win of the year and the lead in the all-time series, between the two teams. Tomorrow's contest will be the third time the Lions have met the Scarlet on the gridiron, each team winning one game. Last year State won, 18-14, in the second game of the series. The first game was played in 1918, Rutgers winning 26-3.

If history repeats itself, Penn State has a good chance of breaking the "even game jinx" which has been dogging the Lion gridgers this season. Not since the eighth game last season has Penn State won an even numbered game, losing their second, fourth, and sixth, this season.

As fate would have it, Penn State's victim in that eighth game last season was Rutgers. Tomorrow is the Lions' eighth game of this season.

Fraternity Boxing Pairings Completed

Fraternity scheduling for the eight IM boxing divisions have been completed, according to Dutch Sykes, assistant IM director.

Copies of the pairings are in the mail and should be received in a few days. Duplicate copies can be obtained at the IM office in Rec Hall. The independent listings have not yet been completed.

Pigskin Pipe Dreams

This is the last week the gridgers will have to overtake the sportswriters in the Daily Collegian's weekly gridiron selections contest. The gridgers trail the sportswriters on the seasonal average, .642 to .605.

The task of catching the sport scribes in this final contest falls on the shoulders of the "brains" of the team, the quarterback. Sophomore Bob Szajna gets the call for the football squad's last-ditch drive.

Pinezich Will Start Against Gettysburg

Jack Pinezich will start at center forward tomorrow when the Penn State soccer team faces Gettysburg at 2 p.m. on the baseball field.

Against North Carolina last week, Coach Bill Jeffrey opened the Brooklyn lad at left wing. Pinezich, however, served notice that he has completely recovered from his back injury as he played a brilliant game against Carolina.

With Pinezich starting at center forward, Jeffrey will switch Don Shirk to outside left where he and Charlie Snyder will alternate. Outside of Pinezich's second switch within two matches, the Nittany Lions will use the same lineup that easily crushed North Carolina 6-0 last Saturday.

Holding down the inside duties will be Captain Ron Coleman, left, and Ellis Kocher, right. Coleman paces the team in scoring with seven tallies.

Kocher, too, has looked exceptional up front as has the entire forward wall. State's passing against N.C. was razor-sharp.

Sophomore Bill Norcik will start at right wing and will be flanked by either Snyder or Shirk.

Norcik also played a commendable game against N.C. as he continually outflanked his defensive man and passed off beautifully to the center men.

In the halfback slots, Jeffrey will use Kurt Klaus, Frank Folmer, and Jack Charlton. This threesome has not had a good workout since the Army match and it's doubtful if they will get one at the hands of the Battlefield men.

Jay Simmons and freshman Paul Dierks will start at fullback positions. Like the halfbacks, they have yet to be seriously tested. Simmons will start on the left side while Dierks will open at right.

As usual, sophomore Bob Harris will handle the goal tending with Jack Krumrine, another sophomore, in reserve.

Planning 2nd Championship?

CHICK WERNER, Penn State cross-country coach talks things over with two of his top runners, Bill Ashenfelter and Captain Dud Foster, on the eve of the IC4A championships. Both Ashenfelter and Foster were members of last year's IC4A and NCAA championship team which will be defending its Eastern title Monday.

Lion Harriers to Defend IC4A Laurels Monday

By JAKE HIGHTON

Penn State's cross country team is faced with rough going Monday afternoon in New York when it defends the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America x-country championship it won last year.

One year ago, the unbeaten Nittany harriers were favored to win and did by an overwhelming margin. But this year, the Lions have been beaten once and Army, in the unbeaten category this season, enjoys the role of everyone's favorite—except in State College.

Although beaten 22-35 by the Cadets for their lone loss in two seasons, the Lions potentially have as good if not a better team than Army. With Lamont Smith not finishing and the race run on the West Point course, State was at a definite disadvantage.

Spartan Coach Karl Schlade-man claimed the Lions would have beaten any team in the country that day. He wasn't far from wrong since it was the fastest any five-man Lion team had ever run.

Leading the Lions in their attempt at a second straight title is Bill Ashenfelter, who finished runnerup to the intercollegiate champion Dick Shea last fall. Big Bill is in great shape and could give Shea a fight for individual honors.

Number two man for State, Lamont Smith, if he follows early season form, could be the highest freshman finisher among the 250 runners in the race. Smitty, first against both Pitt and NYU, and second against Michigan State and Manhattan, appears sharp again after two weeks of doctor's observation.

Red Hollen has been running third for the Lions all season and is the consistent type of runner who should do no different in the State finish order Monday.

Fourth best on the team, Jack Horner has never quite come up to the potential he shows in practice but the IC's could be his time.

Captain Dudley Foster, a high seventh in the IC's last year, has not even come close to such heights of achievement this season. If Dud could regain some of his 1950 form (26:25 in the IC's), State might not have such a rough time Monday.

Frosh Jim Hamill has come up fast from an early season obscurity and should prove a strong sixth man in, the Lion scoring if one of the first five falter.

Seventh man for State will be Bob Roessler, Dave Pierson, John Davison or John Chillrud.

IT'S A FACT

Professor J. S. Whitman's daughter, Minerva, was the first female to attend classes at Penn State. Enrollment has increased since 1865 when Minerva listened to Botany lectures to the grand total of 3150 women registered at the College in the fall of 1951.
