Legion Subversive Charges Renewed

Renewed charges of "un-American activities at the Pennsylvania State College" were accompanied by an admission by an American Legion official yesterday that the Legion had never submitted any evidence to the College.

The statement that no evidence of un-American activities had ever been given to the College was made by Paul W. Beardslee, commander of the 23d district of the American Legion.

Freedom Drive Scrolls Appear Here Today

Scrolls for the Crusade for Freedom will appear on campus today, according to Harry Cover, All-College vice president and chairman of the crusade on campus.

In a report to All-College Cabinet Thursday night, John Laubach, a member of the committee, listed the basic reasons behind the drive.

He said persons signing the scroll "signify that they have not forgotten the oppressed people behind the Iron Curtain. The signer testifies by virtue of his signature that he believes in personal liberty as a God-given right for all men everywhere."

The scrolls will be taken to West Berlin, Laubach said, where they will be enshrined with the world freedom bell.

The crusade, directed by Gen. Lucius Clay, takes contributions for the promotion of Radio Free Europe.

Scrolls will be distributed by the Association of Independent Men, Interfraternity Council, and Women's Student Government Association.

Members of the committee are Cover, chairman, Laubach, Yvonne Carter, Marilyn Levitt, and Edna Baylson.

Students Travel To West Point

Lois Pulver and Robert Alderdice travel to West Point today to represent the College at the third annual Student Conference on United States Affairs.

Approximately 125 seniors and exceptionally well-qualified juniors, including 15-20 United States Military Academy cadets, chosen by their colleges because of their interest and capabilities in the field of international relations, are expected to participate.

The four-day conference, which will include speeches, panel discussions, and round-table groups, will be built around the topic, "U.S. Policy for the Rimland of Europe." Alderdice and Miss Pulver will be on round-tables dealing with special problems in organizing the strength of the rimland countries. These include Germany, Spain, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey and the Near East.

To Speak Tonight

Alan Cranston

Cranston To Speak On 'Peace'

Allan Cranston, president of the United Federalists, Inc., since 1949, will speak at 7:30 tonight in 121 Sparks. The lecture is open to the public.

His topic will be "Isolationism, Internationalism, Supra-nationalism—Which Way to Peace?"

Cranston graduated from Stanford University in his home state of California in 1936. He served as an overseas reporter for a small newspaper when he was a 20-year-old student at Stanford.

After his graduation Cranston was a foreign correspondent in England, Ethiopia, and Italy. During World War II he served as head of a government language division and later, although offered a deferment, served as a private in the infantry. He was later named editor of an army paper.

His book, "The Killing of the Peace," was named by the New York Times as one of the best ten books of 1945. He had previously written an anti-Nazi book which was banned because it infringed on Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf" copyright.

In his present position as head of United Federalists he divides his time between writing and working in behalf of the Federalists.

Classes to Begin Again As Pre-Registration Ends

Pre-registration for the spring semester is to be completed today, with regular classes resuming at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

Time tables listing the courses to be offered next semester will continue to be on sale today at the scheduling office in the basement of Willard Hall.

Any student who wishes to change his schedule after completing first phase registration must secure a special change of schedule form from his advisor.

Final registration is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 in Recreation Hall. Every student must have a Matriculation Card and a signed schedule before being admitted to Recreation Hall.

Groups will be admitted to Rec Hall in alphabetical order to complete final phase registration. No student may register with any group other than his own.

Olympic Ruling Not Worrying State Players

The scare thrown into many colleges and college athletes the past weekend after an announcement by the head of the United States Olympic Committee that all financially-aided athletes would be banned from the U.S. 1952 teams, is having little or no effect on the two Penn State soccermen receiving Olympic tryout bids.

Avery Brundage, president of the National Amateur Athletic Union and Olympic boss, has notified colleges that "any athlete who is subsidized to play football or any other sport will not be eligible" for the U.S. teams in Olympic Games in Helsinki.

In a later interview, however, Brundage said that athletes receiving financial aid on the same basis as other deserving students in the form of grants-in-aid or legitimate scholarships would not be affected.

Lion Soccer Captain Ron Coleman, who along with Kurt Klaus received and accepted invitations for the Olympic tryouts Dec. 6 and 7 in Philadelphia, and Coach Bill Jeffrey expressed beliefs last night that the proposal would not affect the state booters. Klaus was not available for comment.

Coleman said that he and Klaus had received the chance to try out through the efforts of the United States Soccer Football Association, and that this body would probably regulate their positions rather than the NAAU.

Brundage, who defined subsidization as "so-called scholarships, payments or anything of value to play football or other sports," found himself under attack from several quarters.

Athletic Director Al Masters of Stanford led the verbal attack on Brundage. A former member of the U.S. Olympics selections committees, Masters said, "If Mr. Brundage goes through with this, I don't think we'll have much of a track and field squad in the next Olympic Games."

AIM Starts Fund Drive for Victims Of Gentzel Fire

The Association of Independent Men's program for the solicitation of funds for the victims of the Gentzel Building fire has been set in motion, according to John Laubach, president.

Laubach has requested all Nittany-Pollock and West Dorm floor presidents to contact the men of their floors for donations. The floor presidents are to turn their collections into their council presidents.

Members of the Daily Collegian advertising staff will solicit merchants in town for the fund.

The Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, and Leonides have not yet set up their programs, but they are expected to do so soon.

Students Warned Against Thievery

Captain Philip Mark of the campus patrol yesterday reminded students that this is the season for fraternity house thievery.

Mark warned all fraternity men that this is the time of the year when petty robberies of money from wallets within fraternity houses usually take place and urged all fraternity men to keep their valuables in a safe place.

One fraternity was robbed on the night of Dec. 4 for two years in a row, Mark pointed out. The third year, members were awaiting thieves with baseball bats, but no one appeared. The robbers returned the following night to loot the house when the men were off guard, he said.

Debate Team Places First At Allegheny

The women's debate team took first place in its opening tournament at Allegheny College this weekend, the affirmative team winning four out of four, and the negative twosome winning three out of four debates.

Carnegie Institute of Technology, the runner-up, also scored seven wins, but only had 330 points to Penn State's 360.

Agnes Porter and Lois Pulver, who argued affirmative, won over teams from Slippery Rock State Teachers College, University of Pittsburgh, Allegheny College and Alliance College.

Grove City, Geneva College, and Seton Hill College were defeated by Joan Dobson and Constance Matlavage, Penn State's negative team. They lost to Allegheny College.

Seventeen teams from Pennsylvania and Ohio participated in the tournament.

At the Temple University Novice Debate Tournament, also this weekend, Penn State won five out of eight debates. No winner was announced.

Marilyn Cohen and Roberta Goldberg, affirmative, won over all-male teams from St. Joseph's College, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and Rutgers University, and lost to George Washington University. George Washington was undefeated at the tourney, and Rutgers' only loss was to the Penn State women.

The College's negative team, Margaret Troutman and Marian Wildman, were victorious over Temple University and Georgetown University. They lost to an undefeated Howard University team and to Swarthmore College. Twenty-three schools sent teams to the tournament.

AIM to Hold Benefit Dance

The Association of Independent Men will sponsor a benefit tea-dance for victims of the Gentzel fire from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the West Dorm lounge.

Jack Huber and his orchestra will play for the dance. Tickets will cost 50 cents per person or 75 cents per couple and will be on sale at the Student Union desks in Old Main and the West Dorm Main Lobby Wednesday.

Richard Mills, Frank Reese and Paul Zanon are in charge of the dance. Jack Huber and the orchestra are donating part of their time.

All proceeds will be turned over to the fund to assist students who suffered losses in the Gentzel Building fire which gutted students' apartments and eight business establishments on S. Pugh street Nov. 26. Students who suffered losses in the fire have been asked to register losses with Daniel DeMarino, assistant dean of men, in 109 Old Main.

A fund will also be solicited from students on campus by All-College Cabinet to assist the victims of the fire.
