IRVIN MOHLER makes some last minute adjustments to his model circus display in the showcase of the main lobby in Hamilton Hall. Mohler's circus, valued at $2500, will be shown until the Christmas holidays.

Mohler's Miniature Circus Hits College

By ANDY McNEILLE

The circus has come to town!

That's right, this isn't the circus season in this section of the country, but then, this isn't an ordinary circus.

This is a model circus built by Irvin Mohler, a graduate student in bacteriology who is displaying his outfit in the West Dorm main lobby in Hamilton Hall until the Christmas holidays.

Survey Shows Who Harvard's Drinkers Are

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 3—(P)—Harvard athletes and sons of the wealthy have been among the College's heaviest drinkers, a student researcher reported today.

Robert V. Pugh Jr., of Rye, N.Y., checked the drinking habits of 67 seniors in his 1951 class and submitted his findings in a thesis, "The Drinking Habits of the Harvard Man."

These conclusions were reported in the Harvard Crimson, University daily newspaper:

"The more drink the lower the marks.

Most students drink on dates. Students drink because they see others doing it, because of world tension, to get a girl, to relax, for the thrill, the taste, or just "for the hell of it."

Pugh, Harvard Law School student, divided the drinkers as 22 social; 16 occasional; 13 light-heavy; 9 heavy, and 7 non-drinkers.

Of 25 athletes checked, 13 admitted drinking during the training seasons.

"Perhaps the report throws a light on some of the recent records of Harvard athletic teams," Pugh suggested.

Pugh defined a heavy drinker as one who drinks "almost daily, regularly to excess, and has gone on a bender of over 24 hours."

Pugh majored in social relations while a regular University student.

Town Post Absent At Legion Meeting

Paul W. Beardslee, commander of the 23rd district of the American Legion, said yesterday that the State College post of the Legion was not represented at the meeting which adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of "un-American activities at the Pennsylvania State College."

Beardslee said he was misquoted in Tuesday's Daily Collegian. The Daily Collegian reported that Beardslee had said State College had been represented at the meeting. This was denied by Edgar Brenner, commander of the State College post.

Air Guard Seeks Men For Training

An invitation to college men to enter pilot training was made yesterday by Col. Robert C. Boden, executive officer of the 112th Fighter Wing, Pennsylvania Air National Guard. The announcement concerns those whose homes are located in the Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and Reading areas.

"For the college man who is interested in securing both his civilian and military future," Col. Boden said, "I can't think of a better approach than air cadet training through the Air National Guard."

"Not only will the student assure himself of a commission," the Air Guard colonel continued, "but he will leave himself free to pursue his civilian career unhindered."

Vacancies for over 1500 lieutenant pilots will exist in the Air National Guard by the time units now on Federal service return to the home stations, according to Department of Defense figures.

Principal requirements for Air Guard pilot cadet training are a minimum of two years of college and ability to meet high Air Force physical standards. Application may be made through the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, or at the respective areas' Air National Guard installations.

College graduates without previous military service may enter Air cadet training by enlisting in the Air Guard for that purpose. After six months of service with the guard, the candidate will be sent to pilot training.

Pollock Asks Rooming Probe

The Pollock Council last night asked the Association of Independent men to request the College to hold an inspection of off-campus living conditions. The vote, taken because of the Gentzel Building fire, was unanimous.

The motion called for an inspection of boarding houses by the College and the preparation and constant approval of these facilities. The plan would ask the College to check points covering fire insurance on the buildings, and the general physical and sanitary conditions of the buildings.

The council requested that their representatives present their motion to AIM.

In other action the duties of fire marshalls were outlined and rules for conduct during a fire in a dormitory were presented to the council. Members of the council were urged to tell other dorm members that in case of fire they should throw their bedding on the floor, close the windows, open the doors and leave.

E. J. Elder, safety supervisor at the College, has warned that there will be a fire drill soon in the dorm area. Donald Ludwig, Dorm 2 president, said. Each dormitory will have a separate drill, he said.

Phi Betas Hold Founders Day

The 175th anniversary of the National Honor Society will be celebrated by the Penn State chapter of Phi Beta Kappa tonight at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Festivities for the occasion will include a Founder's Day banquet at 6:30 p.m., to be followed by a speech by A. O. Morse, provost at the College and a foundation member of the local chapter. He will talk on "The Helmsman of 1952."

The College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, Lambda of Pennsylvania chapter, will join 150 other chapters of the NHS in marking the anniversary of the organization founded at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., on Dec. 5, 1776.

Hannah Will Speak At Banquet Friday

Banquet Speaker

Dr. John A. Hannah

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, will speak on "The Responsibility of a Land-Grant College for General Education" at the third annual faculty-trustee dinner at 5:30 p.m. Friday in the Nittany Lion Inn.

Dr. M. Nelson McGeary, president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors, sponsors of the dinner, will preside, while President Milton S. Eisenhower will introduce Dr. Hannah. Music will be furnished by Dr. Hummel Fishburn and Frank Gullo of the Department of Music.

A graduate of Michigan State College, Dr. Hannah received his doctor of laws degree at the University of Michigan. He began his work in education as an extension specialist in poultry husbandry at Michigan State and from 1933 to 1935 served as managing agent of the federal hatchery co-ordinating committee in Kansas City, Mo. Returning to Michigan, he served from 1935 to 1941 as secretary of the State Board of Agriculture at Michigan State and in 1941 was named president of Michigan State.

Civil Service To Administer Aero Exams

Examinations for positions as aeronautical research intern and aeronautical research scientist will be held by the Civil Service Commission to fill positions in laboratories of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics throughout the country.

Qualifications for the intern positions at $3410 a year include completion of a full four-year college course leading to a bachelor's degree, with major study in physics, chemistry, electronics, metallurgy, engineering physics, naval architecture, or an appropriate branch of engineering. Applicants, except veterans, must not have passed their 35th birthday.

The $4205 to $10,800 a year research scientist positions require pertinent college study and appropriate professional scientific or engineering experience which has proved the applicant's ability to do research work.

Applicants, except veterans, must not have passed their 62nd birthday. Graduate study may be substituted for all of the required experience through grade GS-11 ($5940 a year) and for part of that required for the higher grade levels.

Applications and additional information can be obtained from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

ICG to Ask Next Convention Here

Members of the Intercollegiate Conference on Government decided last night to propose the College as the site for the next regional ICG convention.

The proposal will be made at the Regional Executive Committee meeting in Hershey, Dec. 9. Representing the College on the committee are William Klisanin, president of the local club; Lee Corter, faculty advisor; and Joseph Galati, serving as assistant regional director, a post held by Klisanin last year.

The regional ICG convention for which the proposal is being made will be a model National Presidential Nominating Convention. It will be composed of the member colleges of the Central Pennsylvania region. The convention will set the policy for the State Conference to be held in Harrisburg during April in addition to being a warm-up session for that conference.

The dates to be proposed by the College for the convention will be either March 1 or 8, 1952.

Coutu to Give Lecture

A speech entitled, "Unanticipated Consequences of Intervening Variables in an Active Process," or "How to Get to Class on Time," will be delivered by Prof. Walter Coutu of the Department of Sociology.

The lecture, sponsored by the Philosophy Club, will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 203 Willard Hall.
