

U.S. Atom Weapons Deter War—Glennan

By ARNIE BLOOM

American possession of atomic weapons is one of the strongest deterrents against the outbreak of a world war, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, said in yesterday's senior engineering lecture.

Dr. Glennan termed American usage of the weapon as "passive."

Mere possession of atomic bombs and weapons is sufficient to discourage any full scale aggression, he said.

He cautioned that if we were to use atomic weapons in the Korean conflict, we would have to be prepared to carry on a world conflagration which the action would surely precipitate.

Dr. Glennan described our atomic setup by comparing it to a private industry. The five-man Atomic Energy Commission acts as a board of directors coordinating the work of all the private industries involved in atomic research, he said. General managers and their assistants are directly under the board and supervise the operations of some 600 private corporations scattered throughout the nation doing the actual work. The commission acts as a policy making and planning organization to bring about the necessary ends for national security and development, Dr. Glennan added.

The bulk of uranium used is imported from abroad, with about 50 per cent coming from the Belgian Congo, he said, added.

118 Students To Take Test For Deferment

One hundred and eighteen Penn State students will take the fifth national student draft deferment test at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in 121 Sparks, Dr. Hugh M. Davison, in charge of testings said yesterday.

Students who pass the test may request a 2 A(S) draft deferment from their local board, H. K. Wilson, dean of men, added.

Although passing the test does not assure the student of a deferment, Dean Wilson said most local boards were complying with the request to use them as a basis for deferment. High scholastic standing may also defer students, he said.

Dr. Davison said those taking the test should bring their notice of classification, form 110, their selective service identification card, form 391, and their test ticket of admission.

The next deferment test will be given April 24, 1952. The deadline for applications for that test is March 10 of next year. The deadline for Thursday's test was Nov. 5.

Students wishing to take the test must request deferment as a student, be enrolled in a full-time course of study, and must not have taken the test before, Dean Wilson said.

8174 Have Completed Spring Pre-Registration

The Registrar's office revealed yesterday that over 8174 undergraduates have completed first phase registration.

According to A. W. Stewart, assistant registrar, all pre-registration cards have not yet been received and tabulated by the office. He added, however, that the figure was "almost complete."

Reservists To Donate to Blood Drive

About 40 members of the 112th Aircraft and Warning Squadron, recently activated Air Force Reserve unit composed of students, ex-faculty members, and local citizens, plan to pledge blood to the current blood drive extension, drive officials said yesterday.

Blood drive leaders said only six pledge forms to donate blood in next week's drive extension have been turned in by students. The drive extension, with a pledge goal of 140, ends at 4 p.m. Monday.

A Red Cross blood unit from Johnstown will be at the Reformed Church, across College avenue from Atherton Hall, to secure the blood donations on Wednesday and Thursday.

Over 230 students who pledged blood in last month's drive, but were not scheduled due to time limits, will receive appointments for this drive extension. Last month, 987 pints of blood were secured on campus.

Pledge forms may be secured at the TUB, West Dorm main lounge, and the Student Union desk in Old Main. They must be returned by Monday to the Student Union desk, drive leaders said.

Members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will assist in setting up and taking down the Red Cross unit.

AIM to Hold Fire Benefit Dance Tonight

The Association of Independent Men will sponsor a benefit dance from 8 to 12 tonight in the West Dorm lounge for the benefit of victims of the Gentzel Building fire.

Dick Marsh's orchestra will provide music.

The Dean of Men's office announced that nearly all of the 19 students who were affected by the fire had filed itemized lists of their losses.

Daniel A. DeMarino, assistant dean of men, said the deadline for the lists is noon today, and he emphasized that it will be impossible to aid any student unless he registers in the dean of men's office.

The All-College committee set up to channel aid to the fire victims will go over the lists Monday.

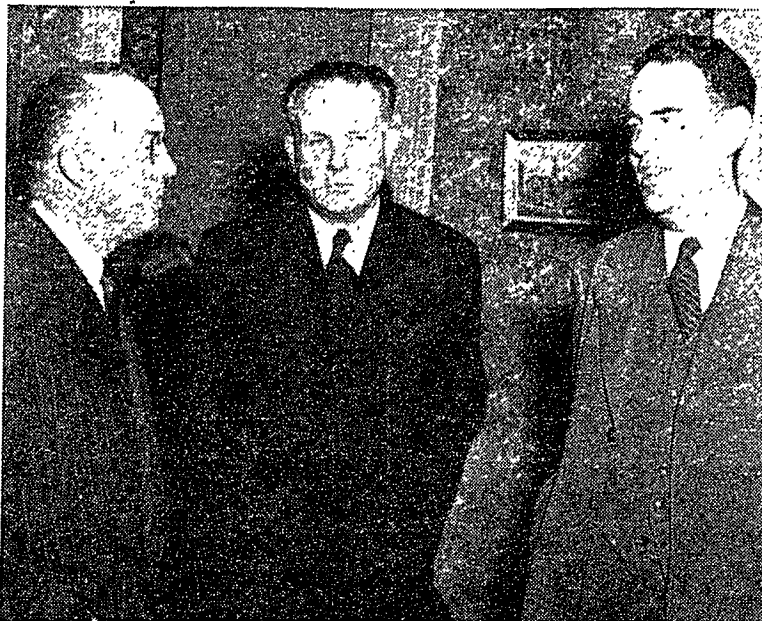

Several State College merchants have signified a desire to help the students, but are awaiting the committee's report in order that the aid can be given fairly.

A fund is also being jointly collected by the Association of Independent Men, Panhellenic Council, Leonides, and Interfraternity Council.

Marvin Krasnansky, chairman of the cabinet committee, asked those persons collecting for this fund to turn the proceeds in at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

Hannah Suggests Courses To Stimulate Thinking

Faculty-Trustee Dinner

JOHN S. HANNAH, president of Michigan State College, (center) called for a revision of courses of study in land-grant colleges in order to include some designed to train the student to think at a faculty-trustee dinner last night in the Nittany Lion Inn. Penn State President Milton S. Eisenhower is at left. At right is M. N. McGeary, instructor and former head of the Political Science Department.

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, last night called for a "revision of the courses of study traditionally taught in our land-grant colleges in order to include some designed to train students to think."

Dr. Hannah spoke before the third annual faculty-trustee dinner at the Nittany Lion Inn.

The college program should include courses that would stimulate the inner spirits of students so as to "make them whole men and whole women, rather than efficient instruments attuned to perform mechanical functions in making adequate livings, but failures at making lives," he said.

Technical Training Needed

He indicated he was not advocating the liberal arts for everyone, because "one must be alive to enjoy life, and most of us have to earn a living to stay alive."

"On the other hand," Dr. Hannah said, "students under our guidance must be taught some things in addition to mere competence in performing technical functions of their professions."

Dr. Hannah said education for the world of tomorrow must include a full share of technical training for young men and women and recalled that there never has been a true surplus of trained technical intelligence. But he said also that greater emphasis must be placed on the training of people for effective citizenship.

Voted Broad Education

Another objective was described as "the general respect for the moral law, obedience to just laws made by man for his own government, and that universal selflessness which is the only sure foundation for lasting peace and the brotherhood of man."

The founders of the Merrill Land-Grant Act of 1862 understood "that trained men would be little better than machines if they possessed manual and mental skills and nothing else," he continued. "They voted for a broad education, and we would be wise to listen to their voices even in this modern day," Hannah said.

'Old Plans Are Lost' Will Be Chapel Topic

Dr. James M. Barnett, minister of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, will speak on "Old Plans Are Lost" in Chapel at 10:55 a.m. tomorrow.

The Chapel choir will sing "Now Let All the Heavens Adore Thee" and "All Men Now Sing, Rejoice," by Bach and "Let All Mortal Flesh Keep Silence," an Old French melody.

A native of New Bloomfield, Pa., Dr. Barnett was graduated from Beaver Falls High School. He received his A.B. degree from the University of Pittsburgh, his Th.B. from Princeton Theological Seminary, his M.A. from Princeton University, and his D. D. from Grove City College.

Before filling his present pastorate, Dr. Barnett served the Towson Presbyterian Church, Monaca, Pa., and the First Presbyterian Church, Grove City, Pa.

Final Judging For Froth Jester Set for Wednesday

Final tryouts for students who would like to be Frothy, the Penn State Froth's jester, have been changed to 7 p.m. next Wednesday, instead of Thursday, as was previously announced. Tryouts will take place in 110 Electrical Engineering Building.

At that time the fifteen finalists, who will be chosen from applicants for the Frothy position, will be judged by a panel of five judges.

Alex Gregal, the Nittany Lion, who appeared at football games this year, will be present in full costume to judge and work with contestants. Other judges include Eugene Wettstone, head gymnastics coach; Ron Bonn, Froth editor; Anne Hibbs, Froth promotion manager; and Thomas Hanna, head cheerleader.

Applications containing name, semester, college address, and tumbling, cheerleading, and dramatic experience should be filled out and returned by Monday noon to the Student Union desk in Old Main, the main desk in the West Dorm lobby, or to Ron Bonn.

Students who are selected on the basis of information contained on the forms will be contacted by members of the Froth staff, and will be instructed for the final judging.

Hepler Services Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Thomas Hepler, 19-year-old sophomore who was found dead in his room yesterday from an overdose of sleeping pills, will be held at the W. Edward Flick Funeral Home in Tarentum at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Burial will be at the Mt. Airy Cemetery, Natrona Heights.

Hepler, an honor student on a state scholarship, was found dead by his roommate, Howard Slothower, a freshman, when the latter returned from an 8 o'clock class.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Hepler, of Brackenridge, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Lou Hall, of Verona, and Mrs. Hannah Ekas, of Tarentum.

Clothing Drive Starts On Monday

Alpha Phi Omega, service honorary, and several hat societies will distribute containers to dormitories and fraternities today for the Korean clothing drive.

The clothing drive officially begins Monday. It is being sponsored on campus by APO, Hat Society Council, and the Penn State Christian Association.

In addition to placing sacks on each floor of the campus dormitories and in each fraternity house, some will be left at College Sportswear, Inc., where town students may place their contributions.

Each dormitory unit and fraternity president has been asked by the committee in charge of the drive to appoint a representative in his living unit to be in charge of collections there. The names of these representatives should be sent to the PSCA office, 304 Old Main, Jean Lathlaen, PSCA representative and co-chairman of the clothing drive committee said. Other co-chairmen of the drive are Nancy McClain, representing Hat Society Council, and William Slepik, APO.
