

Frothy Aspirants Resemble Aggregation of Evil Spirits

By DOT BENNETT

Anyone peering into the window of 110 Electrical Engineering Building Wednesday night might have thought the evil spirits were assembled for a meeting.

Men with expressions of great joy, surprise, and terror were jumping high in the air with their hands clasped above their heads, and tumbling on the floor. A Lion was walking around on two feet.

5 Contracts Approved By College

Contracts between the College and five industries, providing fellowships and research grants to the College, have been approved, President Milton S. Eisenhower announced today.

A grant of $3000 for the establishment of research fellowships in the Department of Physics has been provided by the Gulf Research and Development Co. The fellowships will be administered by Dr. Raymond Pepinsky, research professor of physics.

The Union Carbide and Carbon Corp. has established a fellowship with an annual stipend of $1400 if the recipient is unmarried and $2100 if married. The grant, in the department of chemistry, will be administered by Dr. W. Conrad Fernelius, professor and head of the Department of Chemistry. This grant, which has no restrictions as to the specific nature of the work to be conducted, also provides $1200 for fees, laboratory expenses, and equipment.

Established in the School of Agriculture by the Coke Oven Ammonia Research Bureau is a research fellowship for a three-year period, amounting to $2000 annually. Dr. John B. Washko, associate professor of agronomy; Dr. Roy P. Pennington, assistant professor of soil technology; and Dr. Henry S. Brunner, professor and head of the Department of Agricultural Education, will direct the work under this grant.

Sharp & Dohme, Inc. has established a $2000 research grant for study of the absorption of sulfa compounds in cattle. Dr. A. L. Bortree, professor of veterinary science, will direct the work.

Renewing its agreement with the College, Dow Corning Corp. is providing $11,140 for the continuation of its fellowship program. This includes six fellowships under the direction of Dr. Leo H. Sommer, assistant professor of chemistry.

Collegian to Hold Christmas Party

All boards of the editorial and advertising staffs of the Daily Collegian will hold a Christmas party at 8 tonight at the Eutaw House.

Party buses will leave from in front of the Collegian office at 7:30. Daily Collegian members who have not signed up for the party may do so in the Collegian office until noon today.

Refreshments and entertainment will be provided at the party, which is an annual affair. Moylan Mills, Ernest Moore, and Dorothy Naveen are in charge of arrangements for the party.

Penn State Grange To Hold Xmas Party

The Penn State Grange will hold its Christmas party at 8 p.m. Tuesday in 100 Horticulture Building instead of Wednesday as originally planned, Ralph Birth, president of the club, has announced.

A business meeting will be held before the party. There will be music, group singing and an exchange of gifts at the party.

Johnson to Judge

Dr. George F. Johnson, visual aids specialist in the Agricultural Extension Service, will serve as one of the judges in color photography for the Eastman International Salon of Photography on Saturday, Dec. 15. He left today for Rochester.

It wasn't a witch dance, however, but the Frothy tryouts. The contestants were being judged on the way they made their entrances; how they performed impromptu dances and took deliberate falls; the way they worked with Alex Gregal, the Nittany Lion, and what they could do to attract attention, such as playing an imaginary football game.

When asked why they wanted to be Frothy, some of the contestants replied that they liked to cheer and have fun. Others said they were always making fools of themselves someplace and might as well do it in front of a crowd.

The winner, David Heckel, said he is "just another one of those characters you find around campus."

Heckel, a sophomore from Lancaster, is in dairy husbandry. He was a cheerleader for three years in high school and captain of the tumbling team in his senior year. As a Frothy contestant he seemed at ease both when jumping around and tumbling and when talking to the judges. A tall, gangling redhead, Heckel was described by one of the judges as "someone the wind blew in."

Frothy was started several years ago, no one seems to know exactly when, as a promotion stunt for Froth magazine. In 1948, James Dunaway took over as Froth promotion director and also as Frothy. Besides appearing at games, Dunaway ran up and down the mall on "Froth Day," pulling a little red wagon and selling Froth.

MI Council Plans Banquet

The Mineral Industries Student Council initiated plans last night for a banquet to be held early next semester.

The banquet will be held in honor of John Forbes, Penn State Mineral Industries graduate who was recently appointed head of the United States Bureau of Mines.

Peter Fairchok and John Ruffner were named co-chairman of a committee for the banquet. Others on the committee are Harold Meabon, David Fleming, Edward Bush, Robert Johnson, John Slezak, and Joseph Culp. This committee will work with a faculty committee appointed by Edward Steidle, dean of the School of Mineral Industries.

Council president Millard Reburg announced that three $50 donations from the Rugh Fund will be given to a student in the sophomore, junior, and senior class. A faculty committee will make the final decision.

WSGA Discusses Customs

Freshman customs and regulations for next year were discussed by the Women's Student Government Association Senate Wednesday.

Jeannine Bell, Judicial chairman announced the Hat Society Council's plan for joint control of customs by a board of four men and four women to be headed by the chairmen of Judicial and Tribunal. Penalties for women would be similar to those used for men—wearing signs and odd clothes.

The Senate said that the suggested penalties would foster school spirit, not antagonize the freshmen as the present one o'clock removals and campus do.

Joan Yerger, chairman of the freshman customs and regulations board, read the revised customs and regulations proposed for next year. The Senate postponed discussion on them until the next meeting.

The big-little sister tea will be held either Feb. 17 or 24, Ann Cunningham, freshman senator, announced.

Esther Beck, senior senator, said the junior-senior faculty reception will be held 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. April 30.

Giving women more than two one o'clocks for traveling was discussed. No action was taken.

Yvonne Carter, acting president, announced that she had received a Christmas card from a Marine who wanted all Penn State coeds to write him. Interested women may contact Miss Carter.

Alpha Delta Sigma Will Initiate 12 At Sunday Meeting

Eleven undergraduates and one professional member will be initiated Sunday night into Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising honorary for men. The initiation will take place at Theta Kappa Phi at 6:15.

The new initiates will be Charles Coffman, Carlton Corson, Robert Eddings, John Kaufman, Joseph Kline, James McNamara, Frank Olsheski, Edward Shanken, David Shultz, Edwin Steel, William Walters, undergraduates; and Harry P. Bridge, professional.

Bridge, president of the Harry P. Bridge Advertising Agency of Philadelphia, is the author of the textbook, "Practical Advertising," used by the College.

Donald W. Davis, professor of advertising and adviser to Alpha Delta Sigma, said that Bridge will also be guest speaker at the meeting.

Christmas Tree Adorns Simmons Hall Room

Some people think that Christmas just isn't Christmas without a tree, especially two Simmons Hall girls who have set one up in their room.

The fir tree is a gift to Nancy Hagy and Lori Dahlstrom from Sigma Nu fraternity.

The little tree, which stands about three feet high is decorated with jewelry, dolls, bean bags, and Christmas balls. A small replica of Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer is perched on the top branch.

Review Earns $30 Toward Xmas Party

Approximately $30 was collected from contributions taken at the "Splinterville Review" Tuesday night, William Cole, president, has announced.

The money, along with funds collected in the Nittany-Pollock dining halls, will be used to sponsor a Christmas party for Windcrest children in the TUB this afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m.

The annual party has been held since Windcrest first came into being during the war years. Last year the Barons took charge of the project.

Robert Fentress, in charge of the affair, said that letters have been sent out to all children in the area inviting them to the party. Parents have also been asked to attend with their children.

Fentress said that the Speech Department has promised to send women to read stories to the children. The Recreation department has also promised students to lead games.

After the entertainment, candy and other treats will be passed out, Fentress added.

Atwater Will Speak To ICG Members

The Intercollegiate Conference on Government will hold its bi-weekly business meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the living center of the Home Economics Building.

Following the business meeting, Dr. Elton Atwater, associate professor of political science, will discuss "Foreign Policy Viewpoints," and reports will be given on the regional meeting of the ICG at Hershey last Sunday.

Dr. Atwater's discussion will be open to the public.

Lowenfeld First To Lecture In LA Series

Dr. Viktor Lowenfeld, art education professor at the College, will be the first speaker in the Liberal Arts lecture series, Dr. Elton Carter, chairman of the lecture series committee, announced yesterday.

Dr. Lowenfeld is tentatively scheduled to present his lecture early in January. He will be the first in a series of four speakers to be sponsored by the School of Liberal Arts.

Three other non-campus personalities are being scheduled for February, March and April.

Dr. Carter said that it is probable that this year's lectures will not be as much concerned with social sciences as they have in previous years.

All liberal arts lectures will be open to the public, as in the past.

Faculty members on the liberal arts lecture series committee are Dr. Carter, chairman, Dr. Henry Finch, Dr. Kent Forster, and Dr. Herbert Steiner.

ACEI Mitten Tree Now Has 51-Pairs

Fifty-one pairs of mittens have been hung on the mitten tree in Pattee Library's circulation room. The tree, which is a Christmas project of the Association for Childhood Education International, will remain in the library until next Tuesday.

Students wishing to make donations may knit or buy a pair of mittens of any size and hang them on the tree. The mittens will be sent to needy children.
