

Students Send Farm Exhibit

Members of the Clover Club and all student agronomists have submitted an educational display in the 1952 Pennsylvania Farm Show, held at Harrisburg, which began yesterday.

More than 11,000 individual exhibits, depicting every phase of Pennsylvania's $2,500,000,000 agricultural industry, are in the show, according to the Associated Press.

Penn State's exhibit, which stresses the use of Pennsylvania corn hybrids, was built at the foundation seed stock building on the College farms.

Built in Sections

Alfred Speers and William Reese were named co-chairmen of the project by Austin Weimer, president of the Clover Club.

Speers and Reese were assisted by a staff responsible for planning, building, and painting the entire display. The exhibit was built in sections to facilitate transportation.

Farm show visitors will activate the mechanism that operates a series of lights calling attention to various advantages derived from use of Pennsylvania corn hybrids.

Members of the Clover Club and the agronomists are on hand to answer any questions.

Banquet Thursday

Jean Mastin, Pennsylvania Potato Blossom Queen, and Hilda Hogeland, Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Queen, are to be at the annual show.

Miss Mastin will attend the Potato Growers annual banquet Thursday evening at which Mayor Robbins of Harrisburg will be inaugurated as mayor of Potato City.

Miss Hogeland will attend the Vegetable Growers convention and take part in its promotional activities.

In the few years that the experiment station at the College has been developing new hybrids, breeders have been made available specific hybrids for the five maturity areas of the state.

Fire Collections End Wednesday

The Student Union office reported $10.60 turned in over the weekend for the Gentzel fire fund. Marvin Krasnansky, head of the fire fund committee, announced that 5 p.m. Wednesday is the deadline for fund collections.

Krasnansky urged that all dormitory, fraternity, and sorority officers who have collections to hand in do so before that time.

The $10.60 collected this weekend was the total of $5.60 from Nittany dorm 26 and $5 from Theta Xi fraternity.

Dorms Vote For 2 Dances

The West Dorm Council voted last night to appropriate $175 for two dances to be held next semester.

Friday, Feb. 8, was set as the date for the first dance in the lounge next semester. An orchestra will provide music from 8 to 11 p.m. and records will be played from then until 1 a.m.

The second dance, the West Dorm Spring dance, is planned for Saturday, May 24.

Richard Mills, council president, announced that enforced study hours will be established in the West Dorms for the final examination period. The hours will begin Monday, Jan. 21 at 5 p.m. and continue until the end of finals.

Mills reported that he is continuing the investigation of service at the West Dorms snack bar.

No new secretary has been named for the council since the resignation of David Stamm.

PSCA to Present Education Forum

An open forum on education on three continents will be presented by the Penn State Christian Association at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in 304 Old Main.

The forum, sponsored by the International Affairs Committee of PSCA, will discuss the topic "Education — Here and Abroad." Three speakers will present their views and the public will be allowed to participate in a discussion of the speeches.

Dean M. R. Trabue, dean of the School of Education, will speak on education in the United States; Pedro von Achenbach, University of Montevideo, Uruguay, will discuss education in South America; and education in continental Europe will be the subject of a speech by Dagobert de Levie, assistant professor of German.

Werner Joseph, of Chile, will be moderator.

'Corruption' Issue Of Froth to Go On Sale Today

Using "Corruption in High Places" as its theme, the January issue of the Penn State Froth is ready for sale today.

The stories and humor behind the black and red cover are built around the corruption theme.

The Froth Girl of the Month is an elementary education junior named Dorian Heins. Miss Heins is featured in two poses.

Besides Laird Kinnaird's sketches of "instructors as seen by" various students, the magazine also contains a parody on the Mickey Spillane "Mike Hammer" stories, created by Phoebe Erickson and Lennie Feinberg.

Other feature stories include "Dark Horse" by Peter Whelan, and "Uncle Sam Wants Garrison" by Ron Bonn. Froth editor, Old Mania, Mug and Jester, Dope Sheet, and other monthly features also appear in the January issue.

Prof to Speak On Fuel Gauge

William B. Shepperd, associate professor of electrical engineering, will present a paper on "The Design and Development of an Unusual B-29 Fuel Gauge" at a meeting of the Centre County subsection of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at 7:30 p.m. tonight in 219 Electrical Engineering.

Shepperd has been associated with the Department of Electrical Engineering since the spring of 1948. He received his bachelor of science degree in Electrical Engineering at the University of Texas and the degree of master of science in electrical engineering and physics at Washington University.

Rec Society Officers

Newly-elected officers of the Penn State Recreation Society are Elizabeth Duda, president; Sara McMillan, vice-president; Patricia Patterson, secretary, and Richard Koontz, treasurer.

'Home Sweet Home' Is Prison for Two

By LAVONNE ALTHOUSE

"Why do you live at a prison?"

This question was asked of Joseph Kline, Delta Tau Delta, who lists his home address in the student directory as Western State Penitentiary, Pittsburgh, and Patricia Nutter, whose address reads U. S. P. (prison) Reservation, Lewisburg.

Both Miss Nutter and Kline are fifth semester students, majoring in journalism and arts and letters respectively.

Both smiled understandingly when asked the question, as though they had expected something like that eventually.

In Contact with Inmates

Miss Nutter replied that her father is chief clerk in charge of buying and selling for the Lewisburg institution. Kline's father, it developed, is state purchasing agent for both Western State and nearby Rockview Penitentiary.

When asked if they ever came in close contact with many prisoners, however, their answers varied. Blonde Miss Nutter said that families were usually not allowed to talk to the prisoners who mowed the lawns, clipped the hedges, and collected the garbage from the forty houses of administrative personnel on the Lewisburg prison.

Kline's Contact Closer

However, she said she had spoken to several prisoners who painted their house a few summers ago and heard stories from the warden about the men. The one she liked best was about the Texan prisoner who found his fiancée's relatives were all members either of the Federal Bureau of Investigation or the local police force, and promptly broke his engagement.

Kline has had a closer acquaintance with the Western State prisoners. One of their jobs is to take care of the automobiles provided by the state for the use of personnel.

Two years ago Kline's family met a paroled prisoner in downtown Pittsburgh one night. He offered to drive them home in his "big car." They followed him, smiling to go along with the joke, and were quite amazed when he showed them his Buick.

Committee Plans Calendar Talks

The Senate committee on calendar will meet Jan. 27 to continue discussion on three All-College Cabinet proposals brought before the group Friday.

Ernest W. Callenbach, committee chairman, said yesterday that no conclusions concerning the three cabinet proposals were reached Friday. This, he said, will necessitate further discussion.

The three proposals, if accepted, would begin all holiday recesses at noon, continue the two-day registration period now in effect, and create two "floating" holidays for use by the student body during the school year.

The National Student Association is a non-profit educational group.
