RILW to Feature Three Guest Leaders

Three local religious groups have invited leaders of their faiths to participate in Region-in-Life Week. They will be available, along with local leaders of other faiths, for firesides and classroom discussions.

The visiting leaders are the Rev. Irving R. Murray, Pittsburgh, Unitarian; Joseph T. Baily, regional secretary of Inter-varsity Student Fellowship, Penn State Bible Fellowship, and William V. K. Shepard, Philadelphia, Christian Science Organization.

Committee Will Hear Recess Plan

A plan to terminate classes for holiday recesses at noon and set up two "floating holidays" to be used by the student body for special event holidays will come before the College Senate committee on the calendar today.

The changes in the calendar were recommended recently by All-College Cabinet.

The plan would also retain the present two-day registration recess each semester.

The plan to end classes at noon was proposed to keep students from driving home for holidays during the night, when roads are more dangerous, and also to allow women more time to leave the dormitories before they close, a cabinet spokesman said.

The present two-day registration recess, although continued in the cabinet recommendations, is favored by only one of the eight school deans, a recent poll by the Daily Collegian disclosed.

The proposals must be approved by the calendar committee before they can be put into effect.

State Clique Elections Set Sunday

Election of clique officers of the State Party will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday in 119 Osmond, Robert Amole, present clique chairman, announced yesterday.

Amole stated that the meeting will be organizational in nature and added that it would be open to all students, regardless of their campus political affiliation. He extended a special invitation to all freshman students.

The party organization will be completely explained at the meeting, Amole said, and will be a good opportunity for those students who do not thoroughly understand the political set-up to get the matter straightened out in their minds.

Amole explained that while elections are still two months off, the party was meeting early in order to try to counteract student apathy to campus politics, to allow a longer period for consideration of candidates and platform, and to permit greater student participation.

Present officers of the State Party besides Amole are Frank Schrey, vice chairman; Marilyn Minor, secretary; and Richard Grossman, treasurer.

Olmsted Revises Proposed Changes

By DAVE PELLNITZ

The proposed amendment to the All-College Constitution dealing with the changing of student fees was withdrawn last night by David Olmsted, senior class president and originator of the proposal, and resubmitted as an amendment to Article I, Section 8 of the constitution.

The amendment had originally been proposed as Article 13 of the constitution, but with the exception of two minor changes, remains the same in meaning.

'Appeal to Apathy'

Under the proposal, Article I, Section 8 would be changed to read: "The Cabinet shall have control over all student funds, including the establishment of class dues, the recommendation of student activities fees, the approval of specific budgets, the approval of expenditures, and the supervision of the auditing of these expenditures. Recommendations for subtractions from, or additions to, student activities fees can be made to the administration only after Cabinet has passed such a recommendation by a two-thirds vote on each of two consecutive meetings;

if, however, a petition signed by 10 per cent of the student body is submitted to an officer of cabinet within one week after the first vote, a statistical poll, conducted by the elections committee, with the advice of the Psychology department, must be taken within 30 days and the results presented to cabinet for consideration before the final vote is taken on the change in student fees."

Marvin Krasnansky, chairman of the Board of Publications, charged that the poll was an apology to student apathy, while Mary Jane Woodrow, president of the Women's Student Government Association, said that it would deprive students of the right to vote by denying them a referendum.

Ross Lehman, assistant executive secretary of the Alumni Association and a cabinet adviser, brought up three points which he said cabinet should consider carefully before making its final vote on the proposed amendment.

Called 'Crutch'

First, Lehman said, the purpose of the amendment should be considered carefully, and secondly, it should be considered whether the amendment conflicts in any way with other sections of the constitution. Finally, he said, it should be determined if the amendment would do a special good for a special thing which

Election Revisions Get Okay

By MIMI UNGAR

All-College Cabinet last night unanimously approved the All-College election committee's revisions to the elections code.

The major change passed provides that by April 21 parties must submit samples of all printed material used during campaigns, as well as itemized expense accounts and bills to the elections committee for final approval and checking.

George Glazer, who presented the report in the absence of Carol Chapman, committee chairman, pointed out that the committee had full intentions of checking more closely the amount of money spent by the parties.

Elections April 22, 23

Another amendment which was approved increased from $150 to $200 the amount of money to be spent on campaigns. This includes $50 as the maximum in donations, which are defined as money given within the clique.

All-College junior, and senior class elections will be held April 22 and 23, with ballots being counted on the evening of April 23. March 19 was approved as the deadline for a third party to file as well as for clique lists to be submitted to the elections committee.

Fine Sets March 3 As 'Loyalty Day'

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14—(AP)—Gov. John S. Fine today proclaimed March 3 as "Loyalty Day" in Pennsylvania and urged all public employees to take the state's new loyalty oath on that date.

The governor also asked that appropriate services be held in all communities commemorating the occasion.

"The taking of this loyalty oath or affirmation by these public servants is a privilege for all of us who share in the beneficiaries of this great country and commonwealth," Fine said in his proclamation.

Fine also urged that officers administering the oath do so free of charge.

RILW Opens Tomorrow
The Religion-in-Life Week committee decided this year to change its policy of inviting out-of-town leaders representing each faith to participate in the RILW, and to use local religious leaders in the program. These three groups were permitted to invite guest leaders because they felt they had no local person who could represent their groups in such a program.

Religion-in-Life Week opens tomorrow night and will be observed next week in conjunction with National Brotherhood Week. The theme this year is "This Meets Your Need."

Five principal leaders for the week represent the Jewish and Protestant faiths. Protestant leaders are the Rev. A. T. Mollegan, professor of Christian ethics, Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary, Alexandria, Va.; the Rev. John Dillenberger, acting head of the Department of Religion, Columbia University; and the Rev. Andrew T. Roy, personal secretary, Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Peabody General Chairman
Leaders of the Jewish tradition are Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, national director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation and Will Herberg, noted for his work in the fields of labor and social research and theology.

The Rev. John Peabody of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church is general chairman of RILW while Jane Montgomery and Ralph Cash are student co-chairmen.

Chairmen of committees include worship, Rustum Roy and Prodipto Roy; religious culture, David Kincaid; firesides, Stanley Wengert, Marilyn Levitt, John Laubach, and Mary Jane Woodrow; publicity, George Peters; classroom discussions, Nancy Holtzinger; hospitality, Joan Hutcheon, and finance, Marlin Brenner.

The faculty committee includes R. H. Waters, chairman; Henry Brunner, Francis Babione, H. Norton Cope, Robert Meahl, Earl Stavelly, Norman Theilke, Clifford Nelson, John Nicholas and John Ferguson.

Community Concert Features Appleton-Field Team Tonight

The second in a series of four Community Concert programs, which begins at 8:30 tonight in Schwab Auditorium, will feature Vera Appleton and Michael Field, a piano team in their ninth season of performances.

Frederick R. Matson, president of the Community Concert Association, has announced that only members of the association will be admitted to the concert. Doors will open at 7:45 p.m.

Miss Appleton and Field, graduates of Juilliard School of Music, New York, will present a program including music by Schubert, Brahms, and Bach. The pianists, who have played more than 500 concerts together, have appeared as guest performers on several network radio shows, including the Prudential Family Hour and Piano Playhouse.

Appleton and Field have also done recording work together. They were the first to record Stravinsky's two-piano concerto and the first to perform in this country the Khatchaturian "Sabre Dance," which later became a juke-box hit. Miss Appleton, before devoting her time to music, turned down an offer of a modeling career from John Robert Powers. Previously she had been a ballet dancer, as well as a piano instructor in her home town, Tulsa, Okla.

Field, a native New Yorker, was composer of the Hit Parade favorite, "The Same Old Story." He was also editor for a jazz publishing firm before his interests turned to a classical music career.

The team has been highly rated by critics since they presented a series of New York recitals entitled "Two Pianos Through Four Centuries." Until that time, duo-pianism had not been regarded as a specific type of musical art.

In private life, Vera Appleton is Mrs. Alan Bressler, wife of a New York business executive. Field is married to the former Frances Brown, magazine writer and painter.

Cut Plan Proposed To Senate

A plan which would add one credit to the normal graduation requirements for missing the last meeting of a class occurring in a 48 hour period before and a similar period after a regularly scheduled vacation, was proposed at a recent meeting of the College Senate, the published report of the Senate minutes yesterday disclosed.

The proposal will lie on the table for one month before action can be taken upon it.

Under the plan, proposed by B. A. Whisler, head of the Civil Engineering department, instructors would be required to report all such absences. The dean of the school in which the student is enrolled might excuse an individual student from the operation of the rule if the student is prevented from attending class by illness, death in the family, or similar extraordinary circumstances. In an emergency due to weather or other general conditions, the plan says, the President of the College could temporarily abrogate the rule.

ROTC Continues Rifle Range Location Hunt

Facilities for housing the Army ROTC rifle range, previously located in the basement of Atherton Hall and recently closed because of protests by residents there, have not yet been found, according to Samuel K. Hostetter, comptroller.

The rifle range is still closed, Hostetter said, and the matter is something of a dead issue. The ROTC unit is still interested in securing a location for the range, he said.

The range was in operation in Atherton Hall last semester but was closed following protests by coeds living there, who said the noise interfered with their studying. At the time there appeared to be some misunderstanding between the ROTC and the College as to when the range was to be used.

Enrollment Group To Form Monday

There will be a meeting of all students interested in working on the All-College Cabinet enrollment committee at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 108 Willard.

Committee members will visit their home town high schools to hold discussion groups and distribute literature on the College.

Edward Shanken and John Allison, co-chairmen of the committee, both emphasized that students from all classes can attend the meeting.

It is believed that the committee can help to offset a possible drop in enrollment, Shanken said.
