

College Denies Report On Moshannon Lease

The College yesterday denied a published report that it was preparing to take over the Black Moshannon airport and that the transfer of operating rights to the College had been completed.

The Philipsburg Journal, which carried the story, said yesterday it could support its story, but would not make a statement immediately. It said it would publish the College denial.

"At no time has the College considered undertaking actual operation of the airport," Samuel K. Hostetter, comptroller of the College, said yesterday.

Apparent Need

He denied that there were any new developments in the airport situation "from the College's standpoint," and questioned whether there would be any new developments until after the Centre County airport authority reports to the State College borough council.

The College had been considered in the airport negotiations because of its apparent need for airport facilities, but two weeks ago it announced that it could not participate financially in any project undertaken by the airport authority.

Early this week the College announced that Roy Schreffler, owner of the Black Moshannon airport, had offered to lease the field to the College for a $1 a year consideration.

Trustees Not Interested

The College reported the offer to the authority, Hostetter said.

He told a meeting of authority members Wednesday that the College had no desire to operate an airport, and that he knew the trustees would not be interested.

George L. Haller, dean of the School of Chemistry and Physics and a member of the College's airport committee, also attended the meeting and termed the Philipsburg story "unfortunate."

He also emphasized that the College has no provisions in its charter to operate an airport.

College Has 'Big Plans'

The men attended the meeting to report on a trip to the site after the $1 yearly lease had been offered to the College.

The story in the Journal, denied by the College, said it "has been learned from authoritative sources that Penn State has big plans for the Moshannon field, all of which will be announced in the near future."

The airport authority, meanwhile, is continuing its investigation of the state-owned emergency airport at Black Moshannon. The State College borough council asked the authority to investigate the mountain-top site at a special meeting to discuss the airport problem last Monday night.

Collegian Candidates

Freshmen and sophomores interested in working on promotion, office work, circulation, or advertising for the Daily Collegian will meet in 1 Carnegie Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Brotherhood Week Plans Announced

National Brotherhood Week, to be observed at the College next week through the Religion-in-Life Week program, offers Americans "an opportunity to rethink and restate the goals for education in a multi-culture society," according to The National Conference of Christians and Jews, its sponsor.

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, national chairman of the educational division, said of Brotherhood Week, "Beyond the selfish motive is the fundamental spiritual and moral concept of the equal worth before God and man of every variant of mankind in race, color and creed."

"Man's Respect for Man . . . The Core of Freedom" is this year's theme, and national observance will be focused on the need for sharing the civilian blood with our Armed Forces.

Brotherhood Week was established in 1934. From the original participation of 300 communities, the number has jumped to more than 6000 at the present time. The President of the United States serves as honorary chairman of the United States observance.

Town Council To Add Ten, Amend Charter

New representatives from ten downtown wards will be elected to the Town Council, according to Payson Clyde, secretary of the council.

At a meeting last night, an elections committee was appointed with Clyde as chairman. This committee will notify all wards which are lacking representatives to elect new members or send alternates. Clyde also said that a new vice president and an active treasurer will be elected at the next meeting.

Possible changes in the council constitution were placed before the constitution committee. Changes in election procedure were suggested calling for spring elections of executive officers to facilitate organization in the spring or elections each semester to promote greater interest in council meetings. New methods of presenting these possible changes to the constitution committee were also suggested.

The social committee reported on the "Can Can" dance held in December. Chairman Henry Pitts resigned from the committee and from the council immediately after his report.

Lewis, Alderdice In Debate Tourney

David Lewis and Robert Alderdice will represent the College in the seventh annual Boston University debate tournament today.

They and representatives of 25 other schools from the East and Midwest will argue this year's intercollegiate question, "Resolved: That the federal government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price controls."

Lewis will also participate in the extemporaneous speaking contest. Last year Lewis and Marlin Brenner were rated among the top four teams.

'Tartuffe' Tickets

Tickets for this week-end's performances of "Tartuffe," Moliere's satire on hypocrisy, are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main. They are 90 cents for tonight and $1.25 for tomorrow night.

Deferment Program Clarified by Hershey

The difference between 1-S and 2-S draft deferments was explained yesterday by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, in a release designed to clarify some points of the 1951 amendment to the 1948 Selective Service Act as they apply to college students.

The 2-S deferment is considered on the basis of class standing or qualification test, Hershey said, and it is discretionary on the part of the local draft board, which may grant the deferment each successive year. The 1-S deferment, he explained, was designed only to allow those students who do not have eligibility for consideration for 2-S deferments and who have not previously received a student postponement to complete their academic year.

Attendance Necessary

Hershey said that a 1-S deferment is granted only after the student has been ordered for induction. At that time he should request the dean of admissions and registrar to immediately give his local draft board official notice that he is a full-time student doing satisfactory work and that such work actually commenced prior to the date the order for induction was mailed.

A student must be in actual attendance at classes to receive a deferment, Hershey added. Enrollment, acceptance, and registration do not count, he said.

The 3-S classification was established to permit students who are in the prescribed upper portion of the male members of their class or who made a score of 70 or better on the Selective Service College Qualification Test to be considered by their local board for deferment. Hershey pointed out, however, that local boards are not required to defer men who meet one or both of these criteria, although the general policy so far has been to grant deferments.

Men Still May Enlist

Hershey said that a student who received a 1-S deferment could be considered for a 2-S deferment for the next year providing the work he has completed puts him in the prescribed upper portion of his class, or he scores 70 or better in the qualification test.

The 1-S and 2-S classifications, Hershey emphasized, are not postponements of induction, but deferred classifications. He said that a man has the right to enlist in the service of his choice any time up until he is ordered to report for induction.

Evert to Explain Campus Politics

Objectives of campus politics will be explained at a non-partisan meeting for persons interested in politics at 7 p.m. Sunday in 409 Old Main.

Ray Evert, chairman of the Lion Party clique, who initiated the idea last semester, will act as chairman at the meeting.

Cards have been sent to fraternities and sororities requesting them to send representatives to the meeting. Any student who is interested in learning about campus politics may attend.

Cast, Crews Of Comedy Announced

Mary Alice Hodgson and Mesrop Kesdekian will play principal roles in "You Can't Take it With You," the Kauffman-Hart comedy which opens at Schwab Auditorium March 6 for a three-night run.

Miss Hodgson, seen last fall as the landlady in "The Great Big Doorstep," will portray Penny, the easy-going mother who dabbles in everything from playwriting to painting.

In addition to his job as technical director of the production, Kesdekian will play Grandpa, the philosophical head of the family.
