Dinner, Address To Open RILW

By LaVONNE ALTHOUSE

Dr. A. T. Mollegen will speak on "Man's Deepest Need" after a dinner tonight to open Religion-in-Life Week observances on campus. The dinner will be held at St. Andrews Episcopal parish house, S. Frazier street and Foster avenue, at 6 tonight.

Information as to where to secure tickets, priced at 50 cents for students, may be secured by telephoning the Penn State Christian Association office 8441 ext. 541. A limited number of tickets are still available.

Dr. Mollegen's address, scheduled for 7:30 tonight at the Episcopal parish house, will be open to the public.

Student Co-Chairmen

RILW, sponsored by Inter-Religious Council, is observed annually in conjunction with National Brotherhood Week, which begins tomorrow. The theme this year is "This Meets Your Need." The Rev. John Peabody, rector of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, is general chairman of the program.

Student co-chairmen are Jane Montgomery and Ralph Cash. During the past month, however, Milton Bernstein has been substituting for Cash, who was graduated Jan. 29 and is now assistant director of the Hillel Foundation at Ohio State University. Cash will return here today to participate in RILW.

Tomorrow's RILW program opens with the Catholic Mass and the Chapel service in the morning. At a coffee hour sponsored by the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women in McElwain lounge tomorrow afternoon Dr. Mollegen will speak on "Education for What?"

Panel Discussion

The idea of having an address by one of the RILW leaders at the coffee hour was instituted this year so that more students would have the opportunity to become acquainted with the visiting leaders and to ask them questions, the RILW committee reported.

A panel discussion on "Modern Man's Dilemma" will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks. The panel will include Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, Dr. Mollegen, and Dr. John Dillenberger, three visiting leaders for RILW, and Dr. A. H. Reede and Dean H. K. Schilling of the College faculty. The Rev. Luther Harshbarger will moderate the discussion.

Mollegen To Speak At Chapel

Dr. Albert T. Mollegen, professor of Christian ethics at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Va., will speak on "God's Demand and Man's Desire" at 10:55 a.m. tomorrow in Chapel.

Dr. Mollegen will also speak at 7:30 tonight at the parish house of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, S. Frazier and Foster avenue, on "Man's Deepest Need." At 4 p.m. tomorrow he will speak at a coffee hour in McElwain Hall on the topic "Education for What?" Both meetings are open to the public.

Music by the Chapel choir will include the introit, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" (Luther); the anthem, "O Praise Jehovah" (Delamarter), and the service of prayer, "Only Begotten, Word of God Incarnate," (Roven Melody).

George Ceiga at the organ will play as prelude "Awake, Thou Wintry Earth" (Bach); as offertory, "Sixth Couplet" (Couperin); and as postlude, "Fugue No. 5—D Major" (Bach).

Flowers will be provided by Tau Phi Delta and Kappa Delta. Members of Delta Zeta and Kappa Delta will attend Chapel en masse in honor of their new initiates.

Fee Lists Available To Undergraduates

Lists of estimated fees for undergraduate students are available at the bursar's office, basement of Willard Hall. Students may pick up copies of the estimates to send home to their parents if they so desire, David C. Hogan, bursar, said yesterday.

Fees will be due Thursday and Friday in the basement of Willard Hall. They may be paid any time between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. or either day.

Hogan asked students to check lists of fees, which will be posted by matriculation number on one side of the basement of Willard Hall during both days, and make out checks before getting into line. This procedure would speed up fee payment, he said.

Students who pay fees late will be assessed a five dollar late payment fee.

Williams, Weidenhammer Star As Lions Cop 14th Straight Win

By DAVE COLTON

KINGSTON, R.I., Feb. 15—Penn State's basketball team continued to set a hot pace by defeating Rhode Island State here tonight, 72-66, for the Lions' 14th straight victory.

Paced by the fine floor-play of Co-captain Hardy Williams and Ronnie Weidenhammer, Coach Elmer Gross' cagers had to turn back a last quarter rally by the Rams in order to win their 16th contest of the season.

Jesse Arnelle drew to within 16 points of the Penn State one season record by tossing in 18 points, high for the Lions. Williams tallied 15 but it was his fine floor-generalship that stood out during the rough contest.

The Lions will move down to West Point tomorrow morning

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 15—(AP)—The Penn State basketball squad made a brief appearance here this morning—but only as spectators.

While awaiting a train connection for Kingston, R. I., where they are scheduled to meet Rhode Island State tonight, the Nittany Lion Cagers made an unscheduled visit to Superior Court and listened to the proceedings of divorce actions being heard. "We were just killing time," said a spokesman.

The court experience gained here was not expected to benefit the Nittany Lions in their court appearance at Kingston.

Committee To Receive Traffic Report

Results of a traffic survey, recently conducted among faculty and staff members, together with suggestions by committee members for possible solutions to the campus parking problem, will be heard at the second meeting of the All-College traffic committee Feb. 25, Walter H. Wiegand, chairman, said yesterday.

The traffic committee was established earlier this year to study campus traffic problems arising from having about 4000 student and faculty cars on campus and only 2500 parking spaces to accommodate them.

Results of the faculty survey have been tabulated according to schools and departments, Wiegand said earlier. Figures gathered in a similar student traffic survey conducted during fall semester registration may also be considered by the committee, he said.

Wiegand said he did not wish to predict all that the committee would talk about because committee members will probably have many proposals to be discussed.

A plan that would seriously curtail student driving on campus was proposed at the committee's first meeting, but no decision was reached.

Release Date Set For Spring Grades

March 15 has been set as the earliest date for the release of spring semester grades, Clarence O. Williams, registrar, said yesterday.

The Honor Society council has asked that the grades be released earlier so they could be considered in tapping for honoraries. The council's committee on grade releases said that a March 1 deadline is needed by the groups.

Williams suggested that the groups tap on the basis of previous grades. He added that his office would be glad to aid in decisions involving border-line cases.

Eisenhower To Address Convention

President Milton S. Eisenhower will be one of the speakers at the Eastern Intercollegiate Associated Women Students convention to be held April 23-26 at Penn State.

Anne Guthrie, United Nations reporter for the Christian Science Monitor, and Christine Conoway, dean of women at Ohio State University, will also speak.

"Our Future Is Now" is the theme of the convention, which will draw approximately 200 women student government leaders, advisers, and deans from member colleges and universities to the campus, Jane Mason, chairman of publicity for the convention, announced.

Many work shops have been planned for the three day period, according to Joyce Buchanan, chairman of that committee. Topics to be discussed include "Structure and Function of Associated Women Students," "Authority and Position of Associated Women Students," and "How to Stimulate Participation."

Other general topics are "Career vs. Marriage," "Are College Women Letting Us Down?," and "Women in Defense."

Virginia Miller, secretary of WSGA, is in general charge of the convention.

State and Lion Parties to Meet

In order to acquaint students with campus politics, both the Lion and State parties will hold non-partisan meetings at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

The Lion Party meeting will be held in 409 Old Main where Ray Evert, Lion Party clique chairman, will explain the objectives of campus politics.

Party organization will be completely explained at the State Party meeting in 119 Osmond. Robert Amole, clique chairman, said the meeting will be organizational in nature.

Election of clique officers is also scheduled for the State meeting.

Collegian Promotion

Joan Kuntz has been promoted to senior board of the Daily Collegian, Marvin Krasnansky, editor, announced yesterday.

Miss Kuntz will replace Mildred Martin as staff librarian. Miss Martin has resigned.

Frosh Flunk Quiz, Have 'Lots to Learn'

By DAVE PELLNITZ

The Student Union Office is opposite the Jordan food plots. Joe Bush is All-College president.

The Christian Missionary is responsible for freshmen receiving a copy of the Student Handbook.

Since when? Apparently since Monday and Wednesday nights when freshman men were quizzed by hatmen on College traditions, songs, the campus, student government, and the student handbook.

One of the questions asked the names of the two political parties in existence on campus, and from the answers, the Lion and State parties are going to have some stiff competition in the coming elections.

Have Good Opinions

Among the "third parties" listed by the frosh were the Tigers, Nittany, AIM, Council, Tribunal, Republican, and Democratic. If so many parties actually exist, it appears that the All-College Cabinet may soon be a coalition government periodically asking for votes of confidence.

So far, at least, all the frosh seem to have a pretty good opinion of Penn State. All but one, that is. His opinion was "not too favorable." (And he passed the test, too!)

Many of the frosh were struck by the size of the campus. Several said it "was a long walk from Nittany." One frosh said Penn State is the "best college in the country but customs are for plain morons who care to gloat over them." Another said it was the best "except for the hatmen."
