

Lion, State Parties Hold Non-Partisan Meetings

Amole Announces 3 Resignations Of State Officers

The announcement of the forthcoming resignations of three of the four State Party clique officers and the opening of nominations for candidates to fill the positions took place at a State Party non-partisan meeting Sunday night. Nearly 60 students were present.

Robert Amole, clique chairman, revealed that he, Frank Schrey, vice-chairman; and Marilyn Minor, secretary, would resign upon the election of people to take their places. Richard Grossman will continue as treasurer.

Amole stated the resignations were being made for "the best interests of the party." A senior, he said that it was felt that the party would be stronger by letting the "younger blood" take over now. He added that it was thought more student interest would be created by the move.

Workshop Begins Thursday

Only three nominations were made for the nine offices open. Thomas Farrell was nominated for clique chairman, Robert Sherman, senior class vice clique chairman, and Ann Quigley, junior class secretary-treasurer. Amole said that nominations would be closed and the elections held at the next meeting.

Amole also explained the setup of the State Party workshop which will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday. He said the workshop is designed to acquaint and orient new members with the workings of the party.

Better Government

The workshop will be divided into six fields, Amole said, and students may attend any or all of the several meetings scheduled to see where their interests lie. The workshop divisions are membership, campaign, distribution, ward, publicity, and platform.

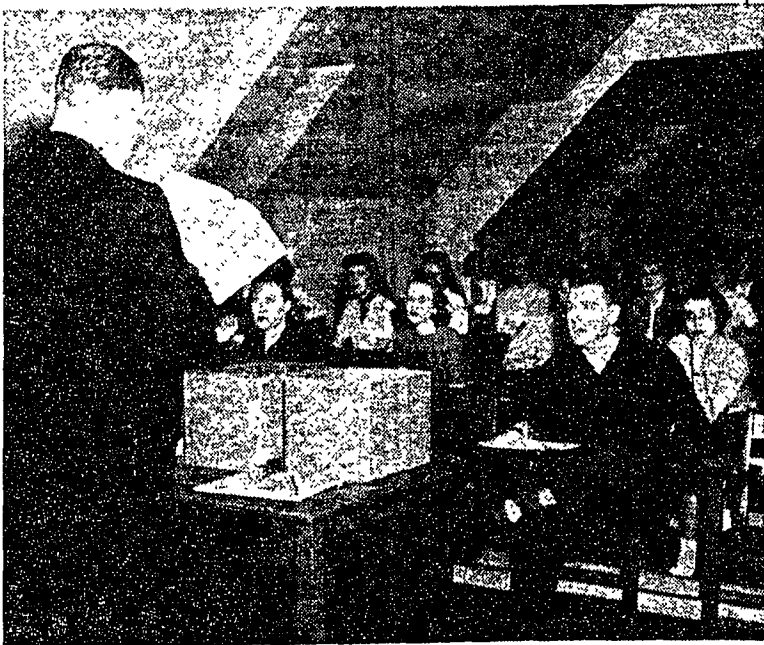

Farrell opened the meeting with an explanation of the party organization in which he emphasized that the party was striving for better student government for the individual.

He also explained voting procedure, clique membership, and the work of the steering committee. The latter will be open to all active members this semester, Farrell said, instead of the more or less closed group which has been the State Party rule in the past.

Final Debate Tryouts

Final tryouts for the men's varsity debate team will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 305 Sparks.

Future Teachers Take Tests

FIFTY-SIX STUDENTS taking the national teacher examination prepared by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J. The passing grade of 500 is required of teachers by school districts in Erie, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Williamsport. Results, which are known after six weeks, are sent to those examined, the school districts, and the placement service. The tests are designed to measure the professional background, mental ability, and general cultural knowledge of teacher candidates.

Flying Snowballs Break Windows, Injure Student

One student was sent to the infirmary, three rooms in the women's dormitories were damaged, and at least three fraternity houses reported broken windows as a result of snowballing over the weekend.

James Ecker, senior in commerce and finance, was treated for bruises around his eyes, hospital attendants reported yesterday. His condition was reported as good and he was dismissed.

Alpha Sigma Phi reported seven panes of glass broken, Phi Epsilon Pi, four, and Alpha Tau Omega, one. The broken glass in the fraternities resulted from a general snowball battle which began shortly after 10 p.m. Sunday.

Windows in two Thompson Hall rooms were broken with the shattered glass being thrown over the rooms, Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston said yesterday. In one of the rooms on the second floor facing Carnegie Hall, the glass flew across both beds in the room and on to a study table.

A first floor room in McElwain Hall was damaged when snowballs were hurled through an open window. The snow splattered through the room and on a sleeping student.

Dean Weston stressed the importance of the matter when she explained the danger to the rooms' occupants. She asked that the students do their snowballing in some place where no harm can come to students and school property.

13 Fire Victims Report Losses

Complete insurance figures have been received by the dean of men's office concerning 13 of the 15 Gentzel fire victims who applied for assistance.

Two of the men who applied for assistance failed to meet the last Saturday noon deadline for turning in insurance coverage figures. The 13 men who have turned over insurance figures will be considered in the distribution of the funds and the donations of merchandise from several borough stores.

The deadline was set early last week by Marvin Krasnansky, chairman of the fund drive, when records showed that only five men had reported their insurance coverage.

30 Students Ask For Closer Check On Party Platforms

Approximately 30 students, who attended the advisory meeting Sunday night in 409 Old Main, thought that there should be a closer check on each party's fulfillment of its platform.

The meeting, moderated by Ray Evert, Lion Party clique chairman, was dominantly attended by Lion Party members. However, there were a few State Party members at the non-partisan meeting.

Group Discusses Problems

The group considered the problem of whether politics should enter into All-College Cabinet debates. Some thought that there should be more politics in cabinet, as a check on the fulfillment on party platforms.

The group favored having the Daily Collegian print the party affiliation of the elected voting members of All-College Cabinet when they are mentioned in a story.

Student apathy was considered one of the biggest obstacles to overcome in campus politics. It was suggested that students be educated on the subject by having more door to door canvassing and by working through such campus organizations as the Association of Independent Men, Leonides, Interfraternity Council, and Panhellenic Council.

Consists Mostly of Freshmen

The group believed that work of this nature would give students a more objective outlook on student government. To educate freshmen, work through the counselor system was recommended.

Members of the group, consisting primarily of freshmen, proposed that a meeting be held next Sunday with leaders from the Lion and State parties co-chairing the discussion so that a more objective and non-partisan outlook can be obtained on the problems of student government.

2d Vote Taken On Revision

West Dorm Council last night voted for the second time to approve an amendment to its constitution that would permit council members to miss two meetings without sending an alternate. Previously the constitution permitted members to miss only one meeting under the same conditions.

Members who miss more than the permitted number of meetings without sending a representative lose their seats on the council. Proposed amendments to the constitution must be read at two meetings of the council before a vote is taken.

The amendment now goes back to the dormitory units for final approval before it becomes law. Two-thirds of the units must pass the proposed amendment by a majority vote within the next two weeks, as specified in the constitution.

Richard Mills, council president, appointed Raymond Meyer as chairman of a committee to investigate the possibilities of holding a banquet for the council. Edward Fleming and Norman Levin were named to assist him.

John Speer was named to the publicity committee headed by David Seylor. Speer was also appointed to serve on the food committee along with Ralph Griffith.

50 to 60% REDUCTIONS

Nearly out-dated FILM Enlarging and contact PAPER
CENTRE COUNTY
FILM LABORATORY
122 W. Beaver.

Coed Shortage?

—Photo by McNeillie
THREE RESIDENTS of Hamilton Hall took advantage of last weekend's snowfall and tried to solve the boy-girl ratio at Penn State by making their own "snowgirl." They are (left to right) Richard Wilkinson, Arthur Keener, and Lyle Peck.

Open Letter Claims 'Moral Breakdown'

Colleges today are doing a better job of training the intelligence than developing character, the Rev. John Peabody, chairman of Religion-in-Life Week, said yesterday in an open letter to students.

The weakness of such characterless training has been revealed in the obvious moral breakdown in college life, in the basketball fixes, the widespread prevalence of cheating, and the poor moral tone of much of college social life, the Rev. Peabody pointed out.

Most of the dilemmas students get into are caused by the fact that they have no real goals, he said. We are not training men to live if they have failed to face the ultimate question for every human being, "Is there a God?" he added.

This year's Religion-in-Life Week program has been designed to offer students the opportunity to be taught values instead of only facts; the only thing colleges usually offer, the Rev. Peabody said.

The five leaders in Protestant and Jewish circles visiting the campus this week, Dr. Albert T. Mollegen, Dr. John Dillenberger, Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, Dr. Andrew T. Roy and Will Herberg, are some of the top men in the fields of theology and religious ethics, the Rev. Peabody added. "Make it your business to hear what they have to say," he said.

Schapiro to Present Second of LA Talks

Dr. Meyer Schapiro, of Columbia University, a leading art historian, will present the second talk of the Liberal Arts Lecture Series at 8 p.m. Monday in 121 Sparks.

The topic of the lecture will be "Cezanne, the Artist and the Man." The lecture will be open to the public.

SENIORS . . .

Order Your Class Ring Now
Balfours ("A" Store)

SPECIAL

3 Days Only!

Tues., Wed. and Thurs.

Ladies' plain dresses 77c and Suits . . . . .
Men's Slacks . . . 34c

LAUNDERETTE

210 W. COLLEGE AVE.

FREE PARKING IN REAR

PHONE 4785