Cwens to Sponsor Coed 'Frosh Day'

To help encourage spirit in first semester freshman women, tomorrow has been designated as "Frosh Day." The project is being undertaken by Cwens, sophomore women's activities honorary, according to Marian Ungar, chairman of the committee.

Customs and Regulations Board, was passed at a Cwens meeting Monday night in the interest of customs in general.

All first semester freshman women will meet at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow in front of the Carnegie Hall bulletin board. Here, they will be led in songs and cheers by women members of the cheer-leading squad. This is being done because it is felt that many of the new freshmen never learned the Penn State songs and cheers, Miss Ungar said. Members of Cwens will assist in the song leading.

Signs Posted

Roll call will be taken at the gathering, which will not have the effect it is meant to have if all the women are not present, she said. Members of Cwens believe that since there are only 48 first semester women, a group gathering will give them an opportunity to get to know one another better and to encourage group spirit.

Announcements are being made in dormitories where first semester women are housed, and signs will be placed on campus. Cases of freshman women who do not attend the meeting will be handled by the FCRB, Miss Yerger said.

Helps 'Instill Spirit'

Freshman women are still required to wear their green bows and to carry their Student Handbooks. These will be checked at the gathering.

Patricia Thompson, assistant to the Dean of Women in charge of orientation, said that Frosh Day is an excellent idea and gives the upperclasswomen an opportunity to show that they are interested in carrying out women's customs.

Junior Class Will Meet Tonight

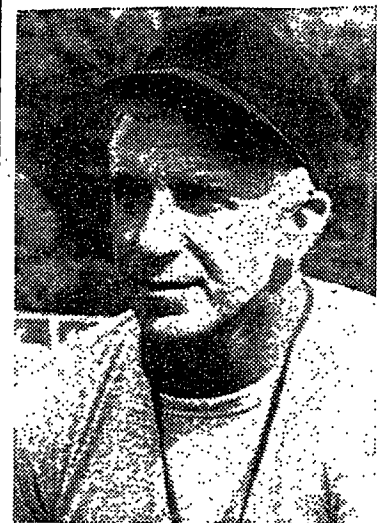

Since it is necessary for the junior class to take action before the end of the semester on the desired size of graduation diplomas, this will be discussed at the class meeting at 7:30 tonight in 121 Sparks, Michael Hanek, president, announced. Other business includes the junior class project.

At present the larger diplomas, which give more details in the seal, are in use. A suggestion has been made to change to a smaller size which would be easier to handle. The smaller diplomas, it is claimed, also can be distributed at the graduation exercises.

A report on the junior class project will be given by Robert Sherman, chairman of the project committee. He will read a letter from Ralph McComb, College librarian, pertaining to the record collection which has been suggested as a project.

It has been recommended to have "The Greatest Shows of the Century," and other records housed in the Reserve Book Room of the Pattee Library. The records would circulate for three days, and students would be responsible for breakage at list prices.

To Follow NCAA

Coach Rip Engle

Engle Will Obey NCAA Spring Rule

Strict compliance to the spirit as well as the letter of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 20-day limit on spring football practice has been pledged by Penn State football Coach Rip Engle.

At the same time the Nittany gridiron coach called for "a little integrity in football."

There are ways to beat any game, Engle said yesterday, and the shrewd operator can get away with cutting corners. All that proves, he said, is that the game must have a little honesty of the coaches and institutions.

"We will adhere not only to the letter of the rule, but to the spirit as well," Engle said. He continued, "if we hold a meeting indoors because of the bad weather, we will count it as one of our 20 sessions."

While backing the NCAA proposal, Engle did, however, find room for disagreement with the decision of the executive committee of the American Council of Education to eliminate all bowl games.

Customs Changes Approved, Revised

Frosh Group Suggests New Limits, Rules

By MARSHALL DONLEY

A five-man freshman committee last night agreed on numerous suggestions for changes in the proposed customs regulations which were presented to the freshman class last week.

The suggestions of this committee, which was set up by the freshman class to study the proposed revisions of customs and make recommendations to All-College cabinet, include limiting exemptions to customs, setting a definite period for customs, and having once-a-week joint customs enforcement days.

The committee planned a meeting for next week which will be open to all freshmen as well as all students who are interested. The time and place for the meeting will be announced later this week.

Although the committee did not decide on a definite length of time for customs, it agreed that the period should be set and that a contest, such as a tug of war, should be held at the end of this period to determine whether customs should continue.

Stronger punishments both for freshmen violators of customs and for upperclassmen who violate customs enforcement regulations were suggested by the committee.

Student Fees Due Tomorrow

Payment of student fees, including room and board, will be due tomorrow and Friday in Willard Hall. Fees may be paid anytime between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on either day.

David C. Hogan, bursar, has asked students to check the amounts of their fees which will be listed by matriculation number on one side of the room, and to make out their checks before getting into payment lines. This will speed up payment, he pointed out.

Students who pay fees late will be charged a five dollar late payment fee.

17 Frosh Ordered To Wear Placards

By JIM PETERS

Seventeen freshman men who failed to appear at the freshman meetings last week must wear signs starting today encouraging the basketball team in this week's important games, Tribunal decided last night.

Four other freshmen were granted immunity from customs because they had gone through them before. They are James Hamill, Thomas Kraynyak, Irwin Weiner, and Costas Thomas. Another freshman, Robert Rothouse, will take a test today to decide whether he must wear the signs or not.

The signs will be worn today, Thursday, and Friday. The members of the Tribunal will also meet the freshmen sign-bearers each of the three days at 12:45.

The 17 freshmen named were Morton Bender, Donald Chalmers, Daniel Fellows, Alfred Gavenas, James Hart, Richard Heile, Theron Johns, Lewis Lista, Frank Markwith, Jame Murphy, Vincent Paglianete, Edward Paska, Karl Schwenzfeier, Morlon Slakoff, James Stuchell, Edward Tezekjian, and Thomas Tucker.

Tribunal also levied fines on six students for traffic violations. The fines totaled $11.

Tribunal tried 13 cases dealing with illegal parking, one for using an illegal permit. Two cases were dismissed without a penalty. Tribunal suspended sentences on seven cases totaling $15 in fines.

In one case, a student up before Tribunal for his second offense had his sentence suspended until any future violation, but he had a new violation that had just occurred yesterday. He was fined $1.

Another case involved a student who had parked illegally, and had used an illegal permit. (Continued on page eight)

RILW Speaker

Dr. Andrew T. Roy

Final Panel For RILW Set Today

Dr. Andrew T. Roy, from the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church, will speak tonight at the last of the evening panel discussions for Religion-in-Life Week.

The former missionary to China will speak on "Basic Needs of Free Men" at 8 tonight in Ather-ton lounge.

On the panel with Dr. Roy will be Dr. John Dillenberger, acting head of the Department of Religion at Columbia University, and the Rev. Luther Harshbarger, executive secretary of the Penn State Christian Association.

The noon worship service in the Little Theater will be conducted in the Episcopal tradition. The third of a series designed to show students how other faiths worship God, the service is open to all who wish to attend.

Dr. Roy will address high school classes at the Presbyterian Church at 8:25 a.m. today.

At 8:30 a.m. radio devotions will be conducted over station WMAJ.

Fireside discussions will be continued in fraternities and dormitories at 6:30 tonight. These discussions, led by local or visiting religious leaders, are designed to give students the opportunity to air their problems and ask questions.

Talent Show Judges Named

Five faculty members have been named as judges for the 1952 All-College Talent Show, sponsored by the Penn State Club, to be held at 8 p.m. Friday in Schwab Auditorium, Arnold Gasche, show chairman, said yesterday.

The judges for the nine acts are Russell Clark, director of housing; Daniel DeMarino, assistant dean of men; Elmer Wareham, music instructor; and Mary Brewer and Patricia Thompson, assistants to the Dean of Women.

These judges will select the five finalists for the show. Audience applause will decide the winners of $25, $15, and $10 cash prizes.

Tickets for the 12th annual talent show are now on sale at the Student Union desk.

Hat Council Gives Okay To Program

By JAKE HIGHTON

Hat Society Council became the second campus organization to stamp approval on the proposed customs amendment to the All-College Constitution last night.

The council unanimously approved the new customs plan passed last week by Tribunal.

Marvin Krasnansky, hat society president, presented to the council the preliminary draft for the joint Freshman Customs Board with the explanation that the proposals were to change custom plans, but not through rules so much as by enforcement.

As stated in the amendment draft,

Freshman Custom Board's aim will be to "establish, enforce, interpret, and be responsible for the conduct of the freshman customs program of All-College Cabinet."

The proposed amendment, as approved by Tribunal earlier and now Hat Society Council, is a plan whereby the Freshman Customs Board will be a joint affair coordinating both men and women's custom regulations into a unified setup.

The joint board, which would be set up to hear all freshman violations, is to consist of four upperclassmen and four upperclasswomen with the chairman of Tribunal and the chairman of Judicial serving as co-chairmen.

Krasnansky explained that when a woman is the offender the chairman would be a woman and vice versa.

Major freshman custom regulations included in the preliminary (Continued on page eight)

2d Inklings To Appear Next Month

Inklings, College literary magazine, will make its second appearance on the campus early next month, Florenz Fenton, editor, announced yesterday.

The magazine, established in 1950, was published for the first time in May of last year. The book was the first large publication printed by the offset lithography method at Penn State.

The magazine has been delayed in its second printing, Fenton said, because of financial difficulties.

"Although the first Inklings was received enthusiastically and was more than a financial success, we wanted to be sure that the road was completely cleared of any possibility of business failure."

"Previously there have been three literary magazines at Penn State and all of them have been forced to suspend publication. We want to make no mistakes with the Inklings," he said.

All-College Cabinet made a $600 loan to the Inklings in 1950 in an effort to get the new magazine started. At that time, the money was paid to the creditors of one of the former failures to establish credit for the new book.

In offset production, which will be handled by students, a large crew is needed. Students who are interested in learning the process or helping in the production of Inklings will be welcomed, the editor said. Interested persons may contact Milton Bernstein at 6876.
